

FIELD GUIDE

Version 09/11/24

Women, War, + Trauma -Armenia-

A SELF-GUIDED STUDY FOR THE WOMEN OF ARMENIA SEEKING STRENGTH, COURAGE, AND HEALING IN THE MIDST OF WAR

Chris & Rahnella Adsit
Marshéle Carter

REBOOT

Women, War, + Trauma

Table of Contents

A SELF-GUIDED STUDY FOR THE WOMEN OF ARMENIA SEEKING STRENGTH, COURAGE, AND HEALING IN THE MIDST OF WAR

Authors' Bios	5
Introduction: There Is A Way.....	6
Participation Rules	7
1. How Can a Good God Allow Such Evil?	9
2. Facing Fear with Faith.....	17
3. Family, Friends, and Faraway Places: The Sacrifice of Separation.....	23
4. Dealing with True and False Guilt.....	29
5. How Has Trauma Impacted Me?	37
6. Derivative Stress: When Trauma is Contagious.....	47
7. Survival Tips for Protecting Your Family	57
8. Finding Light in the Darkest Grief	67
9. Who Am I? Truth for a Traumatized Identity.....	75
10. God's Strategy for Defeating Your Enemies.....	85
11. Building Your Healing Environment: Elements 1 & 2.....	97
12. Building Your Healing Environment: Elements 3,4,5	105
13. Parenting In Times of War	113
14. If I Should Die Tonight	121

www.rebootrecovery.com

<https://rebootrecovery.com/reboot-international-resources>

A LITTLE ABOUT REBOOT RECOVERY...

REBOOT Recovery is a US-based ministry to those who have experienced the devastating effects of trauma. When REBOOT began in 2011, we focused on combat trauma. Within a few years, we branched out to address first-responder trauma (fire, law enforcement, emergency medicine, etc.). Now we have expanded to include all types of trauma, regardless of its origin. We have combined the best practices of the medical and mental health communities with timeless principles from the Bible to help people construct a personal environment that gives God optimal access to their body, soul, and spirit for the purpose of healing.

Trauma was your personal intersection with the brokenness of the world. But recovery is your personal intersection with the loving and powerful heart of God.

REBOOT first came to Ukraine in 2015, and in 2019 we conducted a REBOOT Leader Training Conference in Kyiv. Now there are REBOOT leaders and REBOOT groups in many places around Ukraine. We wrote this manual for our first training mission to Armenia in January of 2024 – the first of many, we hope, to bring hope and healing from God to Armenians.

Copyright 2024, Adsit Ministries. All rights reserved.

Users may feel free to copy, duplicate, and distribute any or all of this manual via print or electronic media as long as you do not alter the text and provide proper citation, and as long as you don't sell it or try to make money off it in any way.

DISCLAIMER: This book is not a substitute for appropriate medical or psychological care for those experiencing significant emotional pain or whose ability to function at home, school, or work is impaired. Chronic or extreme stress may cause a wide assortment of physical and psychological problems. Some may require evaluation and treatment by medical or mental health professionals. When in doubt, seek advice from a professional.

Translations used in Women, War, + Trauma –

Unless otherwise noted, all scripture references in this book are from the New American Standard Bible (NASB) © 1960, 1971, 1977, 1995, 2020 The Lockman Foundation. All rights reserved. Used by permission.

Other translations used and quoted:

AMP: The Amplified Bible © 2015 The Lockman Foundation, La Habra, CA 90631. Used by permission.

AMPC: The Amplified Bible, Classic Edition © 1954, 1958, 1962, 1964, 1965, 1987 The Lockman Foundation. Used by permission. All rights reserved.

CEB: The Common English Bible © 2011 Common English Bible. Used by permission. All rights reserved.

CJB: The Complete Jewish Bible © 1998 David H. Stern. Used by permission. All rights reserved.

ESV: The English Standard Version © 2001 Crossway Bibles — Good News Publishers. Used by permission. All rights reserved.

KJV: The King James Version. Public Domain.

MSG: The Message © 1993, 2002, 2018 Eugene H. Peterson. Used by permission. NavPress Publishing Group. All rights reserved.

NIV: The New International Version. NIV® 1973, 1978, 1984, 2011 Biblica, Inc.® Used by permission. All rights reserved worldwide.

NKJV: The New King James Version © 1982 Thomas Nelson. Used by permission. All rights reserved.

NLT: The New Living Translation © 1996, 2004, 2015 Tyndale House Foundation. All rights reserved. Tyndale House Publishers, Inc., Carol Stream, Illinois 60188. Used by permission.

TLB: The Living Bible © 1971 Tyndale House Foundation. All rights reserved. Tyndale House Publishers, Inc., Carol Stream, Illinois 60188. Used by permission.

Women, War, + Trauma* and its companion book for soldiers, Bridges To Healing, are produced and distributed by REBOOT Recovery

Authors of Women, War, + Trauma

Chris Adsit

International Resource Coordinator for REBOOT Recovery; national & international speaker, author/co-author of many books, manuals, and training curricula on trauma: The Combat Trauma Healing Manual, When War Comes Home, The First Responder Healing Manual, REBOOT First Responder curriculum, Bridges to Healing: Ukraine, Bridges to Healing: Africa, and others. Chris has been in full-time Christian work since 1974. Since 2008, he and Rahnella have trained hundreds of chaplains, counselors, pastors, and military personnel all over the world in the REBOOT approach to trauma healing. He has been married to Rahnella for 46 years at this writing, living in Eugene, Oregon.

Rahnella Adsit

International Coordinator for REBOOT Recovery; national & international speaker, author/co-author, including When War Comes Home and The Combat Trauma Healing Manual, First Responder Healing Manual and REBOOT First Responder. For many years she had a private pastoral counseling practice for those who have been traumatized. She's a grandmother of four and mother of four, including a US Army combat veteran, a firefighter, the wife of a Marine combat veteran Lt. Colonel, and the widow of a husband who died suddenly. Rahnella is a cancer survivor, brain hemorrhage survivor, twin birth survivor (!), and watched her home burn to the ground. Our family has known its share of trauma!

Marshéle Carter

Wife, mother, grandmother, and former 30-year military spouse of a US Navy SEAL. Marshéle is the co-author of Wounded Warrior, Wounded Home: Hope and Healing for Families Living with PTSD and TBI (2013), When War Comes Home (2008), and is the author of Hope for the Home Front and its companion Bible study (2006). She has served as an advocate for veterans' issues at the national level, speaking with U.S. senators and congressmen as well as health councils and organizations on behalf of combat veterans and their families. Today, she is a professional writer and university educator, living in Phoenix, Arizona.

Chris & Rahnella Adsit

BRIDGES TO HEALING

– Armenia –

A self-guided curriculum for soldiers journeying across the rivers of war-related trauma to a place of strength and stability

REBOOT RECOVERY
OVERCOMING TRAUMA TOGETHER

Companion Book for Soldiers: Bridges To Healing

The sources of trauma are very diverse. But the trauma one encounters when involved in armed conflict can be severe and last a lifetime if not addressed intentionally. The Adsits have constructed a manual for Armenian soldiers that will help them understand many of the issues associated with combat trauma, such as: the physiology of trauma impact, PTSD, true and false guilt, bitterness and forgiveness issues, grieving your losses, constructing a healing environment, rebuilding your traumatized identity, the role of God in trauma healing, and more. But beyond that, as a soldier applies the principles in this book in partnership with faith in the God who heals, he or she will experience strengthening, relief, and healing that will flow into all areas of their life.

Cover Art for Women, War, + Trauma

Painted by British street artist "My Dog Sighs" on a building in Cardiff, Wales, he wanted "to express his sadness and anger over the Russian invasion of Ukraine." Though the colors in this art belong to Ukraine, we felt the emotions evoked by this painting are shared by all women who must endure the adversity and suffering of war.

Introduction: There is a way . . .

Most nights, Alex has horrible nightmares. They jerk him from his sleep and he looks around wildly, trying to see who is about to attack him. He grabs the knife he keeps handy and points into the darkness, ready to slash. His wife Karina runs from their bed as fast as she can, in case he mistakes her for an enemy. Alex's heart is beating like a drum, his breath coming in rapid gasps, his eyes frantically searching the darkness for the Azerbaijani soldiers who have come to kill him.

But after several minutes, Alex comes to his senses. There are no enemy soldiers, no threats, just a great sadness replacing the panic that was in his heart moments earlier.

He slumps down on his bed and can't keep from weeping. His wife hesitantly re-enters the room and then sits beside him and puts a comforting arm on his shoulder. Alex thinks about how life was before the invasion . . .

"We are lost," he cries. "We are so far away from the peaceful home and town we used to live in. I can't work. I can't sleep. I'm always afraid someone is coming to kill us. I'm a terrible husband to you Karina, a useless father to my children. And I can't seem to do anything about it!" With that, he kicks the chair next to the bed, sending it flying across the room.

He looks at his wife through his angry tears. "I'm sorry, Karina. I just want to go back. I want to go back to how things were before the fighting began, before our parents were killed and I was wounded, before God forgot about us. But I don't know how to get back there. There are too many rivers in the way that are too wide to cross. If I could only find the way back . . ."

Karina wept with Alex, because she felt the same sadness, the same hopelessness, and she had no idea what she could say to her husband to take away his pain.

Alex and Karina – like hundreds of thousands of other Armenians now scattered far from their homes – are experiencing the devastating trauma of war. You are probably reading this because you have experienced it too. With the way things are across Eastern Europe today, it's unlikely you will ever be able to go back to the way things were before war disrupted your life. But don't despair – you can make a journey to a new place of healing, strength, stability and peace. There is a way.

The traumas you have experienced may have robbed you of your peace, your joy, your ability to love, your hope, and many other things – at least for the moment. But despite your current circumstances, you can find these things again! Like Alex in the story above, you may think God has abandoned you. He has not! We know it must seem like it sometimes, but as you will read in this manual, God has been walking with you through all of the fires you have encountered. He's with you now, and He wants to help you make that journey to the place of healing.

Our brothers and sisters of Armenia, we grieve with you over all you have lost – physically, emotionally and spiritually. But take courage. Many people are praying for you as you read this. And the Spirit of God is also sitting beside you right now, eager to walk with you to your place of healing.

With Christ's love,

Chris & Rahnella Adsit – June 2024

Participation Rules

1. Confidentiality

Anything said in our group stays in our group. Trust takes time to build but only moments to destroy. DO NOT talk to non-group members about who else is in the group or anything that was said.

2. Zero rank

Out there, you might be a big deal or a nobody. In this group, we are all equals, working toward a common goal, helping each other out.

3. Faith

While we don't hide that we are a Christ-centered organization, we are not affiliated with any specific church or denomination. People of any faith or no faith are welcome here. We will respect each other's faith convictions.

4. No comparisons

Each person experiences stress and trauma differently. What is traumatic for one person is just another day on the job for someone else. We are all wired differently and have unique life experiences. Comparing trauma experiences to decide if mine was better or worse than yours is unproductive and even harmful. Focus on what God is doing in your life.

5. Share your mind

Have the courage to share what's on your mind or what you're feeling – it's part of your healing process. The more you share, the safer you and everyone else will feel here, and the sooner you will experience healing.

6. Share the air

But moderate your sharing. Make an effort not to dominate discussion times; let others in. Avoid long, detailed descriptions of your experiences. Get in, make your point, get out.

7. Listen

Actively, deeply, honoring and affirming all contributions.

8. Don't criticize

Show grace and mercy to other group members – just as God has shown you.

9. Don't interrupt

You may have a valuable pearl of wisdom to share, but wait your turn.

10. Honor

Look for opportunities to honor and affirm each other during and between meetings.

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 1

How Can a Good God Allow Such Evil?

By Chris Adsit

You meant evil against me, but God meant it for good... (Genesis 50:20)

“If there is a god, then he is either crazy, bad, or weak. No good god would allow the atrocities that have happened. If you believe in god, you are deluded.”

This is a message that someone put on my Facebook page after I had been urging people to pray for God to save and protect Ukraine.

Was this person right? Is it true?

Many of you reading this chapter have seen and experienced unimaginable tortures and atrocities at the hands of Azerbaijani invaders. Surely these questions have occurred to you – regardless of how strong your faith is.

Since Russia began their full invasion of Ukraine on February 24, 2022, I have been posting prayers on my Facebook page from the Bible for people to pray. There were dozens of verses asking God for protection and victory against enemies. Many of you also prayed those prayers. And yet, many Armenians have died. Many were injured. Many were assaulted, raped, and tortured. Many lost their homes, their loved ones. Did God ignore all those prayers? Was there no God listening?

It's normal and natural for us to ask these questions. Most of us have heard that the Bible presents God as “supremely good” and “supremely powerful.” But if God is so good, certainly He wouldn't want these horrible things to happen. And if He's so powerful, He certainly would be able to stop them. So why doesn't He?

People have struggled with these questions for centuries. We probably won't be able to resolve them in this short chapter, but we can at least let you know that there ARE answers, and give you some strong anchors to which you can tie your faith.

How Did Evil Get Here?

When God made man, He loved everything about us at a depth and with an intensity that exceeds our understanding by infinity. His love isn't the sentimental, sugar-sweet, human love that we see in the movies or daydream about. It's a love that is wise, selfless, and freeing. It has eternity in mind, not just the present.

And because of His love, He's not going to force people to do anything. He gave us “free will” – the ability to make choices. He's not interested in a race of puppets that will do what He says only when He pulls the right strings. He loves you, and what He passionately longs for is your love sent back to Him of your own free will. If we are forced, it's not love at all. It's physics: simple action and reaction.

So from the very beginning God has deeply desired that we would decide on our own to respond positively to His loving proposals. Unfortunately, the first man and woman – Adam and Eve – abused their free will and decided to do something that was expressly against God's rules. They stepped out from under God's protection, and decided to obey their enemy instead of God, thinking it was to their advantage. It wasn't. As a result, death entered our experience and the Earth has existed in a "fallen" state since then. A separation was set up between man and God, and men continued to make choices which were against what God said would be best for them. He gave them free will, but part of that "gift" was that they would also have to suffer the consequences of their bad choices. And if their choices affected those around them, they would experience those consequences too.

Down Through the Centuries, How Have We Responded?

Jesus told a story about how He was going to be rejected as King, even though He rightly deserved His people's allegiance, and despite His plans to bring peace and prosperity back to mankind. Instead, those who should have been grateful to Him murdered Him. (Mark 12:1-8).

His story came true a few days later. "Away with Him! Away with Him!" the crowd screamed. "Crucify Him! We have no king but Caesar!" (John 19:15). The people didn't want God – or His Son – as their ruler, so they killed Him. But this was nothing new. People have been rejecting God's rule in their lives since the time of Adam and Eve. Mankind said "No" to God at the first opportunity, and we have individually been saying "No" ever since. But God still reaches out in love and says, "I'm here. Won't you let me be your Covering, your Guide, your Sustainer, your Companion, your Comforter?" But every one of us at one time or another has said, "No, You may not. I would prefer to be in charge of my own life. I don't want to be answerable to You. Leave me alone. I'll do as I please."

God didn't change His mind about respecting our free will. He granted our wish. He backed off. But not very far. He's always there, always ready to respond, always reaching out – but out of our way. "We don't need Him – we can handle things just fine by ourselves."

How "fine" are we handling things by ourselves? Powerful men who have rejected God's influence in their lives are the reason Armenians are suffering so badly today. These men believe that their personal power is something they can use to get whatever they want regardless of who they hurt or kill, regardless of what cities or countries they destroy. This philosophy has been the tragic foundation of history for thousands of years.

As Joseph Stalin said, "When there is a person, there is a problem. When there is no person, there is no problem." So in 1932 he unleashed the Holodomor on Ukraine, and 7 to 10 million Ukrainians were no longer a problem. In 1914-15, Armenians posed a problem for the Turkish authorities, so they decided to carry out genocide, destroying 1.5 million Armenians. The Aliyev clan is guided by the same philosophy.

According to historian Will Durant, there have only been 268 of the past 3,421 years in which a major war wasn't raging somewhere on Earth. Apart from God, the history of mankind has been one of selfishness, war, conquest, and oppression. These facts lead us to a very important conclusion: Your current difficulties are due to the sinful actions of men – not God.

It is ironic that many people tell God to get lost, He complies, and then people get mad at Him for their troubles.

How Can You Know that God is Good and that He Can Help You?

1. Suffering is not unusual. It is universal – even for God.

Because we live in a fallen world, everyone has experienced the consequences of the harmful actions of evil people. What is God's attitude toward this? He's not like the Greek or Roman "gods" who were entertained by watching human suffering while they remained untouched in their heavenly throne rooms.

Instead, God took on the form of a man – Jesus Christ – came to earth, and experienced suffering to its fullest extent. He was born into violence and poverty. As an infant, He and his parents barely escaped a paranoid king who committed genocide on every baby boy under the age of two in an effort to kill Him. He was a refugee in a foreign country during much of his childhood. As an adult He was homeless, discriminated against, hounded, criticized, misunderstood, and opposed by powerful leaders. Eventually – though He was completely innocent – He was betrayed by a close friend, arrested, wrongfully accused and convicted, tortured, mocked, crucified, and put in a borrowed tomb. However, the greatest news in all of history are the three things that happened next: our sins were paid for, reunion with God and eternal life was made possible, and Jesus rose from the dead, confirming that He was indeed God the Son.

God brought GREAT good out of the most unjust act ever committed. In addition, we can never say to God, "You just don't know what I'm going through." Yes He does. He's been there. For this reason we can agree with what Hebrews 2:18 (AMP) says about Jesus – "Because He Himself has suffered in being tempted, He is able to help and provide immediate assistance to those who are being tempted and exposed to suffering."

2. God grieves with you over your suffering and loss.

Though it may not seem like it at times, God has been right there with you through all of your adversity. With each pain and each loss you experienced, He felt that pain and grieved that loss. His heart is breaking over the same things that are breaking your heart.

You may remember the story in the Bible of the time Jesus' good friend Lazarus got sick and died (John 11). Lazarus' sisters, Mary and Martha, had tried to get Jesus to come and heal him before he died, but Jesus delayed. When He finally did arrive, Lazarus had been dead for four days. Mary, Martha, and all the villagers were mourning the passing of this great man. As Jesus saw how sad they were, and how much they loved and missed Lazarus, it moved Him to tears. It's the shortest verse in the Bible, but it is packed with insight about God: "Jesus wept." (John 11:35) He didn't just get a little misty-eyed. He wept.

Jesus was about to perform His greatest miracle to date: He was going to raise Lazarus from the dead. You would think He would just shake His head, smile, and tell them, “Quit crying. Cheer up. Don’t be sad. I’m going to do a miracle!” But He didn’t. Instead, His emotions got the best of Him because He tapped into the deep heartache everyone present felt. You see, death wasn’t supposed to be part of our experience when God created us. The Bible says that God set eternity in our hearts (Ecclesiastes 3:11), which makes the seeming finality of death so strange and unnatural to us. Jesus wasn’t crying because He too missed Lazarus. He was grieving because all Lazarus’ friends were experiencing something that never should have touched them: death.

Jesus wanted Martha to believe something about Him: not simply that He was able to raise her brother from the dead, but that He Himself was the resurrection, and the giver of life. He wanted her to understand that He was the one sent from God to banish death once and for all, and to swing open the doors of heaven so that anyone who wanted could enter! He said to her:

I am the resurrection and the life; the one who believes in Me will live even if he dies, and everyone who lives and believes in Me will never die. Do you believe this? (John 11:25,26)

This day was going to be an amazing day – a man was going to come back from the dead! But Jesus knew that one day He would eliminate all suffering and death. What he was going to do for Lazarus was relatively insignificant compared to what He was going to do for all mankind. He didn’t want Martha to see Him only as the raiser-of-my-dead brother. Lazarus was eventually going to die again anyway. He wanted Martha – and all of us – to understand that He was going to eliminate all sorrow, pain, and death, forever.

Mary and Martha had a fervent wish: that their brother would not die. But Jesus allowed Lazarus to die so that He could give them something far greater than reversing the sickness in Lazarus’ body. He wanted them to see Him as the Lord of life and conqueror of death for the whole world! He grieved deeply with them in their sorrow, but He wanted them to understand that eternity without sickness and death is what they really wanted!

There is no doubt that you also have many fervent wishes right now regarding people or things you have lost or are losing. All of these losses are because of the misused free will of either you or evil people who don’t care about you, and these choices will bring negative consequences. God must allow those losses to occur – and it makes Him weep. But He also knows what He’s going to do about it before too long. And He hopes that you will continue to believe in Him, and trust Him through this difficult time, just as Mary and Martha did. Martha’s response to Jesus – even before He had raised her brother from the dead (John 11:27 NIV):

Yes, Lord, I believe that you are the Messiah, the Son of God, who is to come into the world.

3. God is an expert at bringing good out of bad.

Romans 8:28 says, “We know that God causes all things to work together for good to those who love God, to those who are called according to His purpose.” Please note that this scripture doesn’t say that every element will be good, but after everything is finished, it will be good.

It's like when you bake a cake. Not every ingredient tastes good. Imagine taking a mouthful of flour or baking soda, swallowing a raw egg, or drinking a glass of vegetable oil. But when all the ingredients are mixed properly and baked in an oven, the finished product is very good.

A person might ask, "How can God bring GOOD out of the unspeakable BAD of war?" We're not trying to minimize or marginalize your personal suffering. We understand how horrendous it is. And we're not saying that God condones or desires war. Nevertheless, He can bring good out of it. How?

- He can use wars to reconfigure world powers, eliminating aggressive, evil regimes. (Example: Nazi Germany and Imperial Japan in World War II).
- He can use the difficulties of war to strengthen individuals. The only way for a person to gain strength is through adversity. (Example: if an athlete wants to make a muscle stronger, he must put a load on it; if he does nothing, it will only get weaker.)
- He can cause people to grow in kindness, compassion, unity, and love within a group of oppressed people that pull together to help each other (example: most Armenians willing to sacrifice greatly for each other during this current war).
- He can use the seeming hopelessness of war to turn people's eyes to Him, increasing their faith and deepening their relationship with Him ("The Lord is near to the brokenhearted and saves those who are crushed in spirit." Psalm 34:18). As King David wrote after experiencing great adversity: "It is good for me that I was afflicted, so that I may learn Your statutes." (Psalm 119:71)
- He can use the severe challenges of war to help people become who they were meant to be (many examples: school teachers and office workers transformed into heroic soldiers fighting for their country; Ukrainian wives, mothers, and grandmothers courageously and sacrificially protecting their families at great personal expense).

But all of this comes at a terrible price. It's not God who requires this price – it's due to a set of catastrophic conditions that evil men have instigated by the misuse of their free will. But since the atrocities and afflictions of this fallen world are going to happen anyway, God factors it all in and – in the midst of the chaos – creates new life, new strength, new goodness.

Think of the example of Joseph in Genesis 37-50. From the time he was a boy, he suffered one undeserved difficulty after another at the hands of his brothers and various government officials because of the misuse of their free will. He was thrown in a pit by his older brothers and left for dead, then sold into slavery to Egypt. He was falsely accused of rape, imprisoned for years, and forgotten by fellow inmates after he helped them get free. But eventually – after Joseph had given Pharaoh God's interpretation of a dream he had – he was released, appointed as the second most powerful man on earth, saved most of the world from a devastating famine, and brought his estranged family from Canaan to Egypt, where they prospered. This chapter's opening verse is what Joseph said to his malicious brothers after all this had happened: "You meant evil against me, but God meant it for good." (Genesis 50:20)

God knew way in advance what Joseph's brothers were going to do to him, but He also knew how He was going to bring great good for Joseph and even for the rest of the world despite those sinful actions.

4. God does not want anyone to suffer, but He has eternity in mind.

He cares so much about your suffering that He chose to suffer for you, not only to help you today, but so that eventually you could spend eternity with Him in a world without suffering.

This “eternal perspective” can give us the hope and energy to go on despite the great hardships we experience. The Apostle Paul was very familiar with personal suffering. Because of his commitment to Christ, he had been imprisoned, beaten, flogged, and whipped countless times, stoned and left for dead, shipwrecked three times, and subject to untold danger and pressure from many different directions for years. And yet, when he compared the adversity of his life with what he was going to experience in eternity, here's what he said:

For our light, momentary affliction (this slight distress of the passing hour) is ever more and more abundantly preparing and producing and achieving for us an everlasting weight of glory [beyond all measure, excessively surpassing all comparisons and all calculations, a vast and transcendent glory and blessedness never to cease!], since we consider and look not to the things that are seen but to the things that are unseen; for the things that are visible are temporal (brief and fleeting), but the things that are invisible are deathless and everlasting.
(2 Corinthians 4:17,18 AMPC)

So even though God loves us and does not want anyone to suffer, He obviously allows it – even among those we think would be His “favorites.” Every believer in the Bible suffered, including Jesus Christ. And in each case, we see that their suffering was not the final word. It was a means to a great and glorious end:

And after you have suffered a little while, the God of all grace Who has called you to His own eternal glory in Christ Jesus, will Himself complete and make you what you ought to be, establish and ground you securely, and strengthen, and settle you. (1 Peter 5:10 AMPC)

According to Jesus, the goal of our existence isn't a nice, happy, pain-free life on Earth. It's relationship with Him for eternity. As Jesus prayed to His Father in John 17:3, “This is eternal life, that they know You, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom You have sent.”

Your choice is whether to experience life in a very imperfect world in relationship with a perfect God who loves you and wants to care for you during great adversity, or experience life and all of its adversity without Him.

The Take-Away

God has said in His Word that He will never leave you or forsake you (Hebrews 13:5). This is a settled fact that you can count on. Despite the afflictions and devastation you may be experiencing at the moment, know that you are not alone, and that God has plans to use all of it for your good eventually. May God give you the strength, resilience, and faith to be patient with the process He has you in.

Prayer

Father, I feel surrounded by so much evil. I've fled from it as best I could, but it still seems very present, even here. As Jesus taught us to pray, "Deliver us from evil." I know that on my own, I am no match for my spiritual enemy, Satan. But I also know that with You beside me, Satan is no match for you and me together! Help me to sense Your mighty presence. Help me to fight in the ways you have taught me in your word. Help me to keep my spiritual armor on. Help me to see You bring good out of all the evil that has come upon me. And give me the confidence to know that You and I WILL be victorious in the midst of this fallen world!

In Jesus' name I pray, amen.

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 2

Facing Fear with Faith

By Marshele Carter & Chris Adsit

For God has not given us a spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind. (2 Timothy 1:7 NKJV)

Julia's Story (Not her real name)

For Julia and Aleksandr, tensions between Armenia and Azerbaijan have made them anxious for decades. But they tried to live as normal a life as possible anyway. They got married, moved into a flat in Stepanakert, and started a family. But September 27, 2020, changed everything for them and for everyone they love. Sirens and explosions heralded Azerbaijan's invasion. For several days and nights they and their children hid in their home. Jets and missiles roared over the city, shaking their building. Explosions followed a few seconds later, jolting their bodies and spiking their fear. They soon moved to a bomb shelter beneath the city. While the sounds of war echoed above them, Julia avoided the dark, terror-filled eyes of her children and those around her. In the black of night, she could only lay still, hold her children close, and pray for God to protect them for one more day. As conditions worsened, Julia and Aleksandr made the difficult decision that she should leave Stepanakert and take their children west to Armenian territory.

They were forced to leave everything behind, but somehow, Julia's fears followed her to Yerevan. She wrestles with severe anxieties day and night. She worries about Aleksandr, who is serving on the frontlines. She watches her children play quietly. She knows they are afraid, too, no matter how hard she tries to protect them from the constant uncertainties and horrifying headlines. She waits anxiously for her husband's calls, sometimes hearing nothing from him for many days.

She worries about her father and several older relatives who chose to stay behind in Stepanakert. Immobile and in need of protection, they are in worse danger than ever. But now, there is little to zero chance for them to leave the city. She fears they will not be able to get the food and medicine they need. She has no way of knowing how they are because there is no phone connection for them.

Her fears surround her, baring their teeth at her like a pack of hungry wolves. Her anxiety feels paralyzing. The war has brought devastation, death, and now, this unshakable fear of what tomorrow might bring.

Fear Defined and Disarmed

Call it worry. Call it concern. Call it cowardice, paranoia, PMS, nerves, anxiety. Whatever the label, these doubts boil down to a defeating spirit of fear. We are a prime target for this crippling spirit. The more we dwell on our list of fears, the longer and more entwined the list grows.

God understands our tendency to revert to fear. He understands our short-term capacity to remember His Word, because He repeats Himself numerous times on the matter! The terms “fear” or “afraid” are used at least 524 times in Scripture, including the fear of God and the fear of man. Some of the first recorded words of Adam are “I was afraid... so I hid.” (Genesis 3:10). The world was pristine and fresh when fear won first place in the destructive emotions we humans would experience. It is no coincidence that some of the last recorded words of the Lord Jesus are, “Do not be afraid...” (Revelation 1:17). Between Genesis and Revelation, God says, “Do not be afraid” 44 times and “Do not fear” 60 times! More than 100 times He reminds us to fear nothing but Him.

The dictionary defines fear as “anxiety caused by real or possible danger or pain.” Fear is a deceptive and lethal weapon often used by our enemy, the devil. He carries a quiver full of flaming arrows. Their tips are laced with paralyzing poison. There is good news though! The “Department of Divine Defense” has issued a tried-and-true counter-weapon to protect against Satan’s arrows of anxiety. It is the shield of faith. God says,

Take up the shield of faith, with which you can extinguish all the flaming arrows of the evil one.” (Ephesians 6:16 NIV)

We are self-defensive by nature and design. We all carry a shield of some sort. Yet, each of them is full of weak spots and gaping holes that bare our soft underbellies to the enemy...all but one shield—the shield of faith. There is room on our arm for only one shield. We must choose wisely which shield we will use.

A Worthy War to Wage

Keeping the faith can be a real struggle. The Apostle Paul told his young disciple Timothy to “fight the good fight of faith” (1 Timothy 6:12). This tells us that facing and overcoming fear will involve a fight, but it is a worthy war to wage.

When our hearts melt with fear, we can flee to God. We can run into the mighty fortress of His Word, into the strong tower of His Name. The moment we are in His arms, we feel the poison of fear begin to drain from our spiritual veins. God lovingly reminds us...

There is no fear in love. But perfect love drives out fear, because fear has to do with punishment. The one who fears is not made perfect in love. (1 John 4:18 NIV).

His Spirit embraces our spirit and brings us to the point where we can say...

The LORD¹ is my light and my salvation--whom shall I fear? The LORD is the stronghold of my life—of whom shall I be afraid? Though an army besiege me, my heart will not fear; though war break out against me, even then will I be confident.

¹ Whenever you see the word LORD or GOD (all capitalized) in scripture, that is a translation of the sacred name of God: “YHWH.” In Exodus 3:13-15, God appeared in person to Moses, and commanded him to lead the people of Israel out of Egypt. Moses asked God what His name was, so he could report back to the leaders of Israel. God answered “I AM WHO I AM.” And He said, “Thus you shall say to the children of Israel, ‘I AM has sent me to you.’” That name became so sacred to the Israelites that they wouldn’t even speak it or write it. So they used the four letters YHWH whenever they needed to write His name. Eventually, no one knew the exact pronunciation of this word. In later centuries Jewish scholars added the vowels from “Adonai” (Hebrew for Lord) between the four letters and came up with “Yahweh.” There are actually more than 80 names for God in the Bible (such as Adonai, Elohim, El Elyon, El Roi, El Shaddai, etc.) But YHWH is His most personal and sacred name. Therefore, whenever it appears in scripture it is written in all capital letters, so we’ll know it’s being used.

(Psalm 27:1,3 NIV).

And again...

God is our refuge and strength, an ever-present help in trouble. Therefore, we will not fear, though the earth give way and the mountains fall into the heart of the sea, though its waters roar and foam and the mountains quake with their surging.
(Psalm 46:1-3 NIV).

In the moments of panic, we can take inventory of our weapons, remember that the almighty God of the universe is our ally right beside us, and thrust the Sword of the Spirit (the word of God) in Satan's face:

I am the God of your father Abraham. Do not be afraid, for I am with you." (Genesis 26:24 NIV).

Do not be afraid; do not be discouraged." (Deuteronomy 1:21 NIV).

Do not be terrified; do not be afraid of them. The LORD your God, who is going before you, will fight for you. (Deuteronomy 1:29, 30 NIV).

When you go to war against your enemies and see horses and chariots and an army greater than yours, do not be afraid of them, because the LORD your God...will be with you. (Deuteronomy 20:1 NIV).

Do not be fainthearted or afraid; do not be terrified or give way to panic before them. For the LORD your God is the one who goes with you to fight for you against your enemies to give you victory. (Deuteronomy 20:3, 4 NIV)

Faith's Fuel: Knowing that God is in Control

In the popular movie "The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel," one of the main characters is Sonny Kapoor, who is the young, optimistic owner of the hotel in India that is central to the plot of the movie. Sonny is always trying to cheer everyone up and helping people see the positive side of whatever difficulty they might be in. He demonstrated the kind of simple, settled confidence that believers should hold when he said to one of his friends in crisis,

"Everything will be alright in the end. And if it's not alright, it's not the end!"

As you observe the challenges you are currently facing, your enemy may be whispering to you, "It's all hopeless. Look at all you've lost. You'll never return to how things are. You don't have the resources to overcome your problems. Life as you know it is over. You have slipped between the fingers of God's hand. Give up. Curse God and die" (as Job's wife counseled him to do when he experienced disaster – Job 2:9).

Hold on to Sonny's perspective – because it is profoundly Biblical! As God's Word tells us:

We know that God causes all things to work together for good to those who love God, to those who are called according to His purpose. (Romans 8:28).

Your life may not be “good” right now. But God’s promise to you is that He is busy working things out right now to make it good! Your “good” is on its way! Wait for it! Expect it!

Think of just a few experiences of faith-filled people in the Bible, and how their confidence in God’s sovereignty helped them to keep moving forward. What if they had given up early, while their “good” was still on the way?

- What if Noah got tired of building the ark at Year 25 of the project, and walked away, finally realizing that what God told him to do was just too crazy?
- What if Abraham became confused about his childless wife when he was 98, and concluded that God was wrong about his offspring being as numerous as the stars?
- What if Jacob, after he fled to the wilderness to escape his brother’s intention to murder him, looked at his dire circumstances and abandoned his faith in God?
- What if Moses at age 75 made plans to spend the rest of his life as an obscure shepherd in the wilderness, since it’s all he’d known for 35 years?
- What if Ruth had fallen into a deep depression after her father and husband died, leaving her destitute in Moab, and became convinced that life was over for her and her mother-in-law Naomi?
- What if childless Hannah, cruelly mocked by her husband’s other wife who had several children, concluded she had no purpose in life, and contemplated suicide?
- What if David had decided to move to Africa, rather than to spend the rest of his days trying to avoid King Saul’s attempts to capture and murder him?
- What if, on the Saturday after Jesus’ disciples had witnessed His crucifixion, they all decided to return to their homes and their former occupations?
- What if Peter, after Herod had started killing the disciples and had thrown Peter into prison, concluded his life was over and questioned his faith in Jesus?
- What if Paul – after numerous imprisonments, beatings, whippings, stonings, shipwrecks, dangers from rivers, robbers, Jews, Gentiles, false brothers, frequently going without food and water, frozen, and boiled² – began wondering if he had chosen the wrong occupation, the wrong faith?

On the contrary, each of them recognized that God was sovereign and in control of their lives, and their faith kept them following God, and put each of them in a perfect position to receive the amazing blessings He had in store for them. As the Bible says about Abraham:

Without becoming weak in faith he contemplated his own body, now as good as dead since he was about a hundred years old, and the deadness of Sarah’s womb; yet, with respect to the promise of God, he did not waver in unbelief but grew strong in faith, giving glory to God, and being fully assured that what God had promised, He was able also to perform. Therefore it was also credited to him as righteousness. (Romans 4:19-22)

² See 2 Corinthians 11:22-28.

The Eternal Perspective Eclipses Fear

The current war with Azerbaijan has brought with it many trials and crises – which are all opportunities to learn to trust and fear only God. You might remember the story of Job in the Bible. He was a godly man who, through no fault of his own, lost almost everything he owned, including his family. But rather than give in to crushing grief, anxiety, and rage toward God, he had this perspective and faith-filled attitude...

“Naked I came from my mother’s womb, and naked I will depart. The LORD gave and LORD has taken away; may the name of the LORD be praised.” (Job 1:21)

Our husband, our children, our health, our home, and our future are gifts from God for this life only. We can learn to let go of all that is dear to us here and commit them to God’s protection. The safest place for our treasures is in God’s hands, not ours.

The number of our days were ordained, determined before even one of them came to be. The amount of danger we face in no way changes God’s sovereignty. In contrast, the dangers serve to keep our wills on the altar as we realize that we can’t control all the forces in our lives, or the future. But God can. When we fully commit our lives to Him, we find it easier to relax and not fear, having faith that He is in control, and that He will cause all things in our lives to work together for good. Things may not be “alright” at the moment – but it’s not the end!

Only God’s presence can guard our hearts, so we rejoice that the Lord is near and remember that He said to not be anxious, fearful or worried about anything! That includes danger, pain, the unknown, things that go bump in the night and even death. He can handle it all FOR US!

Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your requests to God. And the peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.
(Philippians 4:6-7).

As we read in our opening scripture, our brother Paul, inspired by God, wrote, “For God has not given us a spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind.” (2 Timothy 1:7) It is a decision of our will to release all that is dear or unclear to us to God. Each time we do, we sense God’s approval and are comforted. There are times, however, when we cannot find the faith that our circumstances require. We can be reassured that when we are without faith, He is still faithful.

Even when we are too weak to have any faith left, he remains faithful to us and will help us, for he cannot disown us who are part of himself, and he will always carry out his promises to us. (2 Timothy 2:13 TLB)

Jesus alone is “the champion who initiates and perfects our faith.” (Hebrews 12:2 NLT)

Fear flees in the presence of faith. The war has brought fear and death. Jesus offers us hope and life. Only He is our Protector and Mighty Warrior.

The Take-Away

So keep a firm grip on the faith. The suffering won't last forever. It won't be long before this generous God who has great plans for us in Christ—eternal and glorious plans they are! —will have you put together and on your feet for good. He gets the last word; yes, He does! (1 Peter 5:10 MSG)

Prayer

Lord Jesus, these are very dark days. Life as we knew it has been destroyed. Lord, in the dark days that followed your death, Your disciples must also have felt that all was destroyed. Their plans and dreams of a bright future with You came crashing down around them in a matter of hours. Their hearts were crushed beneath the weight of Your death. They certainly could not see the way ahead.

You told them in advance that everything would soon be different for them. The familiar would not exist ever again. You told Your friends that the difficulties ahead would demand that they believe Your words, act on Your words, persevere, and overcome. Thank You, Lord, that in their most frightened, isolated times, You showed up. You gave them glimpses and brief conversations with You that renewed their hope and faith.

Lord, I am afraid. Please help me to believe Your words. Help me to trust that You are with us and that You will care for our needs. Help me to believe again that You are good and that you will keep your promises to us. Lord, please calm my heart and mind. Please guard me with Your peace that surpasses all understanding.

In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 3

Family, Friends, and Faraway Places: The Sacrifice of Separation

By Marshéle Carter & Chris Adsit

God sets the lonely in families. (Psalm 68:6 NIV)

Note: This chapter is especially for Armenians who have had to flee their homes for safety. Nevertheless, if you are not a refugee or an Internally Displaced Person, you will also benefit from this chapter as it helps you understand what your fellow homeless Armenians may be dealing with, give you insight as to how you can encourage them, or prepare you for a time when you yourself might have to flee from your home. Even if you have not needed to flee, this chapter will encourage you about the pain of separation you may be feeling regarding those who have had to leave your home, village, or city, due to the war. Spouse? Children? Parents? Friends? Your pain of separation from them is real, but it can be overcome.

Sophia's Story

Sophia lies on her mattress in the makeshift shelter in Masis, scrolling social media sites for any sign of online activity by her family and friends. She is weary from constantly checking her phone for texts, emails or missed calls from them. She has not heard from or about her parents and grandparents, who stayed behind, since she and her children fled westward for safety.

She can't sleep. The silence and separation from loved ones will not let her rest. She opens her photos in her phone to find comfort in the images of the lives they were forced to leave behind forever. She pauses with a photo of her grandmother standing with her son on his 8th birthday a few months before the Azerbaijan invasion. Her grandmother is radiant, smiling and celebrating the day. Sophia has no way of knowing if she has survived the onslaught. She tries to comfort herself with the reminder that her grandparents survived a world war and other battles. She prays that they will survive the present nightmare, too.

And to make matters worse, her relatives in Baku don't believe anything she has shared with them about the realities of the invasion. They dismiss her videos and photos as fabrications and lies. She feels betrayed and abandoned by those across the border who are caught up in the war of misinformation.

She hasn't heard from her husband in over a week. She pulls her sleeping children closer to her and tucks the thin blanket around them and herself. Tears slip down her face onto the pillow. She misses her husband desperately. He and her brother were not allowed to evacuate but stayed put to defend Armenia. She's at a loss, not knowing how to best support them.

The war has ripped her world apart. She is haunted by the constant uncertainty. She fears she will never see her loved ones again. She has never felt so alone.

The reality escapes most of us that our loved ones are not in our hands at all as we presume; however, trials and miles magnify this truth for us who are taken away from friends and family. We must acknowledge God's sovereignty in their lives and entrust them to His care. This is another act of faith that we must be willing to make, as was talked about in the previous chapter. It may not be easy, it may not be logical, it may not be emotionally satisfying. But in the Kingdom of God for a child of God, doing this bring you the peace and confidence that you seek. The apostle Paul said, "Yet I am not ashamed, because I know whom I have believed, and am convinced He is able to guard what I have entrusted to Him for that day." (2 Timothy 1:12) If we can entrust our eternal destiny to God, surely we can believe Him to care for and meet the needs of those we must leave behind.

Leaving, Separation, and God's Plans

When the Lord told Abram, "Leave your country, your people and your father's household and go to the land I will show you" (Genesis 12:1), he promptly obeyed and went in faith, "So Abram left, as the Lord had told him..." (Genesis 12:4) When Jesus called His first disciples, Peter and Andrew, saying, "Follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men." (Matthew 4:19), they pulled their boats ashore, dropped their nets, and left everything to do so. James and John not only left their boat and nets but even left their father behind in order to follow Jesus (Matthew 4:22).

We must also place those we care for, worry about, and love so deeply into His hands. We cannot simultaneously lay down our will and continue to carry around our worries too. Worry, sorrow, and heartache are heavy baggage on the journey Jesus charts for us. All the trials caused by our separations are intended to mature us, strengthen our faith, and make us more like Jesus, not to destroy us.

The comfort in it all is that Jesus knows exactly how we feel. He left His Father in Heaven to come here to Earth. From the instant of holy conception in Mary's womb until He surrendered His spirit on Calvary, Jesus enjoyed only one face-to-face visit with His "family," the Father and the Holy Spirit, on the day of His baptism in the Jordan River (Luke 3:21,22). For 33 years, He worked, persevered, loved, obeyed, and endured all of God's will for His life. Surely, He understands the longing of wanting to go home! Yet He left everything to do God's will – including the One He loved most. I am comforted to know He will never require us to endure anything He hasn't already experienced.

For we do not have a high priest who cannot sympathize with our weaknesses, but One who has been tempted in all things as we are, yet without sin. Therefore let us draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help in time of need. (Hebrews 4:15,16)

God gives that "grace to help in time of need" by providing a "family" for us everywhere we live. As the Bible promises in this chapter's opening verse, "God sets the lonely in families." (Psalm 68:6). Mothers, fathers, brothers and sisters in the faith are miraculously and beautifully interwoven into the fabric of our lives. They are there for you even in exile – if you will only look for them!

Though our earthly families are priceless to us, they are temporary. Only God's family is our true and lasting family. Jesus said,

"Who is My mother and who are My brothers?" And stretching out His hand toward His disciples, He said, "Behold My mother and My brothers! For whoever does the will of My Father who is in heaven, he is My brother and sister and mother."
(Matthew 12:48-50)

It's comforting to know that He has a grand family reunion scheduled. The homecoming will not be cut short, interrupted, or delayed by anything, but will be only the start of an unending celebration.

Living in a Parallel Universe

Most importantly, our experiences living away from home either as a foreign refugee or an Internally Displaced Person draws striking parallels to every Christian's challenge as believers living in an unbelieving world. As followers of Jesus Christ, we are no longer citizens of this world, "but our citizenship is in heaven." (Philippians 3:20). We are described as...

...a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, His own special people, that you may proclaim the praises of Him who called you out of darkness into His marvelous light; who once were not a people but are now the people of God...
(1 Peter 2:9,10 NKJV)

We are foreigners on Earth! All of us who are in Christ are only passing through this place. As one philosopher has said, "We are not human beings having a spiritual experience. We are spiritual beings having a human experience."³ In everything we say and do, we represent our homeland, which is Heaven, the place where God Almighty is enthroned, where our citizenship is recorded permanently and where our Savior is currently putting the finishing touches on the place He has prepared just for us.

"We are therefore Christ's ambassadors" (2 Corinthians 5:20) wherever we go. The English word "ambassador" is from the Latin word ambactus, meaning "servant." As servants of the Lord Jesus...

- We have been carefully selected before creation (Ephesians 1:4)
- We are dearly loved (Ephesians 5:1)
- We are held in high esteem by our King (Luke 12:7)
- We live as aliens in a foreign land called Earth (1 Peter 2:11)
- We represent the nation – God's kingdom – called "Holy" (1 Peter 2:9)
- We are the forward deployed spokespersons for the government of the King of kings, representing His limitless authority (Matthew 28:18-20)!

³ Quote from the French philosopher, theologian, and paleontologist Pierre Teilhard de Chardin.

Being In the Minority Doesn't Mean You Are Alone

If we are refugees fleeing the war, we are in the minority wherever we find ourselves. Our strength doesn't lie in numbers any longer. This means the next-door neighbors, the store owners we do business with, and the children our kids play with are often of different backgrounds, races, nationality, customs, and language. We feel that we are the oddity. Every conversation and every transaction is a draining cultural and linguistic challenge. Frustrations mount. Loneliness creeps into many days, weeks, and months.

The same happens to Christians who are brave enough to live and to work in the world and who choose not to be of it. We are tempted to think that we are alone, that we are the only one left who loves God and lives to serve Him. At a very low point in the prophet Elijah's life, he, too, felt very alone. "I am the only one left," he told God, "and now they are trying to kill me, too." (1 Kings 19:14). Elijah was not truly alone because God was standing right there with him. God had great news for Elijah in that lonely moment, "Yet, I reserve seven thousand in Israel – all whose knees have not bowed down to Baal and all whose mouths have not kissed him." (1 Kings 19:18).

God has promised that even as the minority we will never be alone. Jesus said, "And surely I am with you always, to the very end of the age." (Matthew 28:20). We are mistaken when we conclude that we are the only one left who is devoted to God. Down through the centuries, God has always preserved a group of believers called a "remnant." He knows we need folks of like-faith and like-mind. He knows we need the encouragement and refreshment that come from relationships with other believers. These believers are in every nation of the world. We can pray to find and link up with other believers. God will orchestrate it in His perfect measure of time. Interestingly, it was right after Elijah's lowest, loneliest moment that God brought Elisha into his life, a man who became his successor and his "son" in the Lord (2 Kings 2). As long as God is in it, our lowest, loneliest points can be the prelude to a great, big blessing. Remember this when you feel outnumbered and lonely! As we noted in chapter 2, God works all things out for good to them that love Him. Our "good" is coming, and it may be just around the next bend in the road!

Fighting Lonely Feelings with God's Word

Our emotions, our spiritual enemy, and our human logic may taunt us, trying to make us conclude that we are alone, isolated, and separated from both God and friends. But this is not true. Down through the centuries people of faith have relied on what God has told us in His word about His constant companionship. When they have felt alone and afraid, they turn to God because they know He will bring them the comfort, encouragement, and safety of His Spirit.

- And I will pray the Father, and He will give you another Helper, that He may abide with you forever—the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it neither sees Him nor knows Him; but you know Him, for He dwells with you and will be in you. I will not leave you orphans; I will come to you. (John 14:16-18 NKJV)
- Turn to me and be gracious to me, for I am lonely and afflicted. Relieve the troubles of my heart and free me from my anguish. (Psalm 25:16,17 NIV)
- "For the mountains may be removed and the hills may shake, but My favor will not be removed from you, nor will My covenant of peace be shaken," says the LORD who has compassion on you. (Isaiah 54:10)

- For I am the LORD your God who takes hold of your right hand and says to you, “Do not fear; I will help you.” (Isaiah 41:13 NIV)
- Be strong and courageous, do not be afraid or in dread of them, for the LORD your God is the One who is going with you. He will not desert you or abandon you. (Deuteronomy 31:6)
- He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds. (Psalm 147:3)
- I remember my affliction and my wandering, the bitterness and the gall. I well remember them, and my soul is downcast within me. Yet this I call to mind and therefore I have hope: because of the LORD’s great love we are not consumed, for his compassions never fail. They are new every morning; great is your faithfulness. I say to myself, “The LORD is my portion; therefore I will wait for him.” (Lamentations 3:19-24 NIV)

Keep the Home Fires Burning in Your Children’s Hearts

If you have had to flee your home because of the war, and are currently living in temporary quarters either in Armenia or in some other country, it’s important to remind your children often of our homeland and where your loyalties lie, no matter where you live. Likewise, as Christians, we have the God-given responsibility to our children of passing on knowledge of our Heavenly home, Who lives there, and exactly how to get there. We are entrusted with the stewardship of modeling our Heavenly homeland’s ways and customs for our children to learn and to imitate. We are also commanded to introduce them to Jesus, so they can have personal knowledge of and lifelong rapport with Him. When it’s time for them to go “home,” they will wrestle with fewer fears of the unknown and the unfamiliar.

Homesickness Is a Good Sign

Homesickness is inevitable when living in a foreign land, but it’s a good thing. It’s evidence that our hearts are somewhere else – back home. The same is true for us who are not “at home” in this world. The longer we walk with God and the more we think about His Word and His ways, and spend time talking with Him, we will have an increasing desire to be where He is.

Travel Light. You’re Just Passing Through

Every autumn, the Jews celebrate the giving of the Mosaic Law and God’s faithfulness to them during their 40 years of wilderness survival in the desert. Every Jewish family, hotel, and restaurant builds “sukkot,” which are outdoor booths, tents, or shelters, under which the people eat all their meals for eight days. This is why this celebration is called “Sukkot” or “The Feast of Tabernacles.” It reminds them of God’s provision during their forefathers’ homelessness and scarcity of water and food in the desert.

Christians believe that Jesus Christ is the fulfillment of the Feast of Tabernacles. He “tabernacled” with us and was the “tent” of God’s presence among us for 33 years. He “passed through” on His way to the cross and taught us to trust God’s provision as we follow Him.

All the emphasis on treks and temporary shelters during this celebration underscores the truth that we, too, are just passing through here. We, too, are destined for a Promised Land: our eternal home in Heaven. We are to travel light, partnered with Christ until we arrive safely home.

Hold Hands and Stick Together

Refugees and outsiders in general learn to form meaningful friendships quickly. There is no time to waste. We need each other. Pride and pettiness fall by the wayside, and we get on with the business of being good neighbors. Most differences dissipate and lose their power to divide people who are facing similar challenges.

The same should be true of any community of believers. We are in this thing together. Our time here on earth is brief, and we need each other. There is no room for grumbling, or guarding our pride. Instead, we should get on with the business of being good neighbors to each other.

The Take-Away

We are not of this world any more than Jesus was of this world. We are strategically placed here, protected from the evil one, set apart by the truth and sent by Christ Himself into the world to live and speak that truth (John 17:14-18) wherever we live...

Blessed is the man whose strength is in You,
Whose heart is set on pilgrimage.
As they pass through the Valley of Baca [bitterness and mourning]
They make it a spring;
The rain also covers it with pools.
They go from strength to strength;
Each one appears before God in Zion. (Psalm 84:5-7 NKJV)

Prayer

Lord, thank You that you were with us when we took shelter. Thank you for watching over us. You were with us, going ahead of us and alongside us, as we made our way to safety. You are with us now, too. Thank You that you've promised never to leave us or abandon us. Thank You that You've promised to provide for our every need every day.

Lord, thank You that You are here with us in this unfamiliar place, surrounded by people we don't know, unsure of what lies ahead. You know how we long in our hearts to return home and to see the ones we love and miss so deeply. Thank You that You will care for them and for us through it all. Thank You that have plans for us, plans to help us and not to harm us, plans to give us hope and a future.

Stay close to us. Help us to find comfort and strength to face each moment. Help us to stay close to You. Thank You that we are never truly alone because You are always with us. You were with us in our hiding places. You are with us now in this place. You will never leave us.

In Jesus' name I pray, Amen.

*Portions of this chapter were adapted from Hope for the Home Front by Marshéle Carter.

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 4

Dealing With True & False Guilt

By Chris Adsit

Therefore there is now no condemnation at all for those who are in Christ Jesus.
(Romans 8:1)

Karine's story

It was Sunday morning. I really wanted to sleep late. But something woke me up suddenly. At first my husband and I thought it was just firecrackers as we laid there listening in silence. But then we both realized that no! It was gunshots!

We jumped out of bed and ran down the hall to where our children were sleeping. It wasn't easy to wake them up – and they certainly did not understand what was happening.

"Quick! You must get up!" I spoke in a panicked whisper. "Get dressed! We are going to Grandpa's house!"

"Right now?" sleepy little Mary asked. "I want breakfast! It's too cold!"

"No – we have to go right now!"

It's strange that in this moment of crisis, I was thinking about the wet slippers I had put on. I had washed them yesterday, and they still weren't dry. It's like my mind was trying to think about anything but the horror that had just entered our city.

We ran to my father's house which was just down the street. He had a cellar that would provide some relative safety for us.

Later, when the gunshots had ceased, my husband was called to come in to work. I took the children back home and gathered warm clothes for them. Then I was called back to my job too. In the meantime, my mother called and urged me to let my brother take our children to a safer place out of the city. I went back to our house to meet my brother and talk with our children. I was torn. Should I stay here, or go with my children? I finally decided to stay, and urged my eldest daughter to take care of little Mary. I told them we would follow them soon – but we couldn't.

Two months later, because our jobs were so crucial, we were still stuck in our town. My husband was half-broken with me and kept telling me to go join the children. But I thought that if I left, I would be betraying him, my parents, and the others who depended on my work. I had already betrayed my children by not going with them. They were small. They needed me. But I left them alone. And what about our friends who took our children in? They must be such a burden for them. It seemed that, no matter what I decided, it would be wrong. I felt horrible.

These are the anguished words of so many Armenian women right now. As humans, we have all been hard-wired to feel guilt and shame when we think we have made a wrong choice that may have hurt others. However, there is an important difference between the two.

Guilt is feeling bad about something we have done, or not done.

Shame is feeling bad about who we are.

Feelings of guilt can actually be a good thing. When we violate our own sense of right and wrong, something inside us lets us know about it. Many of us think it is God, who has written His standards on our hearts. We call this our “conscience” (see Romans 1:19,20; John 16:7-11). If we followed our consciences perfectly, we would be obeying all of God’s commandments. God gave us our consciences and His laws because He loves us. He wants to let us know what’s good for us, what’s bad for us, and where the boundaries are. They are like the rough sand and gravel at the edge of a highway – letting us know when we’re drifting off the road and heading for danger.

However, as mentioned in Chapter 1 we all have free will. And from time to time we decide it would be in our best interest to disobey both our conscience and God’s laws and explore the territory off the pavement. It always turns out bad, and our sense of guilt ramps up.

But guilt that is unaddressed will eventually turn into shame. What we did becomes internalized and begins to define who we are in harmful ways. We begin to consider ourselves inferior, incompetent, and not worthy of anyone’s love, forgiveness, or respect. We feel vulnerable and full of self-doubt. Our self-assessment becomes: “I am a defective person.” This leads to depression and despair. We might even redirect our shame as anger, frustration, and accusations toward others – even to those who are trying to help us.

This is why it’s so important to take the initiative and deal with the guilt we feel, rather than to try to ignore it and let it turn into shame.

In Karine’s story above, do you think she did anything wrong? Did she make any “sinful” choices that would be in opposition to the laws of God? Most of us wouldn’t think so. She had to make some very difficult decisions between options that would be hard on herself and her family. It’s not like she was choosing between vacation destinations. This was life and death, wrapped in uncertainty, with no clear indication if her choices were going to turn out good or bad.

This highlights a very important distinction: there is a difference between “false guilt” and “true guilt.” As Valorie Burton wrote, “True guilt is a Spiritual Guide. False guilt is a Spiritual Detour.”

Let’s look at them separately and learn what we should do about them.

False Guilt

When we feel guilty about a choice we’ve made, and yet we have not violated any laws of God, this is false guilt.

Guilt (true or false) says to us, “You’ve done something wrong.” But the question we must ask in return is, “Says who?”

The source of our sense of guilt is very important to know. It will be a clear indicator of its truth or falsity. Here are the three potential sources of false guilt...

1. Ourselves. Many people have overactive consciences that will condemn them for things they actually had no control over. It is the result of an unhealthy self-preoccupation rooted in unrealistic expectations about what we should be able to do. Sometimes it is the result of fear that we might have made the wrong choice. We reproach ourselves because we could not see the future and control all the variables.

This is a problem for many high-achievers. They set impossibly high standards for themselves and when they can't measure up, they feel like failures. "I'm not good enough. I'm a fraud. People will find out what a loser I am."

This may have been Karine's problem. Was it realistic for her to think that she could take her children to safety – a good choice given the probability of war overtaking them – and not have to leave her husband and her parents, not have any negative consequences for her kids, not caused more work for her friends who took her children in? No. But for some reason, she thought it was realistic to think that way, and now she is weighed down by guilt.

2. Others. People can be so cruel. Having no regard for the stress they may be putting on you, they make demands, have expectations, and are ready to condemn you if you don't deliver. If you are a "people-pleaser" you accept those demands and do your best to live up to them. And if you can't, you also accept their condemnation. Fear of disapproval is a strong motivator in many people. "If you have asked me to do this, you must think that I can. I will prove you right! I can do it all!" But when you find that you can't you feel guilty that you have let your friends down, and it adds more damage to your self-esteem.

3. Satan. The enemy of our souls will work in concert with the first two sources mentioned above. He knows our vulnerabilities and our response tendencies. Jesus said that Satan comes only to "steal, kill, and destroy" (John 10:10). He wants to steal your joy, kill your dreams, and destroy your identity as a beloved and totally accepted child of God, and he will use false guilt to do it.

He is called "the accuser of our brothers and sisters" in the Bible (Revelation 12:10). Satan's very name is Hebrew for "accuser, adversary, or slanderer." He will use your own voice in your head and the voices of others to accuse you of failure, poor judgment, and incompetence. And his indictment won't be logical or fact-based, it will be emotional. He will make you think, "I feel guilty, so I must be guilty."

Examples of False Guilt:

- Guilt over fight/flight/freeze response. "I always thought I was so brave. But when the soldiers came to our building, I just panicked and ran away! I should have done something!"
- Competency Guilt. "If only I had thought of all the contingencies. If only I had been smarter, and put it all together quicker in my mind, my family wouldn't have suffered."
- Lose/Lose Guilt. "If I had taken time to find transportation for our elderly neighbor, it would have slowed down my family's escape. But who else could she depend on? I know our area was bombed shortly after that, and my family could have all been killed. But what about my neighbor? Is she dead or alive? If only I could have helped her too. How do I live with myself if she was killed?”

- Helplessness Guilt. “We have no income, no home, only the clothes on our back, and one suitcase. I have to provide for my kids – but I’m doing a terrible job of it! If only I had saved more money or had more time to prepare.”
- Role and Responsibility Guilt. “It was my job to get my family to safety. But the soldiers stormed our building so fast, and I couldn’t find my daughter. She was raped. I failed to do my job. It’s my fault this happened to her.”
- Survivor’s Guilt. “Why did I survive when others died?” “My friends in the east have no electricity, no water, no food. I and my family are safe and well-supplied here in Romania. But I feel terrible because my friends are suffering.”
- Survivor’s Euphoria Guilt. “I feel ashamed about it, but I can’t help thinking, ‘I’m so glad I didn’t get killed.’ How can I feel good when others died?”

In each case listed above, there is no guilt as far as God and His laws are concerned, and no moral factor in any of the decisions that were made. In each case, the feeling of guilt was based on a false premise.

- You can’t punish yourself over your flight/fight/freeze response. God has given us a set of very focused reactions that activate when we are threatened with bodily harm or death in order to keep us alive. We can’t control these responses – they are involuntary, like breathing or heart function. They are uncontrollable reflexes. They’re not moral choices that you should be judged for – either by others or by yourself.
- The “if onlys” of Competency, Lose/Lose, and Helplessness Guilt are irrelevant. In hindsight we may be able to see other options, but in the moment of crisis you can’t see them all. You did your best, and no one – reacting at that moment and under those conditions – could have done any better. You could wish that some magical solution would have presented itself in the middle of it all, but it didn’t. That’s reality – not your fault!
- Leaders and parents simply can’t protect everyone they oversee at every moment - especially not in the chaos of war. The potential for disaster surrounds them all the time. Multiply that by all the variables in the environment, the will of the enemy, and the will of those they are “responsible” for, and you can see the impossibility of guaranteeing safety for all. You are not God, that you could control all of those factors simultaneously.
- You shouldn’t feel blame because you survived while others didn’t – you had nothing to do with that. There’s no way you could have controlled all the conditions surrounding your traumatic events, or the disastrous experiences of your friends or family. And any euphoria you feel because you escaped tragedy is an involuntary function of your lower brain. It is not due to a lack of compassion or love for those who suffered.

In all of these cases, it’s normal to feel sad, angry, and frustrated about how things turned out. But don’t turn that emotion in on yourself. You aren’t at fault for those very unfair and unfortunate events. Remember that you have a spiritual enemy who will try to manipulate the memories of those disasters in order to weaken and destroy you.

How Can You Survive the Ruthless Attacks of False Guilt?

Faith. If you believe your guilt feelings prove that you are bad or unworthy, the enemy is winning. Your self-condemnation will keep you from gaining wisdom from your experiences and hinder you from turning your pain into purpose. Instead, you'll see guilt as proof you have no purpose.

Recognize God's sovereignty in your life. The fact that you survived a disaster should tell you that there is a reason you survived. Find that reason. Look forward, not backwards. You are so valuable to God and to those around you. You survived in order to help others and to be a blessing to them. Understand that you are not perfect, all-knowing, and some kind of Superwoman. But you are stronger than you think, resourceful, and God is making you more resilient through these negative experiences. Use what He has built into you for the good of others.

Start visualizing and talking about a positive future. This is the essence of faith. Focus on positive possibilities. It will increase the likelihood that what you hope for will become real. As the Bible says in Hebrews 11:1 (TLB):

What is faith? It is the confident assurance that something we want is going to happen. It is the certainty that what we hope for is waiting for us, even though we cannot see it up ahead.

Facts. Remember that God loves you. His strongest desire is to help you, not to harm you. You might be thinking, "Oh, but you don't know the things I've done." It doesn't matter. If you have given your life to Christ, the fact is you are loved, forgiven, and accepted! As the Bible says in Romans 8:33-39 (TLB):

Who dares accuse us whom God has chosen for His own? Will God? No! He is the one who has forgiven us and given us right standing with Himself. Who then will condemn us? Will Christ? No! For He is the one who died for us and came back to life again for us and is sitting at the place of highest honor next to God, pleading for us there in heaven. Who then can ever keep Christ's love from us? When we have trouble or calamity, when we are hunted down or destroyed, is it because He doesn't love us anymore? And if we are hungry or penniless or in danger or threatened with death, has God deserted us?

No, for the Scriptures tell us that for His sake we must be ready to face death at every moment of the day—we are like sheep awaiting slaughter; but despite all this, overwhelming victory is ours through Christ who loved us enough to die for us. For I am convinced that nothing can ever separate us from His love. Death can't, and life can't. The angels won't, and all the powers of hell itself cannot keep God's love away. Our fears for today, our worries about tomorrow, or where we are—high above the sky, or in the deepest ocean—nothing will ever be able to separate us from the love of God demonstrated by our Lord Jesus Christ when He died for us.

Change your inner dialogue. Listen to how you talk to yourself. Rehearsing and repeating self-blame is the biggest barrier to feeling inner peace. We are often our own worst critics. Shut down the conversation when you start hearing those criticisms! Start giving yourself some good news! Leave the past in the past. Learn from your mistakes and move on. As Nelson Mandela once said, “I never lose. I either win or I learn.” And as the Apostle Paul wrote, “...this one thing I do: forgetting what lies behind and reaching forward to what lies ahead, I press on...” (Philippians 3:13).

Ask God for help. When you recognize how false guilt is dragging you down, ask God to remove it from you. Keep bringing it before Him in prayer and let Him take that burden off your shoulders. That guilt is not accomplishing anything. God doesn’t mean for you to carry it – and no one else wants you to either. Jesus said, “Come to Me, all who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest.” (Matthew 11:28).

Talk it out. Find someone to share your struggles with. They don’t have to be a professional counselor, just a good listener whom you trust. Talk to them when you’re feeling that toxic false guilt and shame. Hearing your own words is often enough to restore a positive perspective, and hearing your friend’s supportive feedback counteracts the feelings that shame creates.

True Guilt

There is one more potential source of guilt: God – letting us know we’re drifting off His safe highway into dangerous territory. This is when feelings of guilt are a good thing.

The Bible tells us that “All have sinned and fall short of the glory of God.” (Romans 3:23). This isn’t talking about the fake sins listed above. It is describing a foundational characteristic of every human. We have all said no to God – multiple times – and disobeyed what we knew He wanted us to do. And the trend continues.

So if you feel like this sometimes – guilty – welcome to the human race!

What is God’s objective in giving us these feelings of guilt when we violate His laws?

Godly sorrow brings repentance that leads to salvation and leaves no regret, but worldly sorrow brings death. (2 Corinthians 7:10)

While false guilt does nothing but shove us toward depression, despair and death, true guilt brings us to a place of recognizing our disobedience, prompts us to take action to change, and delivers us to a safe and blessed place. No one regrets that!

What Should We Do When We Sense True Guilt?

1. Confess. The word “confess” comes from Greek (the language in which most of the New Testament was written) and means “to say the same thing as.” When God points out that you have done something wrong, such as, “Lia, you stole that money,” you confess by saying the same thing: “Yes, it’s true. I stole that money and I agree it was wrong. Please forgive me.” The Bible gives us a great promise concerning this:

If we confess our sins, He is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. (1 John 1:9)

2. Repent. This word also comes from Greek and means “to turn around and go the other direction.” While “confess” has to do with action that takes place in the spiritual realm between you and God, “repent” refers to action that needs to take place in this dimension. It’s not enough to tell God, “Oops, sorry. I blew it. Forgive me,” and then repeat the same act again and again. That’s not true confession anyway, because if you were really agreeing with God that it was wrong, you would at least try to stop doing it.

Bottom line: God is not merely looking for your agreement with Him about your sins. He’s interested in changed action. Your actions will validate your intentions. When this happens, it clears the way for God to bring His healing to you unhindered. To repent may even mean that you need to provide restitution for the sin you committed. To show true repentance, Lia needs to give back the money she stole.

The guilt feelings may or may not lift immediately, and you may not experience victory over your sin right away. Strong habits are hard to break, and it may take some time. But don’t give up! Notice how Jesus directed us to be persistent in bringing our requests to God:

“So I say to you, ask and keep on asking, and it will be given to you; seek and keep on seeking, and you will find; knock and keep on knocking, and the door will be opened to you.” (Luke 11:9 AMP)

The Take-Away

We all experience guilty feelings from time to time. Rather than ignore them, and simply hope they go away, first ask God to help you know if those feelings are false guilt or true guilt. Then deal with them accordingly, either by countering the deceptive attacks of false guilt with faith, facts, etc, or responding to true guilt through confession and repentance. Letting those feelings remain buried and unaddressed will result in worse consequences later on. As the opening verse of this chapter says, God no longer condemns you if you belong to Him. So if you’re feeling condemned, check the source!

Prayer

Father, please give me discernment between true and false guilt as they enter my mind. When I have truly done wrong, I welcome your gentle (or even not-so-gentle) correction, because I want to show my love for You through my obedience. Help me to recognize your conviction, and to repent of anything that displeases You. But when my enemy is taking advantage of me and accusing me of actions that were not against Your will, help me to understand and not allow him to ruin my peace. Help me to disregard the voices of my acquaintances when they are wrong about me. And help me to even recognize when I’m telling myself lies about the rightness or wrongness of my actions. I want to be able to hear and respond only to Your loving voice of conviction and correction. Thank You for loving me so much! In Jesus’ name, amen.

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 5

How Has Trauma Impacted Me?

By Chris Adsit

I am overwhelmed with troubles and my life draws near to death. (Psalm 88:3 NIV)

Lia's Story

I have grown up in Nagorno-Karabakh, living most of my life in the city of Shusha. We were a happy family – not without our challenges, but nothing out of the ordinary. My husband had a good job, our kids were doing well in school, and our apartment was comfortable. We had many plans and dreams for the future and expected to live out our lives in peace and relative prosperity. That is, until the Azerbaijani blockade began in 2020.

You need to understand that the things I have experienced over the past few months have been beyond anything I could have imagined even a year ago. These horrible things can't be happening! On September 21, 2023 we had to quickly leave our apartment with only two suitcases – with no assurance that we'd ever be able to come back to it. My husband had to report for duty to maintain security at the border between Armenia and Azerbaijan. Every day I am afraid that he will be killed – THEN what would our family do? As we were trying to escape Shusha, we were shot at by Azerbaijani soldiers, and two artillery shells landed very near us. I felt the explosions and saw the shrapnel and debris landing all around our car. I was terrified that my children and I would be killed.

Now we are in Yerevan – a very nice older couple has taken us into their home, and we are extremely grateful. But I am still very afraid. I am not sleeping much at night – I just can't handle the nightmares. Even though I am hundreds of miles from any fighting, I keep thinking that an Azerbaijani soldier will jump out from behind a parked car or doorway and begin shooting at me! Sometimes when I'm driving, it feels like I'm back on the road through the Lachin corridor, and I start driving crazy – way beyond the speed limit. It terrifies the children.

Why is this happening to me? Why can't I realize I and my kids are safe now, and just get over it?

What this woman is describing is heart-breaking, but common among those who have experienced trauma in the context of an armed conflict – which we refer to as “war-related trauma.” She is reporting a set of symptoms that result from actual or threatened death or serious injury causing an emotional reaction involving intense fear, panic, helplessness, or horror.

What Causes Trauma Reactions?

A psychological shock or any kind of horrific event that makes a person think that they could be severely injured or killed can trigger a trauma reaction. Being in a war will certainly do it, but these reactions can be produced in a number of ways besides war:

- Physical assault; carjacking
- Sexual abuse; rape
- Kidnapping; being held hostage
- Terrorism
- Torture
- Natural disasters (fire, flood, earthquake, avalanche, etc.)
- Man-made disasters (Chernobyl, arson, building or bridge collapse, etc.)
- Severe accident
- Receiving devastating news, such as a diagnosis of a life-threatening illness (for yourself or a loved one)
- Witnessing threatening, mutilating, or deadly events

Trauma reactions can become especially severe or long-lasting when the trauma comes from an intentional human act, rather than from an accident or a natural disaster. In addition, enduring several traumatic events can have a cumulative effect. For instance, if a person was abused as a child, then witnessed a sibling die or was involved in a bad car accident, and then found herself in the middle of a war, it's more likely that person will develop trauma reactions and it could be more severe than others who endure only war-related trauma situations. Psychologists call this "Complex Trauma."

Trauma Spectrum

Two people who experience almost identical traumatic experiences can be affected quite differently. Think of trauma reactions as a spectrum. Where you land on that spectrum is determined by numerous factors, such as your previous life experiences, your psychological and physiological makeup, your personality type, your spiritual convictions (or lack thereof), the intensity and duration of what you experienced, among other issues. What severely impacts one person for a long period of time may have only a passing effect on another.

The "Mild" end of the trauma spectrum may include symptoms such as:

- Difficulties getting back into a "normal" mindset after trauma
- Frustration with spouse, children, friends, new circumstances
- Feeling distracted
- Difficulty focusing on tasks at hand
- Feeling agitated, irritable, jumpy
- Sleep difficulties

At this end of the spectrum, these symptoms don't interrupt a person's lifestyle to any great extent and go away in a few hours or days without much attention or therapy required.

The “Severe” end of the spectrum is much more complicated. It could include symptoms that psychologists classify in four major areas and may persist for weeks, months, even years if not treated:⁴

1. Intrusion (or Re-Experiencing) Symptoms: Memories and images of the traumatic events may spontaneously intrude into your mind, causing intense or prolonged distress or physiological reactions.

- Nightmares
- Sleepwalking, sleep fighting
- Unwanted daytime memories, images, thoughts, daydreams
- Flashbacks, feeling like you are reliving the traumatic event in real time
- Being fixated on the traumatic event; living in the past
- Spontaneous dissociative episodes (the present world seems to vanish, and you are suddenly back in the place of your traumatic experience)
- Panic attacks, undefined distress, dread, or fear

2. Avoidance Symptoms: You try to avoid situations, people or events that remind you of your trauma. You feel numb, emotionless, withdrawing into yourself trying to shut out the painful memories and feelings.

- Intentionally avoiding anyone, any place, or anything that reminds you of the traumatic event
- Physical/emotional reaction to things that remind you of the traumatic event
- Self-isolation, dread of social interaction
- Anxiety in crowds, traffic
- Very reluctant to talk about your traumatic event
- Substance abuse to “numb” yourself (drugs, alcohol, food)

3. Thinking and Mood Alterations: You may be unable to recall key features of the traumatic event; have a very negative self-image and/or world view and strong negative emotions. You may be unable to show appropriate affection and emotions which causes friends and family to feel rejected by you.

- Reduced cognitive ability (slow thinking, confusion, poor problem-solving, poor memory)
- Inability to recall key features of the traumatic event(s)
- Persistent, negative, trauma-related emotions (fear, horror, anger, helplessness, depression, despair, guilt, shame)
- Persistent, negative, distorted self-image (“I am bad.”)
- Persistent, negative, distorted view of the world (“The world is out to get me.”)
- Persistent, distorted blame of self or others for causing the traumatic event(s)

⁴ The four major areas and descriptions are from the American Psychiatric Association’s reference book: The Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders – Text Revision, Fifth Edition (DSM-5-TR); American Psychiatric Association Pub. Inc.; March, 2022; www.APPI.org.

- Lack of interest or motivation regarding employment, recreation, former hobbies, sex, exercise
- Relationships that were once close and even intimate are now strained, cold, distant, requiring too much energy to maintain
- Neglect/abandonment of personal care, hygiene, nutrition
- Emotional numbness, flat, can't get happy or sad, feeling "dead" inside
- Inability to trust others

4. Arousal and Reactivity Alterations: Fearing further trauma, you are always on the alert, jumpy, angry, irritable, and find it very difficult to sleep.

- Anger, irritability, disagreements quickly escalate into hot arguments, shouting, physical fights, rage
- Hypervigilance (always on guard), always feeling like you need to be armed with a knife or gun
- Easily startled, reacting to loud noises, jumpy
- Substance abuse to "un-numb" yourself – you would rather feel "too much" than nothing
- Trouble falling asleep or staying asleep; insomnia; night sweats
- Accelerated heart rate, rapid breathing, heart palpitations for no good reason
- Physical fatigue
- Question/abandon faith; feeling of being betrayed or abandoned by God; mad at God
- Homicidal thoughts
- Suicidal thoughts, attempts
- Anniversary reaction (becoming anxious nearing the monthly or yearly anniversary of the traumatic event)
- Becoming addicted to adrenaline (taking unnecessary risks; dangerous behavior)
- Self-mutilation, cutting, excessive tattooing (just to feel something)

No one has all the symptoms listed above. You may have a few from one category, a few from another, none from another, etc. Every one of us is wired differently, and the symptoms we develop will be a unique mix. Also, it is possible that these symptoms may not show up until months or even years after your traumatic event. This is called "delayed onset."

Just because your trauma reactions are at the "severe" end of the spectrum doesn't mean you are not as strong or brave as others. It's all a matter of physical and psychological responses that you have very little control over.

Disorder or Injury?

Those who experience symptoms at the "Severe" end of the spectrum for more than a month are said to have "Post-traumatic Stress Disorder" (PTSD) by psychologists. However, a growing number of professionals prefer the term "Post-traumatic Stress Injury" (PTSI) – which we agree with. When applying the term "Disorder" to an individual, it implies that he or she merely has a psychological problem – "It's all in your head." Yet it has been known for many years that this condition is more than that. It is true that there are psychological components, but the root cause is actually a biological trauma that affects the nervous system, and therefore affects a person's mindset, behavior, and reactions. There are also spiritual elements that we will be discussing throughout this resource.

Referring to someone as “disordered” can stigmatize them, have a strong negative effect on their self-image, cause others (and themselves) to think they are “broken” beyond repair, and make them reluctant to take the initiative to heal. But we all understand that an “injury” can heal. For these reasons, we will use the term Post-traumatic Stress Injury throughout this resource.

If You Are Struggling with War-Related Trauma or PTSD, You Should Know . . .

- PTSD is not rare or unusual. It is a common reaction to an uncommon event.
- Hundreds of thousands of men and women all over the world are struggling with it just as you are.
- It is normal to be affected negatively by war, pain, atrocity, and horror.
- Facing death changes a person – it would be abnormal if you were not affected. It shows that you are human and that what happens in war matters to you.
- You are not weak, cowardly, or strange – you are very literally wounded. You are injured. Wounds and injuries can be healed.
- PTSD has been called a wound of the soul and a wound of the identity.
- If a person was shot in the foot, you would not expect them to be able to run and jump any time soon. In the same way, a person with a wound to his or her soul will also be out of action for a while. Healing takes time.

A God-Designed Defense Mechanism

One of God's top plans when He created us was that we would be equipped to defend ourselves and survive in a wide variety of dangerous situations. To this end, He equipped us with an amazing set of danger-response mechanisms.

There is a place in our brains called the brain stem or lower brain. This part of our brain controls all automatic life functions, such as our breathing, digestion, and heartbeat. The brain stem will always override our higher brain – the part of our brain that we think with, make decisions with, etc. For instance, it doesn't matter how badly you might want to do it, you cannot make your heart stop beating just by thinking about it. You can hold your breath for a little while, but before long your lower brain once again takes over and forces you to breathe.

When we encounter something that we feel threatens our life, a flood of hormones is dumped into our blood stream. Our lower brain commands our heart to beat faster, our lungs to pump harder, and gets the rest of our body ready to either fight or run. Thousands of small muscles in our arms and legs tighten up, sending blood away from our skin and into our muscles for endurance and quick movement. Because of this, if our extremities are wounded, we won't bleed as badly. We get a surge of energy, strength, and quickness. Suddenly we can run, jump, kick, or punch like we never have before.

But something else happens deep inside our brains, too. It's like an alarm goes off and drowns out our normal tendency to analyze what's happening or to get emotional about it. It screams, "Less thinking, more action!" Our brain starts recording very strong and clear memories of what is happening, probably so that we will remember this event and avoid it in the future.

If the danger continues to threaten us, our brain stem takes over completely. It's live-or-die time. With this part of our brain in control, nothing else matters. It automatically directs the rest of the body in very complex but focused ways to do whatever it takes to survive.

But No Matter Who You Are, It's Important to Know Two Things:

1. God gave you this reactive pathway so that you would be able to do whatever was necessary to survive. It kept you alive. God knows that when our lives are threatened this behavior needs to come out or we could die. At that point, all the analysis, dignity, intelligence, and politeness in the world is absolutely useless.
2. No matter how hard you might have tried, you couldn't have stopped this reaction. Can you stop your heartbeat just by thinking about it? No. Neither are we able to control ourselves when our brains have clicked into this mode. It's nothing to be ashamed about.

If you are currently experiencing war-related trauma or PTSD, there are many reasons to take hope! For years people who have studied victims of overwhelming stress and trauma have been amazed by the resiliency of these survivors. Refugee camp occupants, prisoners of war freed after years of captivity, terrorized hostages – so many are eventually able to cope and experience victory, rather than spiraling into a pattern of defeat. Many war trauma survivors have actually used their experiences to strengthen and enrich their lives – and the lives of others. God can enable you to rebuild your shattered life, career, and family – even as you wrestle with the bitterest of memories.

Getting Stuck in Crisis-Alert Mode.

You might be saying, “OK, the crisis is over now. God’s danger-response mechanism worked, and I survived. So why can’t I move on? Why do I keep reliving what happened?”

Often, a trauma survivor can go through a short period of recovery time and return pretty close to “normal.” But if the traumatizing event was very violent and life-threatening, or if there were multiple events, the brain doesn’t want to leave this crisis-alert mode. Your brain knows that it just had a very close call, and it is determined to be ready to react if the danger comes by again. Good idea – except if it gets stuck in that mode, which is essentially what PTSD is.

Whenever your brain senses that it’s getting near the “scene of the crime” via some sensory trigger (such as a smell, a sound, a sight, a memory), it quickly opens up the photo album it created during the earlier traumatic event and puts on an intense show to remind you that you don’t want to go there again! “Are you nuts!?? We almost died when we were there last time! Get away!”

If one doesn’t process the traumatic event later in a safe place by talking about it with someone, allowing the emotions that were suppressed to come up and be experienced, analyzing them, getting angry about the injustice of the experience, but then releasing that anger and bitterness, they will stay stuck in this condition indefinitely.

What To Do with Flashbacks or Panic Attacks

If a certain person, place, thing, or memory sends your mind back to your trauma event in a way that makes you feel you are actually experiencing it again, there are several things you can do to bring yourself back to the reality of the present. You can also use these techniques to help others who are panicking:

- Pray, asking God to open your eyes and help you see the truth of where you are.
- Employ “Grounding Techniques,” meant to help your mind realize where you truly are, and that you are not back in the place of your trauma event. These involve using your five physical senses:
 - Look around you and quickly “inventory” what you see. List things out loud, such as “I see my bed, my desk, a window, a tree outside, a bookshelf, my dog...” Name people who are with you, or people in photographs you see.
 - Run your hand across the carpet, wall, grass, a tree trunk. Tell yourself what you’re feeling – out loud: “This is the wall in my bedroom.” “This is the grass in front of my house.”

- Play some of your favorite music – loud! It doesn't have to be soothing, it just needs to be familiar.
- Put some mint or lemon or some other strong flavor on your tongue. Smell it. Taste it.
- Hold an ice cube in your mouth or hand, or thrust your hands or feet into very cold water.
- Inhale some of your favorite perfume, a flower, cloves, or some other strong smell.
- Breathe deeply, intentionally. When a person is panicking, they often forget to breathe or breathe too quickly and the lack of oxygen makes their body panic even more. Try one of these breathing techniques:
 - 4-7-8 breathing: Inhale through your nose for 4 seconds, hold for 7 seconds, exhale through your mouth for 8 seconds. Count in your mind.
 - Box breathing: Inhale through your nose for 4 seconds, hold for 4 seconds, exhale through your mouth for 4 seconds, hold for 4 seconds.
 - Alternate nostril breathing: Place your right thumb over your right nostril. Inhale and exhale 8 times through your left nostril. Repeat on the other side.
- Move. Walk around, stretch, dance, clap your hands, jump up and try to touch something high, do deep knee bends, rub your hands on your legs. Breathe deeply while doing these things.
- Recite a positive affirmation, such as “I’m OK. I’m in control. I’m here in _____, not in _____. I’m safe. This will pass.”

What Do We Mean by “Healed?” What Can We Hope For?

We talk of being “healed” from war-related trauma. What does this look like? Will you ever become symptom-free? To be honest, it's not likely. The trauma you experienced is part of your personal history. It is a bell that can't get “un-rung.” You will probably always feel a sense of loss, grief, pain, and anxiety as you think back to your times of trauma. But it doesn't have to rule your life. You can come to the point where PTSD is no longer “driving the bus” – you are! You can come to the place where your symptoms are muted, and far less intense and no longer life-controlling.

At that point, the pain you feel when you recall your traumatic experiences can become something like a memorial to what – or who – you have lost. As your trauma symptoms lose their power, they can become a positive reminder that you survived, and you are an experienced, resourceful person who can help others who are in crisis.

The Take-Away

Whenever a person experiences trauma, he or she will be hit in three ways: physically, mentally, and spiritually. We deal with the physical wounds with physical solutions, the mental wounds with good, sound principles of psychology, and the spiritual wounds in ways that engage our Creator and Comforter. But no matter what, it's important to know that God has anticipated all of these wounds and has devised effective ways to deal with them long ago – even while He was creating us. Whether you are at the “Mild” end of the Trauma Spectrum or the “Severe” end, what will not help is to remain passive, do nothing, and just hope they go away. In that scenario, they will likely get worse. “Hope” is nice, but hope is not a strategy.

Take action! Take the initiative! Intentionally cooperate in the healing process with your Healer!

Prayer

Father, as You say in Your Word, “I am awesomely and wonderfully made.” (Psalm 139:14). I praise You for Your amazing creativity when You designed and built me – and especially for the danger response system You have given me. Thank You for giving me the ability to respond quickly and efficiently to life-threatening situations. But now I need to move past those experiences. I need for You please to help me come to a point where the symptoms of my trauma no longer have such a strong influence on my life. Bring me to a place of strength, stability, and healing – physically, psychologically, and spiritually. Help me to know Your peace once again. Let me know what I should do to cooperate with Your plan for my healing.

In Jesus’ name I pray, amen.

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 6

Derivative Stress: When Trauma is Contagious

By Rahnella Adsit

*There is a soul weariness that comes with caring.
From daily doing business with the handiwork of fear.
Sometimes it lives at the edges of one's life, brushing against hope and barely making its presence known.
At other times, it comes crashing in, overtaking one with its vivid images of another's terror with its profound demands for attention; nightmares, strange fears, and generalized hopelessness.*

~ Dr. Beth Hudnall Stamm, PhD

Are you feeling that “soul weariness?” Honestly, right now, I am feeling the weight of that. We are living in perilous times in which, at every turn, we are faced with unrelenting human suffering from war, including: separation of families, destruction of homes and communities, rape, torture, injuries and death.

Caring for others is emotionally, spiritually and physically demanding. Secondary Traumatic Stress is a result of being indirectly affected by someone else's firsthand trauma. The deeper our relationship is with that person, the more likely their trauma will infect us and we may find ourselves experiencing symptoms similar to Post-traumatic Stress. These symptoms can be subtle and insidious, so in this chapter we will focus on identifying the problems and defining the conditions known as Secondary Traumatic Stress, Caregiver Burnout and Compassion Fatigue. Next, you will be provided a self-assessment tool to help you measure your level of stress. After that, I will help you create your own strategy of compassionate self-care. Svetlana's struggles were severe, but maybe some of you could relate to them...

Svetlana's Story

I was a nurse working in a hospital in Artsakh. The Azerbaijani invasion of our country was only a few days old, and we didn't know what to expect. If war came to our area, we wanted to at least be able to provide first aid for the wounded. We did all we could to prepare. But besides the threat of war, people were already having difficulty finding food because of the months-long blockade, so everyone was weak, cold, and their immune systems were already quite suppressed.

Then one day, as the fighting got closer to our city, the war victims began flooding in. I was becoming overwhelmed, not only by the number of cases, but also by the variety of injuries – gunshot wounds, broken limbs, missing limbs, burns, deep contusions, lacerations, concussions, sprains, dislocated joints, and more. There was no pause and no rest. One of my nurse friends was devastated when her two brothers were brought in, one already dead, the other one dying shortly after arriving.

Adding to the chaos, dozens of people were crowding in searching for missing relatives. Meanwhile, our staff was being diminished at the worst possible time. One of our doctors was hit by a sniper. One of our nurses who desperately wanted to come in to the hospital to help finally made it in – by ambulance, because she had been shot in the back.

Then, a week into the fighting, the gasoline depot at Berkadzor exploded. Over 200 were killed, and hundreds injured. The flood of casualties we had seen in the past week was nothing compared to the tsunami of burned and mutilated people that we now had to deal with. The conditions became almost unbearable. The floors were slippery with blood and furatsilin solution (antiseptic). With the noise of emergency medicine, the shouted commands of medical personnel, the pained groans and screams – it seemed like I was in hell.

We could never have anticipated this level of tumult. After only a couple of hours, we simply ran out of medicine and supplies. People began dying one after another – there was nothing we could do. It broke my heart.

A few days later my family and I left Artsakh. No matter how much my mind and heart wanted to return to the hospital to help, my feet simply refused to go. I had seen enough pain and death in those few days to last a lifetime. My depression became very deep. I feel like I left my soul in Artsakh. How can I even hope to know happiness again?

Defining the Problem

As humans, we have a fundamental need to name things. It helps create order in our world and gives us at least some feeling of being in control. For example, let's say you have pain in your lower back and you know something is physically wrong with you. You finally make an appointment with your doctor, she does an examination, perhaps runs a series of tests, and then she gives you a diagnosis: "You have a herniated disk." Isn't it a relief to know that there truly is something wrong with you? You weren't imagining it, and now that you know what it is, with the help from your doctor you can now develop a strategy to deal with it. That's what I am hoping to provide for you today – by naming what you are experiencing, you can develop your own strategy so that you can start on your own personal journey to healing.

There is an increasing amount of study being done on conditions known as Secondary Traumatic Stress, Caregiver Burnout and Compassion Fatigue. For the purpose of brevity, my husband Chris and I combined these three conditions under one category, Derivative Stress.⁵ This is a non-medical term describing strong, long-lasting emotional reactions which pull their impact from trauma that happened to another person. When you think about it, if you truly care for someone, their pain should impact you! As St. Augustine wrote:

⁵ Non-medical term coined by authors, Chris and Rahnella Adsit, intended to encompass the three familiar and medically well-defined conditions that are listed.

*Anyone who looks with anguish on evils so great must acknowledge the tragedy of it all;
and if anyone experiences them without anguish, his conditions are even more tragic since he remains serene by losing his humanity.*

Derivative Stress comes in three forms that are very similar, but have subtle differences:

1. Secondary Traumatic Stress – Is the natural consequence of caring between two people, of whom one has been initially traumatized and the other is negatively affected by the first person's traumatic experiences. The second person (who may be you) can have symptoms that mimic the other person's Post-traumatic Stress symptoms,⁶ or you can exhibit your own symptoms of stress.
2. Caregiver Burnout – This comes as a result of failing to practice self-care habits. The consequence of this is that it will increase your levels of stress, which will impact your health. Over time, the likely outcome of not taking care of yourself is burnout. Burnout is a state of emotional exhaustion that results from your perceived sense of failing, wearing out, or feeling totally used-up due to too many demands on your energy, strength, or resources.⁷ This can be characterized by physical, mental and emotional exhaustion, depleted energy, depersonalization, lowered work efficiency, decreased motivation, pessimism, cynicism and apathy.⁸
3. Compassion Fatigue – Is the combination of Secondary Trauma and Burnout. The doorway is our empathy. It comes from a deep awareness of the suffering of another, coupled with a fervent wish to relieve it.⁹ It is the result of absorbing their pain and internalizing their emotions. The outcome of this is feelings of hopelessness, a lessening of compassion, a pervasive negative attitude, and the development of new feelings of incompetency and self-doubt when the observed suffering cannot be relieved.

Derivative Stress Symptom Inventory

In professional literature, each type of stress has a fairly well-defined set of symptoms, but there is a lot of overlap between them. In this chapter, we'll combine the symptoms of the three forms of Derivative Stress into the following list. It doesn't matter at this moment that you know which specific "brand" of stress you are experiencing. But it will be useful to know how strong it is currently affecting you. They are organized into six general classes of symptoms. Put a check mark next to any that you are experiencing.

⁶ Dr. Charles Figley (Ed), Compassion Fatigue – Coping with Secondary Traumatic Stress Disorder in Those Who Treat the Traumatized (NY: Brunner-Routledge, 1995). p. 11

⁷ Causes and Symptoms of Caregiver Burnout. https://www.hopkinsmedicine.org/about/community_health/johns-hopkins-bayview/services/called_to_care/causes_symptoms_caregiver_burnout.html (2022).

⁸ C. C. Maslach & M. P. Leiter: "Stress and Burnout: the Critical Research," in C.L. Cooper (Ed.), Handbook of Stress Medicine and Health (Lancaster: CRC Press, 2005). pp. 155-172

⁹ Dr. Charles Figley (Ed.), pp. xv, 2,3,14,15.

EMOTIONAL SYMPTOMS

- | | | |
|--|---|---|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Feeling powerless | <input type="checkbox"/> Numbness | <input type="checkbox"/> Hypersensitivity |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Anxiety | <input type="checkbox"/> Fearfulness, dread, horror | <input type="checkbox"/> Emotional roller coaster |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Guilt, shame | <input type="checkbox"/> Helplessness | <input type="checkbox"/> Overwhelmed |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Anger, rage, irritability | <input type="checkbox"/> Sadness, depression | <input type="checkbox"/> Depleted |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Survivor guilt | <input type="checkbox"/> Feeling worthless | <input type="checkbox"/> Bottled up emotions |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Shutting down | | |

PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS

- | | | |
|---|---|--|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Shock | <input type="checkbox"/> Aches and pains | <input type="checkbox"/> Sleepy all the time |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Sweating | <input type="checkbox"/> Dizziness | <input type="checkbox"/> Poor self-care (i.e. hygiene, appearance) |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Rapid heartbeat | <input type="checkbox"/> Impaired immune system | <input type="checkbox"/> Gastrointestinal distress |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Breathing difficulties | <input type="checkbox"/> Chronic lack of energy | |

COGNITIVE SYMPTOMS

- | | | |
|---|--|--|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Diminished concentration | <input type="checkbox"/> Nightmares | <input type="checkbox"/> Thoughts of harming others |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Confusion | <input type="checkbox"/> Flashbacks | <input type="checkbox"/> Preoccupation with trauma |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Forgotten appointments | <input type="checkbox"/> Apathy | <input type="checkbox"/> Self-doubt |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Chronic lateness | <input type="checkbox"/> Rigid, uncompromising | <input type="checkbox"/> Perfectionism |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Loss of meaning | <input type="checkbox"/> Disorientation | <input type="checkbox"/> Minimization (nothing really matters) |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Decreased self-esteem | <input type="checkbox"/> Thoughts of self-harm | |
| | <input type="checkbox"/> Brain Fog | |

BEHAVIORAL SYMPTOMS

- | | | |
|--|--|---|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Impatient | <input type="checkbox"/> Nightmares | <input type="checkbox"/> Self-harm behaviors (i.e. self-mutilation, cutting, eating disorders) |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Irritable, moody | <input type="checkbox"/> Hypervigilance | <input type="checkbox"/> Compulsiveness (i.e. over eating, gambling, sex, spending, workaholic, thrill-seeking) |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Withdrawn | <input type="checkbox"/> Elevated startle response | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Regression (reverting to an immature level) | <input type="checkbox"/> Substance abuse (drugs, alcohol/food) | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Sleep disturbances | <input type="checkbox"/> Loosing/forgetting things | |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Appetite changes | <input type="checkbox"/> Accident-prone | |

INTERPERSONAL SYMPTOMS

- | | | |
|--|---|---|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Withdrawn | <input type="checkbox"/> Need to control others | <input type="checkbox"/> Intolerance |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Feeling vulnerable, unsafe | <input type="checkbox"/> Loss of personal control and freedom | <input type="checkbox"/> Loneliness |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Decreased interest in intimacy, sex | <input type="checkbox"/> Changes in parenting (i.e. overprotective, abusive, critical, disinterested, etc.) | <input type="checkbox"/> Projection of anger or blame |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mistrust, suspicious of others | | <input type="checkbox"/> Verbally, emotionally, physically abusive or combative |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Isolation from friends | | |

SPIRITUAL SYMPTOMS

- | | | |
|--|---|--|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Doubts concerning one's values or beliefs | <input type="checkbox"/> Feeling God is unresponsive or unconcerned | <input type="checkbox"/> Have a God complex (think it's your job to fix everybody) |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Feeling angry or bitter toward God | <input type="checkbox"/> Feel like God is punishing me | <input type="checkbox"/> Neglecting spiritual disciplines |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Feeling far from God, unloved, abandoned | <input type="checkbox"/> Pervasive hopelessness | <input type="checkbox"/> Questioning the meaning of life |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Weak in faith | | |

Obviously, this symptom inventory will not give you an official diagnosis from a professional regarding your level of Derivative Stress, but seeing a counselor is hard to do in a time of war! I've shared this long list of symptoms, not to make you feel overwhelmed, but to help you see that your symptoms are a normal response to the stressors you are encountering as you care for traumatized people. Doing this exercise will give you a general idea of the mildness or severity of your current level of stress so that you can develop your own plan for compassionate self-care.

Developing a Strategy for Recovery

Dealing with stress is no simple matter. As my friend Andi, who was a combat medic during the Iraq war told me, "Rahnnella, you MUST take care of yourself first, because you are no good to anybody dead." There is no magic wand, and no simple plan that will restore you to your pre-stress status. It will take hard work, intentionality, and commitment on your part. In partnership with God, you can do this! Never forget that He is your Healer (Exodus 15:26) and awesome in power (Psalm 68:35)! Let's get to work!

- Look over your list of symptoms. Which three concern you the most?
 1. _____
 2. _____
 3. _____

- For each of those three symptoms, write out a goal statement – how you would like to be function regarding that issue with the next two to four months. It doesn't have to be something you achieve through your own effort. What would you like to see happen? What do you want to see God do?
 1. _____
 2. _____
 3. _____

- List what resources you will need (and can find) to help you accomplish your goals:

- List potential hindrances to reaching your goals:
- Share your goals with an accountability partner who will coach you and help you keep your commitment: Who will that be?
- Last step - activate your plan! Make sure you regularly evaluate your plan with your accountability partner. Daily commit to your goals in prayer asking for God's help and guidance, and don't forget to notice and appreciate the changes you are making! That awareness is a gift from God which will positively contribute to your well-being.

Managing the High Cost of Caring

I have been in full-time ministry for more than 45 years! Loving and caring for others has brought me much joy, it has increased my empathy, compassion, and personal growth, and of course, there are the eternal, heavenly rewards! But, like our savior Jesus, it has also given me deep wounds and I bear many battle scars. If there is one thing I could pick to pass along to you that has helped me the most, that would be for you to learn the spiritual discipline of “practicing the pause.”

In the midst of our daily battles, it is so easy to become busy Marthas (Luke 10:38-43): taking care of everything and everyone, neglecting ourselves and our relationship with God. The war with Azerbaijan continues and the adrenaline rush has faded, and now the deeper works begins. Recently, I read something I think is profound by Bruce Crowe on Facebook, he said: “Relationships, community, no matter what we find ourselves DOING, we are only sustained by BEING.” How do we do that? In the gospel of Mark, Jesus gives us a clue in a conversation He has with a Bible teacher:

And one of the scribes came up and heard them disputing with one another, and seeing that He [Jesus] answered them well, asked him, “Which commandment is the most important of all?” Jesus answered, “The most important is, ‘Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God, the Lord is one. And you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind and with all your strength.’ The second is this: ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’ There is no other commandment greater than these.” (Mark 12:28-32 ESV)

Most messages on these verses focus on the two commandments which are to love God and to love our neighbors. But it really begins with the scribe's question, “Which commandment is the most important of all?” In Hebrew, the word for commandment is mitzvah which means “command” or “duty.” The root word of mitzvah is tzavta, which means “connection.” When we fulfill God's commands, we are strengthening our connection with God and with people. It strengthens our bonds of love.

In answering the scribe's question, Jesus replies with the beginning of one of the most important prayers in Israelite tradition, it is called the Shema or Sh'ma, referring to the first word in the prayer: “Hear,” which is Sh’ma in Hebrew. It is their confession of faith which forms an integral part of their morning and evening prayer services.

Hear, O Israel! The LORD is our God, the LORD is one! And you shall love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength. (Deuteronomy 6:4,5)

Think about that. They stop to pray twice a day. Why do you think they do that?

Jesus responds to the scribe’s question with “Hear, O Israel.” Another way to translate this verse is: ‘Stop and listen up, Israel!’ In Hebrew, that listening means to allow God’s words to sink in, provide understanding and generate a response. He wants us to hear and obey. Jesus continues His instruction with: “The LORD our God, the LORD is one.” Another way to state it is ‘Our God is YHWH, YHWH alone is God!’¹⁰ The essence of what He is saying is this: we need to take the time to cultivate our relationship with God by stopping, listening and obeying. In John 14:21 it says: “The one who has My commands and keeps them, that’s the one who loves Me. And he who loves Me will be loved by My Father, and I will love him.” As we obey, Jesus says: “I will reveal Myself to him.”

This passage also tells us something that is very important for some of us to hear, and that is: YHWH is God and we are not! If you are anything like me, a do-er and a fixer, this is great news! I think for us, the first step to keeping balance in our life is to recognize that we’re not God, and that’s okay. We don’t have to put pressure on ourselves thinking that the world is depending on us to keep spinning!

So how do you carve out time to stop and listen? Don’t panic! It’s as simple as breathing!

The Benefits of Learning to Breathe Deeply

When we are under stress we tend to breathe shallowly, so learning to breathe deeply provides us with physical, mental and emotional health benefits such as: managing our stress levels, helping us focus, relieving pain, improving our immunity, decreasing our anxiety, increasing our energy levels, and sleeping better. We call this “Spiritual Breathing.” As you prepare to go back into the fray of battle, there are several reasons you need to stop, breathe, and learn to listen throughout the day:

- It prepares you for the battles in your life (Isaiah 26:3).
- It reveals His presence (Exodus 33:14, Deuteronomy 31:6).
- It will give God an opportunity to equip you and train you for the fight (Psalm 144:1-3).
- It opens the communication lines so you can receive His latest orders (Joshua 5:13-14).
- It offers you healing from the wounds of battle (Matthew 11:28).
- Best of all, enjoying God’s presence pulls you out of all that “doing mindset” and into simply “being” who God created you.
- Last of all, if you don’t hit the pause button, the button will hit you! In the midst of the battle, that’s a bullet that can take you down!

¹⁰ YHWH is the Hebrew name revealed to Moses in Exodus 3:14. This is known as the “tetragrammaton.” It means “I Am that I Am.” It is God’s most holy name for Himself.

The Where & When to Practice Breathing: You can do it anytime or any place. For example, I practice the pause at the beginning of my morning devotional. I also do it at the end of the day when I go to bed. From time to time I practice it in the car or standing at the podium before I speak. I'm learning to stop when I feel tension in my body, or when I realize I have been so busy I haven't made time to cultivate my relationship with God. I'm embarrassed to admit, but sometimes I practice the pause sitting on the toilet! I am in desperate need for God, how about you?

Instructions on How to Breathe Deeply: Get in a comfortable position. Breathe in slowly, inhaling through your nose, allowing your chest and lower belly to rise as you fill your lungs. Let your abdomen expand fully. Now, exhale slowly through your mouth. During the spiritual practice of breathing you will do this three times.

Directions for Practicing the Pause: Time to hit the pause button! It's quick and easy. It can take you as little as two minutes to finish this spiritual exercise. As you inhale, welcome and receive God's presence into your life. When you exhale, release or let go of things like tension, worry, fear, sin, anger, etc. I will provide examples of how I pray for each breath. When you breathe, your time limit is how long you can breathe in or out.

The Breathing Exercise:

Step 1: First Breath

- Inhale: Father, I welcome Your presence in my life. You are my light and glory.
- Exhale: I release all the darkness of worry and fear in my life.

Step 2: Second Breath

- Inhale: Jesus, I welcome Your presence in my life. I desperately need You.
- Exhale: Forgive me for not making our relationship a priority today.

Step 3: Third Breath

- Inhale: Holy Spirit, I welcome Your presence in my life. Empower me today.
- Exhale: I let go of my tendency to try to do everything in my own strength.

Taking the Time to Listen

At the end of this breathing exercise, practice taking a moment to be silent. Learn to be quiet in your own soul and just listen. Then take pleasure in His presence as He reveals Himself to you. God revealed Himself to Job, when Job closed his mouth and listened (Job 40:4-6)! When I finish up my time with Him, I thank Him for loving me and I let Him know that I love Him too!

You are God's beloved and He desires you (Song of Solomon 7:10). YOU, for who you are, not for what you do! Jesus is calling you into fellowship with Him. Will you answer?

*Come to Me, all who are weary and heavy-laden, and I will give you rest.
Take My yoke upon you and learn from Me,
For I am gentle and humble in heart, and YOU WILL FIND REST FOR YOUR SOULS.
For My yoke is easy and My burden is light.
(Matthew 11:28-30)*

The Take-Away

Trauma experienced by another person that you have interactions with can be very harmful. You may be a very kind, compassionate, generous, and self-sacrificing person – all of which are wonderful traits – but you must be diligent and intentional about monitoring and caring for your own physical, psychological, and spiritual needs. If you don't, you may put yourself in a condition where you are unable to help anyone else, because you yourself are experiencing secondary trauma, burn out, or compassion fatigue. But God is there to help you find the balance between sacrificial ministry and effective self-care. Remember: “You’re no good to anybody dead!”

Prayer

Father, I see so many hurting people around me, and so many needs. You have put within my heart a desire to help as many people as I can, and I am grateful for your compassionate inspiration, and the example that Jesus set when He walked the earth. But I know I have limits. Help me to know those limits, and to use the wisdom and discernment You have given me to work within the boundaries that my personal resources and limitations have set. In areas where I am currently experiencing the effects of Derivative Stress, please heal me, help me find rest for my soul, and help me to know in the future the difference between the needs I see all around me, and the needs you have specifically called me to address. In Jesus name I pray, amen.

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 7

Survival Tips for Protecting Your Family

By Rahnella Adsit

A prudent person foresees danger and takes precautions.
The simpleton goes blindly on and suffers the consequences.

Proverbs 22:3 NLT

My children affectionately call me “Mama Bear.” Mother bears are known to be very protective of their cubs. If they perceive that you are a threat to them, they will get aggressive. You quickly learn to never get between a mother bear and her cubs because she can literally take your head off with a single swipe! While most humans will flee or freeze when faced with an imminent threat, mothers tend to fight to protect their children. It’s a deep instinct that says, “I will do absolutely anything to protect my child,” and for most of us that will extend to our spouses and everyone in our families.

If you are a fellow Mama Bear or want to be, then this chapter is for you! In it you will learn how to create strategies that will help you plan, prepare and protect your family during times of war and other disasters. As we get closer to the return of Jesus Christ and the end of this age, Jesus gives clear warnings of what is to come:

Don't mess with the Mama Bear!

*You will hear about wars and reports of wars.
See that you are not alarmed, for this must take place, but the end is not yet.
For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom,
And there will be famines and earthquakes in various places.
All these are but the beginning of the birth pains.*

Matthew 24:6-9 (ESV)

Birth pains are “pain with a purpose.” The pain you experience in labor is caused by a process – the contracting of the uterine muscle, which opens the cervix, stretches the vaginal tissues, and allows the baby to be born. In the end, when your baby is placed in your arms you realize it was all worth it!

The pain you are experiencing right now as you face the horrors of war or other emergencies is also pain with a purpose. It is preparing you and your family for the challenges ahead (Matthew 24:10-45) which ultimately concludes with Christ’s return as the King of King and Lord of Lords. As you read further into Matthew 24 you will find a promise from the Lord:

*Who then is the faithful and wise servant, whom his master has set over his household, to give them their food at the proper time?
Blessed is that servant whom his master will find so doing when he comes.
Truly, I say to you, He will set him over all his possessions.”*

Matthew 24:45 - 47 ESV

Just as the master in this verse has set his servant to be the manager or keeper over his household, God has given you a special task also: He has appointed you as the “keeper of the home” (Titus 2:3-5 KJV). In case you think that is a demeaning job, in Psalm 121 it says that God is our keeper. He cares for us; He is our helper, defender, and protector. In our homes, being the keeper is our God-ordained role as women. It is a calling and a privilege, but it also carries with it a tremendous responsibility. However, you don’t need to add another worry to your list of worries. God doesn’t ask you to do something and then leave you to fend for yourself. He is with you, He will provide for you, and He will enable you to finish your assignment (2 Corinthians 9:8). With God’s help, YOU’VE GOT THIS! (Philippians 4:13)

The protection of your family truly is a partnership between you and God. You have certain roles and responsibilities, and so does God. Your responsibilities have to do with accessing internal, external, and eternal resources.

BUILDING INTERNAL RESOURCES FOR SURVIVAL

How do you manage your home in times of war? The key to understanding this is to remember that your “doing” flows out of your “being.” It begins within your heart. To meet the challenges ahead you need to cultivate these three spiritual virtues:

1. Being a faithful servant
2. Learning to serve others with wisdom
3. Developing prudence in your life

Let’s look at them one at a time:

1. Being a Faithful Servant (Mathew 24:45) – Who doesn’t long for the day when Jesus will say to them, “Well done! You are a good and faithful servant. You’ve been faithful over a little. I’ll put you in charge of much. Come, celebrate with me” (Matthew 25:23 CEB)? Notice that Jesus doesn’t emphasize how much you are doing, or how much you have, but what you have done with what you have been given. What you do, you do in obedience to Christ and with the right motivation. That is, you “work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men” (Colossians 3:23 ESV). Jesus is looking for those who will be faithful; people who choose to be available (John 15:8); those who will remain open and teachable (Proverbs 9:9), and those who are flexible in whatever situation God has placed them (Philippians 4:12-14).

What are the benefits of being faithful to God? The Bible says:

- God will preserve, protect, and guard you (Psalm 31:23; 97:10; Proverbs 2:8).
- God promises to remain faithful to you, even if sometimes you are not faithful to Him (2 Timothy 2:13).
- God will richly bless you (Proverbs 28:30).

- God will strengthen you (2 Thessalonians 3:3).
- God will guide you (1 Corinthians 10:13).

2. Being a Wise Servant (Matthew 24:45) – What is wisdom? The simple answer: “Wisdom is the appropriate application of knowledge.” It is more than having knowledge or information; it is the capacity to know how to use that knowledge effectively. Wisdom also gives you the capacity to understand life from God’s perspective.

How do you get wisdom? The Bible says:

- Wisdom begins with loving, respecting, and obeying the Lord (Proverbs 9:10).
- You must desire wisdom with all your heart (Proverbs 2:4).
- The Lord offers wisdom freely; however, you must first ask Him (James 1:5). Solomon asked God for wisdom and “God gave Solomon wisdom and very great insight, and a breadth of understanding as measureless as the sand on the seashore” (1 Kings 3:8-13; 4:29).
- You gain wisdom from reading and studying God’s word (Proverbs 2:1-2).
- You will grow in wisdom as you seek wise counsel from godly Christians (Proverbs 1:5)

3. Being Prudent – “A prudent person foresees danger and takes precautions” (Proverbs 22:3 NLT).

What are the characteristics of prudent person? The Bible says:

- As a prudent person, you will develop foresight and caution. Your actions will show care and thought for the future (Proverbs 22:3; 10:5). You will be careful about your choices, and you will learn to stop and think before acting.
- You will gain discernment (Proverbs 14:4; 13:8a).
- You will be wise in the use of information. You will double-check the facts from several sources before acting on them (Proverbs 12:23).
- You will be able to show wisdom in where, when, and to whom you speak (Amos 5:13).
- As a prudent person you will have a teachable spirit (Proverbs 15:5).
- As a prudent wife and mother, you are a gift from the Lord to your family (Proverbs 19:14). Those who God calls, He will equip (Hebrews 13:20-21).
- As a prudent person, it is important to gain the skills and experiences you need so that you will have good judgment in the use of resources God provides (Prov. 4:7).

BUILDING EXTERNAL RESOURCES FOR SURVIVAL

At this writing, I meet with a group of Ukrainian women leaders via Zoom every couple of weeks to listen to their stories, and to provide counsel and encouragement. I would guess that like them, most of you are stressed beyond measure, fearing for yourselves and your loved ones, and you are also worrying about your community and the situation in your country. The direct and indirect threats of war are so enormous they are almost beyond comprehension. Fear can immobilize a person. Developing the core virtues of faithfulness, wisdom and prudence will help sustain you.

The next section will help you overcome your fears by helping you organize and prepare yourself and your family for the challenges ahead. Acting on the following four survival tips will give you a sense that you have done all you could to be prepared. This will give you some measure of feeling in control and therefore hopeful. If you take the time to apply these principles now, you will have practical tools that will help you and your family to survive the unimaginable.

In most cases, we tend to think that in an emergency or crisis situation we should wait for the professionals to come to tell us what to do and to save us. We depend on our government officials, police officers, soldiers, or firefighters. In reality, it is you, your family and your neighbors who are first on the scene. Once you realize this, you will understand you don't have to be a victim and wait for others to save you; instead, you have the unique challenge and opportunity to be a rescuer or even a hero! Planning and preparing for potential threats will minimize the impact they could have on you and your loved ones. It will save lives, minimize losses, lower your anxiety, build resiliency, and reduce mental health issues after the crisis passes.

Survival Tip #1: Plan

Your emergency plan needs to include an actively maintained document which is reviewed often to provide you with all the procedures and information you need to prepare your family for war or other disasters. This includes listing potential threats, evaluating your strengths and weakness, being aware of your vulnerabilities, considering the opportunities presented, and determining what skills you have in times of emergency. If your husband is available have him do this separately. Afterwards, meet with him, compare your notes, and together write up your family plan. This also would be a great opportunity to involve your older children. Have them make up their own survival plan; when you meet with them it would open communication lines and prepare and train them to face danger in their future.

EMERGENCY ASSESMENT

1. Threats: This is where we visit the land of “what if’s” (don’t set up camp there!). The question you need to ask is: “What potential threats do I and my family face? What if this happens? What if that happens?” Gather data to assess what threats you could be facing. Assign each one a number value according to their probability of occurring.

Example: My husband Chris and I had the opportunity to go into Iraq several years ago. We knew the worst-case scenarios included: capture, torture, sexual assault, and death by ISIS.

2. Strengths: What strengths have you discovered as you have faced dangerous situations in the past? Knowing your strengths is just as important as knowing your weaknesses.

Example: Growing up on multiple continents exposed me to many dangerous situations. These encounters fine-tuned my ability to sense when I am in a dangerous place or near a dangerous person.

3. Weaknesses: Knowing your potential weaknesses is also important if you want to survive. In crisis situations, what have you found to be your areas of weakness?

Example: I do great in a crisis, but afterwards I fall apart. Whenever possible I now make time after the event to process what I've gone through.

4. Vulnerabilities: A vulnerability is not really a weakness. Knowing your vulnerabilities and doing something about them shows that you have courage. So the question is: where, when or how are you most exposed to the possibility of being attacked or injured, emotionally, physically, economically or environmentally?

Example: When Chris and I were in Iraq, we woke up in the middle of the night with an Iraqi man at the foot of our bed (he was a hotel employee delivering a message, but of course we didn't know that). The door to our room was a vulnerability. From then on we made sure that we secured the door in a way that NO ONE could get in without our permission.

5. Opportunities: What can you do to prepare to meet these threats?

Example: In response to the man who entered our room in the middle of the night, I now pack an alarm that I can attach to any door that goes off with any movement of the door so we have time to prepare to face any threat.

6. Skills: What skills do you bring to meet impending danger?

Example: I've taken basic first-aid classes, wilderness survival courses, and firearm training.

Now it's your turn. One way you can do this is to make a grid for each person in your family that looks something like this:

THREATS	STRENGTHS	WEAKNESSES	VULNERABILITIES	OPPORTUNITIES	SKILLS

PLAN OF ACTION

Planning for an emergency will help your family feel safe, but it does need to be age-appropriate. Once everyone fills out the above form to the best of their ability, schedule a time to meet first with your husband, then with each of your children or household members to talk and make a plan together. Survival is not just a product of luck, it takes work! Here is a list of questions you could discuss:

1. Before talking with your children, you will need to address some issues with your spouse, such as: Do we need to write up a will? If both of us should get injured or killed, what happens to the kids? Who will be our children's guardian? What are our country's legal requirements for a guardian? Should we leave a copy of important papers with this guardian? If you have the time, it would mean a lot to your spouse and to your children if you each write a special letter to each child, placed in a sealed envelope, in case something happens to you.
2. Where is the safe place in our home or building for each type of threat we are facing?
3. What are the escape routes to get out of our house or apartment? Out of each room?
4. If separated during an emergency, what is a meeting place that is near our home?
5. If we cannot return home or if we need to evacuate when we're not together, where can we meet that is outside our neighborhood?
6. What is our alternate route, if the first route is impassible?
7. In the event we are separated or unable to communicate with each other, who will be our emergency contact outside of our immediate area?
8. Decide on a good "secret word" that only your family members know, so that if any of them needs to verify that a message sent to them is truly from a family member, knowing this word will give them the security they need. Example: A stranger approaches your daughter and says, "Your mother asked me to come get you and bring you to her." Daughter: "Did she give you the secret word?" "Uhhh, no. She forgot to." "Then I am NOT coming with you!"
9. What is our plan for family members who have a disability or special needs?
10. What can we do to take care of our pets if there is an emergency?
11. What is each family member responsible for in the event of an emergency? Write out a master list and put it in a strategic, centralized area in your home - perhaps near your emergency bags?
12. Are there other family members or neighbors you can recruit and coordinate with? People helping people can be one of your greatest strengths.
13. List other questions you may want to ask.

Survival Tip #2: Prepare

It is often said: "Planning leads to awareness. Preparation leads to readiness." The truth is, you can plan all you want, but if you don't prepare, you won't be ready. There are some things you can prepare for, but there are many things that will be beyond your control. Someone else said, "Preparation does more than prepare you for what to expect; it puts you in position to handle what you didn't see coming." Here are a few ideas:

1. Pack a 72-hour "go bag" for each family member: In the event of an emergency, it is important to have the right supplies on hand. Preparing a 72-hour emergency "go bag" for each member of your family is the key to helping them survive for at least three days after a disaster occurs. In the middle of a crisis, sometimes our brains may not function as well as they usually do, and our thinking slows down as we work through shock or denial. Creating go-bags for each member of your family ahead of time will help push each one of you more quickly into action. In chapter 13 – Parenting in Times of War – there is a section on what to put in a child’s emergency go-bag. To be effective, each bag (a backpack would be ideal) should not be more than 20-25% of each person’s body weight. Here is a list of recommended items you could include in yours:

- | | | | |
|---|--------------------------|----------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| • Water | • Nonperishable food | • Flashlight/headlight | • Extra batteries |
| • Weather appropriate change of clothes | • Personal hygiene items | • Face mask | • Hand sanitizer |
| • 7-day supply of medicines | • Whistle | • Computer/tablet/phone | • Charging cords/batteries |
| • Eyeglasses | • Important documents | • Cash and change | • First aid kit |
| • Pet food | • Permanent marker | • Garbage bags | • Family members’ contact information |
| | • Blanket/sleeping bag | • Ear buds | |
| | | • Map with meeting places marked | |

2. Important Documents: If possible, keep them in a waterproof bag or box - something you can grab easily. This can include: copies of your driver’s license, passport, birth certificates, medical records, prescription list, bank and credit card account numbers and customer service telephone numbers, insurance information, wills, marriage certificate, school records, etc. It is also very important to gather the list of each other’s phone and computer passwords and have it in a secure place.

3. Update items: With the change of seasons, renew and bring up to date everything you have packed, such as: refresh water supply, change out clothes to meet the season’s needs, update contact list, etc.

I have a packed emergency “go-bag” to take with me whenever I travel and adjust it according to where I’ll be. For instance, in Iraq I added a pair of hiking boots and extra water bottles. It comforted me to know that if I couldn’t get a flight out of Iraq, I had the means to walk out.

Survival Tip #3: Practice

This is an area that people often neglect, but it is critical in minimizing the risks to your lives. Rehearsing ahead of time helps everyone know what to do and when to do it, which will help relieve everyone’s anxiety and keep everyone calm. Practice also helps everyone to avoid the senseless waste of time panicking; it moves everyone quickly through shock and denial into action. In a critical moment, there is little time to plan and no time to learn. Practicing also exposes the weaknesses in your current plans and preparations which will give everyone time to adjust accordingly – which can actually save lives.

The terrorist attack on the Twin Towers at the World Trade Center in New York City on September 11, 2001 not only highlights the importance of planning and preparing, but also the extreme value of practicing. Rick Rescorla was head of security for Morgan Stanley Dean Witter, a multinational investment management company headquartered at the World Trade Center. In 1993, terrorist tried to take down the Twin Towers by exploding a bomb in the basement parking lot. Afterwards, Rescorla trained the firm’s employees how to deal with future potential terrorist attacks. They not only planned and prepared, but they also practiced. The company employees trained for eight years, including surprise drills and building evacuation exercises. When the terrorists attacked again in 2001, this discipline of practice saved the lives of more than 2,700 employees. Only 10 people from their company died. Rescorla taught the employees that the best way to get the brain to perform under extreme stress was to repeatedly run it through rehearsals beforehand.

Your fight-flight-freeze reaction to danger is an involuntary response which exists to keep you safe and prepares you to face, escape, or hide from danger. But there are times when we need to override those responses, and this can be done through your planning, preparing and most importantly, practicing beforehand. This is crucial to your family's survival.

Survival Tip #4: Recover

When our book, The Combat Trauma Healing Manual was first published, Chris and I attended the Houston Freedom Festival, which celebrated an American holiday called Veterans Day – a day in which we honor U.S. military veterans. Our staff team knew I was a trauma pastoral counselor, so whenever a soldier was experiencing symptoms of Post-traumatic Stress, I was called on the scene to help. It was an exhausting time. I was running around from soldier to soldier when my friend Andi, a combat medic, saw me. She told me, “Rahnella, I get it; you understand how my time serving as a medic has affected me. But I look at you and see that same look a medic gets when they are overwhelmed with the number of casualties surrounding them.” And that’s when she ordered me to sit down and to take a five-minute breather because as she had told me before, “We medics have learned that we’re no good to anybody dead – and neither are you. You must take care of yourself above all else!” She was right!

Taking time to recover is important. Sometimes it will only be that five-minute breather. Doing this will give your body time to rest, slow down your breathing so that it will bring up your oxygen levels, which in turn will help you focus on the task ahead. An added benefit is that it will give you a moment to pray. Scheduling an extended time to process what you have gone through within the first 36-hours after a crisis event will lessen its long-term impact on you and will expedite your healing. If you want to stay in the battle, this self-care strategy is crucial, because Andi’s admonition is true: you are no good to anybody dead.

BUILDING IN ETERNAL RESOURCES FOR SURVIVAL

When you have prepared all you can ahead of time, you gain a certain sense of freedom. When God gives you an assignment, it will open doors to adventures you never dreamed of, which will give you more opportunities to see God’s hand at work in your life and in those around you. I guarantee you, it’s an exciting life to live by faith and obedience!

A couple of years ago I took a take a trip to Israel – this time to visit my daughter, son-in-law and my new grandson. One day I felt called by the Lord to take a spiritual trek to Jerusalem to spend a day alone with Him. So, with little knowledge of modern Hebrew, I downloaded an Israel Railways phone app, hopped on a train, and followed instructions, only to find that I got off the train in the middle of nowhere. I needed help. There was only one man working at the train station, and he didn’t speak English. So I looked throughout the building, even in the bathrooms, and couldn’t find another person. I sat on a bench next to the railroad track, assessing the situation, asking the Lord to guide and protect me.

As I was praying, I felt someone sit down next to me, I opened my eyes and there was a young woman! I asked her where she came from and did she speak English? She said, “Yes, I am from New Jersey” (which is one of the states in America). And she was also fluent in Hebrew! She helped me hire a car, came with me to the airport, and helped me get on the right train to Jerusalem. To this day I believe she was an angel sent from God. I even asked her if I could touch her just to see if she was real!

Mama Bears, as you face various trials remember you are never ever alone! God is not only a resource, He is your source for all that is good and for all that you need. Give God a call through prayer, and then watch how He chooses to answer. His provisions come in big or small packages; sometimes they come disguised as a young woman from New Jersey!

*Trust in the Lord with all your heart,
And do not lean on your own understanding.
In all your ways acknowledge him,
And he will make straight your paths.
Be not wise in your own eyes: fear the Lord and turn away from evil.
It will be healing to your flesh and refreshment to your bones.
Proverbs 3:5-8*

The Take-Away

Many of us in Armenia have experienced crisis, trauma, chaos, and war. It is logical to assume we may have to experience these things again in the near future. For this reason, we must be faithful, wise, and prudent in preparing ourselves and our families ahead of time to meet the challenges of future emergencies. We can decide right now whether we are going to be prudent and take precautions, or be a simpleton – continuing on blindly and suffering the consequences, as our opening verse tells us. We need to acquire internal, external, and eternal resources in order to be fully prepared. And more than just planning and preparing, we need to practice our plans, so that in a crisis our families will respond quickly and efficiently, thereby staying safe and alive.

Prayer

Heavenly Father, I pray for grace, strength and courage to meet the challenges ahead. Lord, I know that You don't always give me what I want, but You will always supply what I need. Help me to fulfill my assignments from You. When my time does come or when your return, may I hear from you: “Well done! You are a good and faithful servant. You’ve been faithful over a little. I’ll put you in charge of much. Come, celebrate with me.” Amen!

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 8

Finding Light in the Darkest Grief

By Marshéle Carter, Chris & Rahnella Adsit¹¹

The Lord is near to the brokenhearted and saves those who are crushed in spirit.

(Psalm 34:18)

Valentina's Story...

We were living in Artsakh when the Azerbaijani invasion began. A few days later, when the fighting calmed down a little in our area, I found my children and we went to the airport. This is where the Russian peacekeepers had directed us and other displaced Armenians to go. On the first day, hundreds of people began crowding in. Then thousands. By the fourth day, there was absolutely no room, and nowhere to go. The Russians simply told us to leave. "Let your own government give you asylum. There's no more room here. We can't help you."

Then they informed us that the road to Armenia was open once again, and we could leave that way. I quickly returned to our home and gathered a few precious things: pictures, important documents, some food, shoes for my daughter, and a photo of my husband who was killed during the 44-Day War of 2020.

We were hoping to go back to our town, where my uncles and husband are buried, all of whom died in war. Well, really only my husband's hands are buried there, because that's all they found of him.

After traveling for three days we finally reached Armenia. As we crossed the border, one of my children said, "Mom, we have lost papa for the second time." At first I didn't understand what he meant. But then he said, "We have now also left his grave."

The grief of losing my husband, my home, my friends, my children's innocence, my sense of safety and security, even my husband's grave – with all of this I cannot find rest.

Loss and Grief

Valentina had something worth loving – and so did you. For many of you, the war took that away. "Grief is love not wanting to let go," wrote Rabbi Earl A. Grollman¹². This is why Valentina's heart hurts so much. Solomon wrote in Song of Solomon 8:6, "Love is as strong as death." As Irish writer Frank O'Connor points out, when we feel a great sense of loss "it means that we had something worth grieving for. The ones I'm sorry for are the ones that go through life not knowing what grief is."¹³

¹¹ Much of the content of this chapter is from When War Comes Home co-written by all three of us.

¹² Rabbi Dr. Earl A. Grollman – quote found in www.DailyCelebrations.com.

¹³ Frank O'Conner – quote found in www.gaia.com.

“Chaplain Ray” Giunta writes: “Grief is the normal process of natural emotions and feelings which are uniquely experienced after any loss of any relationship.”¹⁴ Grief is normal. We are designed to grieve. God invented it. God experienced it when He walked this earth as a human.¹⁵ Everybody experiences it. We all experience grief differently, but we all experience it.

“Jesus wept.”
(John 11:35)

The word “grief” comes from the Latin verb meaning “to burden.” That’s exactly what grief feels like, doesn’t it? A heavy load that you wish you could set down – but you can’t.

Grief is always triggered by a loss of some sort – losing someone or something we had an attachment to. Grief has different levels and intensities. We grieve a little when a favorite pair of jeans is ruined and we have to throw them away. We grieve a little more when our personal computer crashes and we lose hundreds of cherished photos. More profound grief comes when a beloved pet dies, when a treasured relationship ends, when dreams we’ve held for the future evaporate, or when someone we love passes on.

The Purpose of Grief

God built the grief response into us for the purpose of mentally, emotionally, and spiritually processing events that caused the loss. If we are not willing to face the grieving process, or if we try a short-cut, we’ll be left adrift in our sea of pain, never reaching the shores of healing that the Lord intends for us.

It is said that tears are a way God has provided for sadness to leave our body. If we resist, our sorrow may never lose its intensity.

King David wrote: “You have taken account of my wanderings; put my tears in Your bottle. Are they not in Your book?” (Psalm 56:8) God – in His infinite tenderness and love – not only takes note of your tears, He stores them. They are that precious to Him.

“Normal” Grief

C.S. Lewis, one of the greatest Christian philosophers and teachers of the past century, had his own trek through grief after his beloved wife Joy died of cancer. He kept a journal for many months after her death in which he wrote the following:

“Grief still feels like fear. Perhaps, more strictly, like suspense. Or like waiting; just hanging about waiting for something to happen. It gives life a permanently provisional feeling. It doesn’t seem worth starting anything. I can’t settle down. I yawn, I fidget, I smoke too much. Up till now I always had too little time. Now there is nothing but time. Almost pure time, empty successiveness.”¹⁶

As you read through the following list of symptoms, check any that you are experiencing.

- ☐ Fear. You may fear that you will experience more losses, that you won’t be able to handle the pressure that now exists.

¹⁴ “Chaplain Ray” Giunta, Grief Recovery Workbook, (Integrity Publishers, 2002). p. 63.

¹⁵ More example of Jesus’ grief: Matthew 26:37,38; Mark 3:5; Luke 19:41.

¹⁶ C.S. Lewis, A Grief Observed (HaperSanFrancisco, 2001, 1961). p. 33

- ☐ Anger. You might not even know why you are angry. It doesn't have to be logical. Your anger might be seething just below the surface for a long time.
- ☐ Weeping. You may cry. Then cry some more. And more. And just when you think you couldn't possibly have any more tears to cry, you cry some more.
- ☐ Guilt. If only I'd . . . What if . . . I should have . . . Hindsight and regret could dominate your thoughts for a while.
- ☐ Loneliness. You may feel that no one can understand what you're going through now – and that no one wants to, either.
- ☐ Blaming. This is so unfair! Where's the justice? What did we do to deserve this? Somebody has to be held accountable!
- ☐ Running away/numbing. You may look desperately for an "escape hatch." There must be a way out of this! You may try drugs, alcohol, work, travel, ministry, sex, food, shopping, gambling – anything to get your mind off the difficulties.

Other symptoms may include:

- | | |
|---|---|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Loss of appetite | <input type="checkbox"/> Hyperactive |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Loss of sexual desire | <input type="checkbox"/> Feeling abandoned |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Dehydration | <input type="checkbox"/> Loss of faith in God |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Memory lags, mental short-circuits | <input type="checkbox"/> Frustrated |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Unexplained aches and pains | <input type="checkbox"/> Overly talkative |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Sleepiness, fatigue, lethargy | <input type="checkbox"/> No desire to talk |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Sleeplessness | <input type="checkbox"/> Feeling out of control |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Nightmares | <input type="checkbox"/> Emotionally overloaded |
| | <input type="checkbox"/> No feelings |

How NOT to Grieve

Sometimes, we will do anything rather than to undertake the hard work of grief. This may make us feel a little better temporarily, but it doesn't move us out of our desperation. Following is a list of ways people attempt to cope with their situation without facing their grief – check any that you think you might do from time to time.¹⁷

- ☐ Act out – giving in to the pressure to misbehave.
- ☐ Aim low – to what seems more achievable.
- ☐ Attack – beat down whatever or whomever is threatening you.
- ☐ Avoid – stay away from anything that causes you stress.
- ☐ Compensate – make up for weakness in one area by gaining strength in another.
- ☐ Deny – refusing to acknowledge that the event occurred.
- ☐ Displace – shifting an intended action to a safer target (like kicking the dog).

¹⁷ This partial list of coping mechanisms was taken from www.changingminds.org under their "Explanations/Behaviors/Coping" tab.

- ☐ Fantasize – escaping reality to a world of unachievable wishes.
- ☐ Idealize – playing up the good points of a desired action and ignoring downsides.
- ☐ Identify – copying others to take on their desirable characteristics.
- ☐ Intellectualize – avoiding emotions by focusing on facts and logic.
- ☐ Passive aggression – getting your way by pointedly avoiding what is expected.
- ☐ Projecting – seeing your own undesirable characteristics in others.
- ☐ Rationalize – creating logical reasons for self-destructive behavior.
- ☐ Regress – returning to a child state to avoid problems or responsibility.
- ☐ Suppress – consciously holding back unwanted urges while ignoring the root cause.
- ☐ Trivialize – making something small when it is really something big.

If you recognize any of these behavior patterns in yourself, you first need to see them for what they are: hoped-for shortcuts to restoration which won't get you there at all.

How TO Grieve

Elizabeth Kübler-Ross was a Swiss physician who did groundbreaking research in the area of grief. Her book On Death and Dying has been a classic for decades. In her studies she found that there is a pattern that most people experience when they encounter a life-changing trauma or crisis. Over the years we've come to realize that this cycle applies to just about any kind of significant loss and the resulting grief.

This cycle of emotional states is shown on the chart below. It demonstrates the roller-coaster ride of activity and passivity as the hurting person wriggles and dodges in his or her desperate efforts to cope with the trauma, avoid change, and finally be reconciled to it.

The person starts out in a state of relative stability and then the bomb goes off. Over unspecified periods of time, he or she progresses through these stages (not necessarily in this order):

- Immobilisation stage – Shock; initial paralysis after being exposed to the crisis or trauma. It takes a while for the enormity to register and sink in. Jaw drops, breath catches, can't decide what to do next.
- Denial stage – Trying to avoid the inevitable. No! This can't be happening! Or, It didn't affect me; it's not that bad. Or even: It never happened. I just imagined it.
- Anger stage – Frustrated outpouring of bottled-up emotion. Life sucks!! Rage seething below the surface at all times; lashing out at anyone for the slightest reason; blaming others; sometimes cold, icy anger; self-isolating to avoid blowing up.
- Bargaining stage – Seeking in vain for a way out. Making promises to God if He'll fix things; setting conditions for healing, like: When my husband returns to normal, then I'll get better too.

- Depression stage – Final realization of the inevitable. A very sad time, but also the turning point, because the griever is finally resolved to the fact that he or she won't be able to restore life to the way it was. It's the staging area for victory.
- Testing stage – Seeking realistic solutions. Maybe I should try getting out more. Maybe I should talk with someone about my situation. Maybe I should start exercising again. Maybe I should join that Bible study I heard about.
- Acceptance stage – Finally finding the way forward. They are now fully acknowledging the trauma or crisis. It was bad – real bad – but I survived. I'm going to make it. My world changed, but I can live in this new world. I could even prosper.

The Kübler-Ross Grief Cycle:

You may not hit all of these stages. You may skip a stage and then go back to experience it later. You may whiz through one stage and sit in another for a long time. You may find yourself going back and forth between a couple of stages or looping around to various stages willy-nilly. Some would say it ought to be called “The Kübler-Ross Grief Scribble” and looks less like a nice, neat “cycle” and more like this:

No one can say for sure how you will deal with your particular trauma, given your unique wiring. Everyone is different! But as we've stated before, there is one very important reason why God is taking you through your current affliction:

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and God of all comfort, who comforts us in all our affliction so that we will be able to comfort those who are in any affliction with the comfort with which we ourselves are comforted by God. (2 Corinthians 1:3,4)

Good Grief

When we've experienced a traumatic event, grief is what we feel. Mourning is what we do about it. It is the action side of grief, the externalizing of our internal pain. And Jesus Christ – who knows everything – says that when we do it we are blessed and will be comforted. Here are a few principles to keep in mind as you work out your grief through mourning.

"Blessed are those who mourn, for they shall be comforted."

– Matthew 5:4

➤ Remember where God is

The LORD is near to the brokenhearted and saves those who are crushed in spirit.
(Psalm 34:18)

Because of your wound, you've got God's attention in a special way. He is a compassionate God, always ready to help the one who is suffering, ready to aid anyone who will let Him. Count on that! You can expect Him to be present and responsive to your needs during this time. He is your best friend who says, "If you need anything, don't hesitate to ask!" And He means it.

Ask Jesus to enter your pain with you. Close your eyes and feel Him coming up behind you, wrapping His big arms around you and holding on tight.

➤ Remember the past and remain optimistic

"How hopeless the naked wood of a fruit tree would look to us in February if we had never seen the marvel of springtime." – Lilius Trotter¹⁸

Though what you are currently enduring may be the worst experience you've ever had to slog your way through, it's not the only trauma you've known. Think back to the times God has sustained you in the past. Elisabeth Elliot, whose missionary husband was murdered by primitive natives in Ecuador, wrote: "The death of wintertime is the necessary prelude to the resurrection of springtime."¹⁹ Spring will come.

➤ Aim steadily at faith's target

Ask yourself this question: "What do I have faith in?" How did you answer? Assuming you didn't say, "Nothing," perhaps it was like one of these:

- "That God will bring me out of this depression."
- "That I could quit drinking so much."
- "That I can get past my anger."

These are all great faith goals and excellent requests to make to God, but they aren't what you put your faith in. If you do – and they don't come about – what happens to your faith? The only answer to the question, "What do I have faith in?" should be "God." Whenever we tie our faith to our circumstances or to a particular desire, we take God off the throne of our life and set ourselves up for great disappointment.

¹⁸ Quote by Lilius Trotter, missionary to Africa from 1888 to 1928. Found in Elisabeth Elliot, A Path Through Suffering (Servant Publications, 1990).

¹⁹ Ibid, p. 41.

➤ Don't try to go it alone

Grief is hard on a person and mourning is difficult work. Effective grief work is not done alone. Don't try to be the pillar of strength to everyone around you. You'll crumble. Be sure to find a few people you know you can count on to be there for you when you need them. Death and grief expert Dr. Harold Ivan Smith writes:

"Grievors cannot extricate themselves from their cistern called grief. They need a rope. Grievors need someone on the other end to pull. But they really need individuals to pad the ropes – not with pat answers or spiritual clichés or even Scripture promises, but with hope."²⁰

➤ Do something with your anger

When anger is bottled up indefinitely, it morphs into bitterness. And, as we learned earlier, that bitterness will spread beyond the borders of your life. It's okay to be angry. It is a normal, reasonable emotion when we are confronted with unjust, hurtful, or grievous events. It is recorded in the Bible that Jesus Himself became angry on a few occasions (Mark 3:1-5; Mark 10:14; John 2:13-16). But it's what we do with that anger that can lead to sin.

The Bible says in Ephesians 4:26 (NIV) – "In your anger do not sin." When you feel the anger rising within you, first remove yourself from the physical cause of your anger if you can (e.g., if it's a person, leave the room; if a locational trigger, go somewhere else). It's like removing fuel from the fire. No fuel, no fire. Go for a run; work out, punch a pillow; dig a garden; scrub the kitchen floor; rake some leaves. Or if you're able, do something truly constructive: go help someone who needs it.

The Take-Away: Grief and Eternity

Part of growing strong and mature is learning how to fully experience the distressing events of life, embrace them, mourn them, release them, and be able to move on. Here's what Jesus wants to do for you:

The Spirit of the Lord GOD is upon Me...

To console those who mourn in Zion, to give them beauty for ashes,
The oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness;
That they may be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the LORD,
That He may be glorified.

(Isaiah 61:1-3 NKJV)

²⁰ Dr. Harold Ivan Smith in When Your People Are Grieving (Beacon Hill Press, 2001), p. 38. Dr. Smith speaks widely on the subjects of grief and death, and conducts "grief gatherings" around the U.S.

The Lord Jesus Christ says to you today...

I see everything. I see the devastation and death that your enemies have brought on you and on the ones you love. I don't want you to be surprised at the painful situation you are experiencing. I want you to trust Me. I want you to rejoice that you share in My sufferings. Your enemies hate you because they do not know that God sent Me. They hate you and hurt you without reason and without cause. I see every injustice. I am not causing you this pain and loss. The evil one and those who walk in darkness have caused this suffering for you and the ones you love. I want you to remember My word, My promise that I am with you. I will never leave you. I will provide for you. I will repay your enemies in My perfect time. Today, trust Me. I am here with you. I will make a way for you. You can do all things through Me. I love you.

Prayer

Heavenly Father, my soul feels shattered from what I have gone through. I am depressed, weary, empty, angry, and – in many ways – hopeless. But I have faith in You. I have seen You take me through very difficult times in the past, and I know that You are always with me. You bring Spring after every Winter. Please increase my faith. Help me to be patient with the process You are taking me through. Help me to experience the comfort of your Holy Spirit, and the comfort offered by my friends who love me. Help me to remember that you will soon bring spring to the winter branches I am looking at now. Please restore to me the joy of my salvation.

In Jesus' name, amen.

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 9

Who Am I? Truth for a Traumatized Identity

By Marshéle Carter, Chris & Rahnella Adsit²¹

But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name. (John 1:12)

Leaving My “Self” In Artsakh

Things had been getting worse for months. We gave ourselves hope that if we could just endure this period, and overcome the difficulties that the Azerbaijanis were bringing, maybe later the end would be good. But day by day the situation worsened. People were starving. There were fights for bread, and it was very difficult to find hygiene items and baby food.

On September 19, the shooting started. The noises startled us, and my husband, children, and I quickly ran down into our basement for shelter. But we thought, “Our lives are over. This is where it will all end.” At least our family would die together. I truly couldn’t imagine how we would ever get out alive. Perhaps it will be an artillery shell through our roof, perhaps foot soldiers storming down our stairs. But somehow we survived. The terror my family and I felt during those hours still haunts us today.

On September 25 we left Stepanakert. We traveled 22 hours – many delays, hungry, exhausted, children crying. As we approached the Hagar Bridge, we began to panic, wondering if they would allow us to cross or not. Would we die here, or would we be saved? I have never had to think such thoughts!

When we finally crossed the bridge, it was as if we were reborn. We felt saved! But on the other hand, the loss of our homeland was suffocating us.

I left my “self” in Artsakh and I will probably never find it again. I left everything there – my mother’s grave, my house, my entire childhood, my homeland. I left everything there and I will not find it here.

It’s true that we are orphans without Artsakh. But Artsakh is also orphaned without us.

Sad times make us unrecognizable even to ourselves. Our broken hearts cause important information to fade in and out of focus. Traumatic experiences can cause our own identity to come under fire. In our determination to survive each day, we stuff our identity into our back pockets and misplace our God-given uniqueness and value. We need an updated understanding of who we are and how we have changed. And we need daily reminders of what never changes.

²¹ Much of the content of this chapter is from When War Comes Home co-written by all three of us.

Truth vs. Lies

There are lying voices and subtle forces that are peeling back your edges, scarring your self-image, and making the information you believe about yourself unrecognizable. There is a big difference between who your enemies say you are and who God your Father in heaven says you are. A correct, healthy understanding of who we are is important to Him – and crucial to us.

While God spends a big portion of His word repeatedly reminding us who He is, He spends another big portion of His word telling us who WE are! He defines us over and over and over and over, because He wants us to walk in the victory of that true identity.

“Identity theft” is nothing new. It’s not a 21st century crime recently ushered in by high tech. It is actually older than dirt. Identity theft began before creation. The prophet Isaiah tells us that Satan wanted to assume the identity of the Most High God (Isaiah 14:14). But since he failed miserably in this attempt, he has made it his mission to mess with us, the ones who actually are made in the image of God.

Earthly identity theft happens when a “person knowingly uses someone else’s personal identifiers without legal authority with ill intent to gain something of value.” Or simply put, identity theft is when someone illegally takes on YOUR identity.

Spiritual identity theft is letting someone or something convince us that we are someone we’re not. Simply put, spiritual identity theft is when we are tricked or forced to take on an identity OTHER THAN OUR OWN.

Spiritual identity theft happens when we allow the enemy to persuade us to act like someone much less than what our Maker has said we are. Satan issues us a false identity. His objective is to keep reality unrecognizable to us. He wants us to forget the truth that we are redeemed, re-created, royal children of the living God (John 1:12).

Traumatic Stress and Identity

When a person experiences traumatic stress, her self-perception is often shaken to the core. While she used to see herself as rational, self-sufficient, adaptive, strong, and worthy, she now questions those assessments. They are often replaced by feelings of fear, confusion, powerlessness, and helplessness.

The effects of this negative transformation of your self-image don’t remain in the psychological realm. They bleed into your behavior too – your plans, activities, priorities, reactions, values, hopes, dreams, ambition, social interaction... the list goes on and on.

Self-perception Assessment

Dr. Steven Stosney²², an international authority on trauma and victimization, has developed a very useful template that will help you assess your current self-perception – how positively or negatively you view yourself. Dr. Stosney’s normal approach goes much deeper, but some of the elements are useful here. There are eight dynamics of self-perception listed below:

²² Opposed pairs of core values/core hurts are found in Dr. Steven Stosney’s Manual of the Core Value Workshop [Copyright 1995, 2003 Steven Stosny] and in other publications of his. For a fuller explanation consult his website: www.compassionpower.com.

Positive Self-PerceptionNegative Self-Perception

Regarded -----	Disregarded
Important -----	Unimportant
Forgiven -----	Accused/Guilty
Valued -----	Devalued
Accepted -----	Rejected
Powerful -----	Powerless
Lovable -----	Unlovable
Connected -----	Separated

Obviously, all the negative voices in your life want you to be as far to the right side of these traits as possible, which keeps you in a vulnerable position. If that's where you are at this point, it's because you have been fed lies. Here's what the Son of God says about Satan:

He was a murderer from the beginning, not holding to the truth, for there is no truth in him. When he lies, he speaks his native language, for he is a liar and the father of lies. (John 8:44 NIV)

As the Chinese warrior Sun Tzu wrote, "All warfare is based on deception." Satan has been practicing his deceptive tactics for eons. He has been observing you since you were a child. He knows just what to say to deceive you. His objective is your destruction (1 Peter 5:8), which will diminish the Kingdom of God and grieve the great heart of the King.

Exposing Your Enemy's Deception

The lies in this section were spawned by Satan. He will whisper them to your subconscious at your most vulnerable moments. You will be reminded of incidents in your past that validate them. He will contextualize them in your traumatic events. He will reinforce them with messages bombarding you from the world system that surrounds you. And before long, he will have you telling yourself the lies.

Following are eight deceptive traps your enemy has set for you. Consider whether or not you've heard them before. Each lie will be followed by the countering TRUTH that God wants you to hear.

Deception #1: DISREGARDED

Lies of the enemy:

- You are a nobody.
- No one cares about you. Why should they?
- You don't deserve the respect that others get.

Maybe those exact words weren't used, but after our world has been turned upside down, many of us hear and swallow these lies. When you hear these lies, you look at your situation, you look at how people respond to you, you consider your own failures, and you resign yourself to the "apparent truth" of those lies.

God wants to give you true information that counters Satan’s deceptions. Your traumatic stress has changed you – that’s the kernel of truth. But to say, “Because I’ve changed and I’m not functioning as I used to, I am worthy of disregard” is an absolute lie and needs to be opposed by God’s truth.

Not only is His Word true, but it is also living and active according to Hebrews 4:12. That means that it’s not just words that some ancient prophet scribbled on paper several centuries ago. It continues to live today. As you read those words, and as the Holy Spirit energizes and breathes life into them, they are the words of God being spoken directly to you, right where you are.

Your TRUE Identity: REGARDED

You are a friend, sibling, child, and heir of the King of the Universe! He has had plans for you even since before He created Adam and Eve. You are loved and highly regarded!

- [Jesus speaking:] I no longer call you servants, because a servant does not know his master’s business. Instead, I have called you friends, for everything that I learned from My Father I have made known to you. (John 15:15 NIV)
- So now Jesus and the ones He makes holy have the same Father. That is why Jesus is not ashamed to call them His brothers and sisters. (Hebrews 2:11 NLT)
- Now you are no longer a slave but God’s own child. And since you are His child, God has made you His heir. (Galatians 4:7 NLT)

* * * * *

Deception #2: UNIMPORTANT

Lies of the enemy:

- Your input is unnecessary and unwanted.
- You’re just a little fish in a big pond.
- Go sit on the sidelines.

Your TRUE Identity: IMPORTANT

- But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name. (John 1:12)
- You’re here to be salt-seasoning that brings out the God-flavors of this earth. (Matthew 5:13 MSG)
- You’re here to be light, bringing out the God-colors in the world. (Matthew 5:14 MSG)

Not only do you hold important positions as an eternal child of God; not only has He called you as His seasoning and His light on the earth; but you also are being trained and qualified for unique future leadership in Christ’s Kingdom on earth as His child and heir.

Jesus was wounded, and all those who follow Him also receive wounds – as you have. Down through the ages, the men and women who were significantly used by God were wounded in some severe way. You have been through the Refiner’s fire – and may still be in the middle of it.

There are evil forces doing their best to propel our world into chaos. The Bible predicts that in the end times society will crumble and treacherous times will ensue – and those times are at hand. Who better to lead us through those traumatic times than people like you? You've been to hell and back. You're important now, but as you are more fully restored to health, you will prove to be invaluable in the coming times.

* * * * *

Deception #3: ACCUSED/GUILTY

Lies of the enemy:

- You really blew it and need to be punished.
- You're unforgivable.
- You can't be trusted.

Your TRUE Identity: FORGIVEN

- Therefore, there is now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus. (Romans 8:1)
- Therefore, having been justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. (Romans 5:1)
- Their sins and lawless acts I will remember no more. (Hebrews 10:17 NIV)

God has forgiven believers in Christ of all our sins. He has removed them as far as the east is from the west. He remembers them no more. We are clean. We are free from sin and its shame and guilt.

* * * * *

Deception #4: DEVALUED

Lies of the enemy:

- We don't need you or want you.
- You're not good enough.
- You don't have what it takes.

Your TRUE Identity: VALUED

- The Lord appeared to us in the past, saying: "I have loved you with an everlasting love; I have drawn you with loving-kindness." (Jeremiah 31:3 NIV)
- Don't you realize that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit, who lives in you and was given to you by God? You do not belong to yourself, for God bought you with a high price. So you must honor God with your body. (1 Corinthians 6:19, 20 NLT)
- For God knew His people in advance, and He chose them to become like His Son, so that His Son would be the firstborn among many brothers and sisters. And having chosen them, He called them to come to Him. And having called them, He gave them right standing with Himself. And having given them right standing, He gave them His glory. (Romans 8:29, 30 NLT)

So, we were known and loved by God, chosen by Him to become like Jesus Christ, called by God to come to Him, given right standing with Him, and finally given glory. I'd say that's all quite valuable!

* * * * *

Deception #5: REJECTED

Lies of the enemy:

- You are a failure.
- We want someone better than you.
- You're not qualified.

Your TRUE Identity: ACCEPTED

- To the praise of the glory of His grace, by which He made us accepted in the Beloved. (Ephesians 1:6 NKJV)
- As you come to Him, the living Stone – rejected by men but chosen by God and precious to Him – you also, like living stones, are being built into a spiritual house to be a holy priesthood, offering spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. (1 Peter 2:4,5)

The "living Stone" is Jesus Christ, who was rejected by mankind (when He was crucified), but always chosen and precious to the Father. In the same way, you were selected by God to be part of His spiritual construction. So not only are you accepted by God, but the sacrifices you're making, all that you are offering up to God, He also regards as totally acceptable!

* * * * *

Deception #6: POWERLESS

Lies of the enemy:

- You are weak; damaged goods.
- Can't you do anything right?
- Someone is always going to have to take care of you.

Your TRUE Identity: POWERFUL

- For God has not given us a spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind. (2 Timothy 1:7 NKJV)
- You are from God, little children, and have overcome them; because greater is He who is in you than he who is in the world. (1 John 4:4)
- For everyone born of God overcomes the world. This is the victory that has overcome the world, even our faith. Who is it that overcomes the world? Only he who believes that Jesus is the Son of God. (1 John 5:4,5 NIV)

You probably don't feel particularly powerful these days. You may feel powerless to accomplish basic goals, control your anger, take care of your kids, sleep, conquer your depression, etc. But your weakness is only temporary. When Jesus was taken into custody, tortured and crucified, He seemed very weak. But it was only temporary. In fact, He had massive latent power during that entire ordeal. The power was there, just not being used – and for good reasons. You have that same latent power. Begin asking God to help you release the latent power that He has placed within you. He wants to! Just ask Him!

* * * * *

Deception #7: UNLOVABLE

Lies of the enemy:

- Who would ever love you? You have no redeeming qualities.
- You're so ugly and boring.
- You are beyond being loved – by God, by your husband, or by anyone.

Your TRUE Identity: LOVABLE

You are of infinite worth. God was so much in love with you that He was willing to sacrifice His Son to redeem you from your sins. Even if you were the only person on earth, He would have done it for you!

- For I am convinced that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor any other created thing, will be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. (Romans 8:38,39)
- Greater love has no one than this, that a person will lay down his life for his friends. (John 15:13)
- But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us. (Romans 5:8 NIV)

How much love would it take for you to be willing to die for someone else? It happens from time to time, and it always amazes us. How could someone be so selfless?

But would you be willing to die for someone who had betrayed you? You would have to be an incredibly loving and forgiving person to die for someone like that. And yet, that's how bad we were – and worse – when Christ died on the cross for us. That's how much He loves us.

* * * * *

Deception #8: SEPARATED

Lies of the enemy:

- You are alone and you should stay that way.
- No one wants you around; can't you go someplace else?
- You shouldn't be such a bother to other people.

Your TRUE Identity: CONNECTED

You are connected in two realms...

Connected to God:

- [Jesus speaking:] I am the vine, you are the branches; he who abides in Me and I in him, he bears much fruit, for apart from Me you can do nothing. (John 15:5)
- For you are all children of God through faith in Christ Jesus. (Galatians 3:26)

Connected to the Body of Christ – other Christians:

- All of you together are Christ's body, and each of you is a part of it. (1 Corinthians 12:27 NLT)
- You are no longer foreigners and aliens, but fellow citizens with God's people and members of God's household. (Ephesians 2:19 NIV)

* * * * *

As you work through your difficulties, there will be times when you feel alone, rejected, unlovable, devalued and unimportant. That's when Satan will do all he can to affirm those thoughts. We need to recognize his tactics. He's using deception to move you closer to despair and defeat. He is lying. Counter his lies with the truth.

This Is Who I Am

REGARDED

- I am a friend of the Almighty God of heaven and earth. (John 15:15)
- Jesus is not ashamed to call me His sister. (Hebrews 2:11)
- I am chosen by God, holy and without fault in His eyes. (Ephesians 1:4)

IMPORTANT

- I have been rightly called a child of God. (John 1:12)
- God has made me His salt and light in the world. (Matthew 5:13, 14)
- I am an eternal being. (John 3:16)

FORGIVEN

- I am no longer condemned. (Romans 8:1)
- I have been justified before the righteous Judge. (Romans 5:1)
- God no longer remembers my sins. (Hebrews 10:17)

VALUED

- God loves me with an everlasting love. (Jeremiah 31:3)
- I am God's temple, bought at a great price. (1 Corinthians 6:19, 20)
- God knows, chose, called, justified, and glorified me. (Romans. 8:29, 30)

ACCEPTED

- I am accepted in Christ. (Ephesians 1:6)
- I am a chosen, costly, living stone in God's building. (1 Peter 2:4, 5)
- I have bold, unrestricted access to God's throne of grace. (Hebrews 4:16)

POWERFUL

- God has given me the spirit of power, love, and a sound mind. (2 Timothy 1:7)
- God's Holy Spirit in me is greater than any unholy spirits in the world. (1 John 4:4)
- I am born of God and believe in Jesus – I am an overcomer. (1 John 5:4, 5)

LOVABLE

- I am loved by God and nothing will keep us apart. (Romans 8:38, 39)
- I am loved supremely – enough for God to die for me. (John 15:13)
- I am loved unconditionally, even when I sin. (Romans 5:8)

CONNECTED

- I am intimately attached to Christ and bearing fruit. (John 15:5)
- I am a member of God's eternal family. (Galatians 3:26)
- I am an eternal member of God's Kingdom and household. (Ephesians 2:19)

The more often you meditate on these truths, the more they will positively influence your self-perception. A traumatized identity needs truth in order to heal.

* * * * *

The Take-Away

Your traumatic experiences may have shaken your self-identity to the core. You may no longer have the confidence and positive opinion of yourself that you once had. Satan would like to redefine you and keep you depressed and discouraged. He's a liar and has no good future in mind for you. But God also wants to let you know who you are, and HE KNOWS THE TRUTH! Listen to Him!

Prayer

Lord, thank You that my relationship to You has no expiration date. When I look at my photo, help me to remember that You see past the face I wear for others. You created me and know the real, eternal me.

Whenever I'm asked for my documents, I will thank you that I am not just a number to You. I belong to You and am a citizen of heaven. Help me to remember that ultimately Jesus is my only sponsor who always makes intercession for me.

Father, thank you for the new identity and privileges that are mine as your child, because of what Jesus has done for me. The blood of Your Son authorizes me to countless blessings and uniquely defines how You see and value me.

Thank you that my God-given identity and privileges in Christ will never fade or be taken from me, no matter how many difficult times Your plan for my life includes.

In Jesus' Name, amen.

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 10

God's Strategy for Defeating Your Enemies

By Chris & Rahnella Adsit

*If you know the enemy and know yourself, you need not fear the result of a hundred battles.
If you know yourself but not the enemy, in every victory gained you will also suffer a defeat.
If you know neither the enemy nor yourself, you will succumb in every battle.*

Sun Tzu – The Art of War
(Chinese General, 544-496 BC)

There are wars raging all over the world at this present moment. What we see and hear is horrific. There are invading armies leaving a path of destruction: killing, looting homes, and leveling whole cities. Worse, they are committing unspeakable horrors such as massacring civilians, and raping and torturing innocent women and children. Loved ones are being separated from one another, often not knowing if the others are dead or alive. People are losing their homes, families, and their communities. It is hard not to despair and be sucked into the vortex of darkness. But we must not forget that in all this devastation our greatest threat is found not in the things we can see, but in the things we cannot see. The Bible says:

For our struggle is not against human beings, but against the rulers, authorities and cosmic powers governing this darkness, against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realm. (Ephesians 6:12 CJB)

In all conflicts, nothing will guarantee defeat more completely than forgetting who our real enemy is, and nothing guarantees victory better than a strategy that takes out the leaders of the opposing force. Our true adversaries don't carry rifles or drive tanks; it is the spiritual forces of darkness behind them that bring about destruction and death. They must be fought with the battle plans and gear that God has provided.

Fighting the Wrong Enemy

In the early 1500's the Spanish invaded present-day Guatemala seeking to conquer the Mayan people and claim the gold-rich region as their own.

"The Mayans – who fought with bow and arrows – were known to be brave, fierce warriors. But the invading Spanish soldiers had a distinct advantage because they wore armor, and they had horses and guns. Horses were unknown in the Western Hemisphere at that time. So when the Mayans saw one of these swift-footed beings with an armored appendage on top, they thought it was all one creature.

They aimed at the horse, not realizing that the real enemy was the soldier astride the horse. Their arrows felled the horses in great numbers, but the armored soldiers jumped from their mounts and shot the native warriors with their muskets. The Mayans were massacred by the hundreds, and the Spanish easily seized control of the entire region."²³

This is a great illustration of spiritual warfare! The Mayans were defeated because they failed to recognize the real enemy riding on the horse's back – and that's often what happens to us. When another person confronts us with their evil intentions, we need to remind ourselves that they are not our biggest threat, they're only the horse!

Horses with their riders are invading your country, and anyone who has been around a horse knows they aren't exactly harmless. You must be wary of them because at any moment they may kick you, bite you, or trample over you! But don't forget about the "humans" controlling the horses; they can be far more dangerous! When you need to protect yourself and your loved ones, there are Biblical principles to follow. This list is by no means comprehensive, and it is not a simple "do or don't" list. In each case, you need to ask God for His wisdom and direction in personally applying these principles.

Biblical Principles about How to Deal with the HORSES

While the Mayan's main problem was the Spanish soldiers, they couldn't ignore the horses. As powerful and swift as they were, and considering how they were used to such great effect by the soldiers, the horses were dangerous too and had to be dealt with. In the same way, even though your primary problem has to do with the forces of darkness, you also must act wisely toward the humans that those forces are animating. The enemy combatants in your country are the horses in this illustration.

The Bible says there is "a time for war" (Ecclesiastes 3:8). God will teach you how to fight (Psalm 144:1-3; Psalm 18:34), and He will tell you when to fight (Nehemiah 4:11-18). Our God is a warrior (Exodus 15:3), and the Lord of Armies (Hosea 12:15). If He is calling you to fight, there are some Biblical rules of engagement to follow:

- You have the right to defend yourself and your loved ones (Exodus 22:2-3; I Timothy 5:8).
- You have the responsibility to defend the vulnerable (Psalm 82:4; Deuteronomy 22:24-27).
- You are to rescue those who are being slaughtered (Proverbs 24:11).
- You have the right to protect your loved ones and your property (Exodus 22:2-3; Nehemiah 4:14; Luke 11:21; Luke 22:36).
- You are not to commit murder (Exodus 20:13; Matthew 5:21) There is a difference between killing someone in a just war and murdering them. When you must kill, you do it to protect yourself or others and eliminate a mortal threat. When you murder somebody, your intention is solely to kill them for your own private purposes, and you plan it out ahead of time.

²³ "A Woman's Guide to Spiritual Warfare." by Quin Shever and Ruthanne Garlock, Servant Publications, Ann Arbor, Michigan (pg. 36, 37)

- You are encouraged to ask God to judge and bring justice to your enemies. For example, David prays against those who hate him without cause (Psalm 69:4). Jesus, who is called Faithful and True, will righteously judge and make war with those who are wicked (Rev. 19:11; Revelation 21:8).
- It is normal to feel hatred towards those who do evil. Anger is part of the grief cycle. In Scripture, it says that God hates the wicked and those who love violence (Psalm 11:5). God also hates: haughtiness, lying, killing the innocent, plotting evil, racing to do wrong, a false witness, and someone who sows discord (Proverbs 6:16). Sin has a rippling effect. May we all grow to hate sin – in our lives and in others.
- As a servant of God, He may use you to carry out His righteous judgment on the wrongdoer (Numbers 31:3; Esther 8:11; Psalm 94:16; Romans 13:4).
- If possible, as far as it depends on you, live at peace with your enemies (Romans 12:17-18; Ezekiel. 33:11).
- Resist the urge to take vengeance on your enemies; you are to leave that up to God. He can do it much better than you can (Romans 12:19; Isaiah 42:13; Proverbs 24:29).

Biblical Principles about How to Fight the RIDERS

In Paul's first letter to Timothy, he tells him to "fight the good fight" (1 Timothy 1:18). Later in his second letter he says: "Suffer hardship with me, as a good soldier of Christ Jesus" (2 Timothy 2:32). YOU are a soldier in a midst of a cosmic battle between God and His forces, and Satan and his forces, and you are called to fight (Eph. 6:12-18). In this section you will learn how to identify your enemies, know your assets, neutralize the threats, and live in a place of freedom, safety and victory.

At this point, we would like to introduce you to The Cross Illustration. You will find it at the end of this chapter (page 95). It is a picture of what we will be referring to throughout this chapter. There is the Kingdom of Light, and there is the Kingdom of Darkness. You are either taking a stand on the high ground, seated "with Christ Jesus in the heavenlies" (Ephesians 2:4-7), or you are seeing defeat because you are living in enemy territory, under the powers and authorities of darkness. There is no middle ground. In this section you will learn how to identify your enemies, prepare for battle, and defeat them.

>>Know Your Enemies

So, who are your enemies? The Bible says that you are fighting on three battlefronts:

1. The Infernal Enemy: the spiritual forces of darkness
2. The External Enemy: the evil world system, created and supported by Satan
3. The Internal Enemy: the flesh (your old nature)

- 1) The Infernal Enemy: You are fighting against the spiritual forces of darkness, which are supernatural enemies. Satan is called the “prince of the power of the air” (Ephesians 2:2). Jesus also called him the “ruler of this world” (John 12:31). It does not mean that he rules the world completely, but it does mean that God has allowed Satan to have significant authority and to operate in this world within the boundaries He has set for him. The Bible says that our foremost enemy is not “flesh and blood,” but a spiritual one. Satan has an army. It has a command structure. And he has a vast communication and control system (Ephesians 6:12).

- 2) Your External Enemy: You are also fighting against the evil world system – the secular world. It is a world that opposes any effort by God to exert His influence or standards on them. 1 John 2:15-17 NASB says: “Do not love the world nor the things in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the boastful pride of life, is not from the Father, but is from the world. The world is passing away and also its lust; but the one who does the will of God continues to live forever.” The cultural values that the world is promoting include a wide range of sinful standards and behaviors. These include:²⁴
 - Hedonism – The “lust of the flesh.” The desire for physical pleasure is all important. The world says: “If it feels good do it.”
 - Materialism – The “lust of the eyes.” The belief that possessions and physical comfort are the most important things in life. The world says: “You have needs – satisfy them.”
 - Narcissism - The “boastful pride of life.” This is all about pride and status. The world says, “You are number one – and everyone should know it.”

- 3) Your Internal Enemy: Another enemy you must fight against is your old sinful nature – your fleshly desires (Galatians 5:17-23; 1 Peter 2:11). It is so easy to get caught up “in the snare of the devil” (2 Timothy 2:26). When you sin, you are opening yourself up to “following the course of this world, following the prince of the power of the air” (Ephesians 2:2), and that means you have wandered into enemy territory (1 John 5:19). Sin may give pleasure for a moment, but over time you might find yourself held captive by that sin (Galatians 5:17-21; Romans 8:13). Living in habitual sin exposes you to great danger! It weakens you, makes you vulnerable to enemy attacks, and you will find yourself living a life marked by defeat (James 4:17; Colossians 3:25).

In 1 Peter 5:8 it says: “Be sober-minded; be watchful. Your adversary the devil prowls around like a roaring lion, seeking someone to devour.” Lions roar as a demonstration of their power and to protect their territory. Make sure that you are not living in his territory. If you have experienced trauma – that also makes you vulnerable. Your enemies know your weaknesses and all the wounded places in your life.

²⁴ From “What’s Influencing Your Worldview?” - Daily Hope with Rick Warren - November 11, 2021 - Daily Hope with Rick Warren, Daily Devotional (lightsource.com)

So how do you fight? Every battle strategist will tell you that “the high ground” is the most strategic place to fight from. If our connection with Jesus Christ is solid and uncompromised, we are on the high ground. See The Cross Illustration at the end of this chapter (p. 95) – notice the “High Ground” at the top of the page, in contrast with “The Kingdom of Darkness” at the bottom.

Your union with Christ is what makes you strong (Ephesians 6:10). It is in Him that you take your stand. Do you believe that He came to earth as a man (Hebrews 1:3)? Do you believe that Jesus died for you on the cross and that He rose from the dead and now sits at the right hand of the Father (Romans 8:34; Mark 16:9)? The Bible says in 1 Corinthians 15:1-4: “Now I would remind you, brothers, of the gospel I preached to you, which you received, in which you stand, and by which you are being saved ... that Christ died for our sins in accordance with the Scriptures, that he was buried, that he was raised on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures ...”

God raised Jesus “from the dead and seated Him at His right hand in the heavenly places, far above all rule and authority and power and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this age but also in the one to come. And He put all things in subjection under His feet.” (Ephesians 1:20-22). All it takes is to believe in Jesus and to ask Him to come into your life. It is then that He will give you a new nature (Galatians 5:22-25), with a new identity (John 1:12) and a new purpose (Ephesians 2:8-10). Under His command He will train you (Psalms 144:1), equip you (Ephesians 6:10-18) and empower you (Ephesians 3:16,17) and then He will lead you on to victory. Are you ready to fight?

>>Strategy for Defeating Your Enemies

“Victorious warriors win first and then go to war, while defeated warriors go to war first and then seek to win.”

Sun Tzu, The Art of War

The battle begins with you. Take a look at The Cross Illustration at the end of this chapter again. When you are walking in the flesh or in your old nature, whose kingdom are you in? You end up behind enemy lines (Galatians 6:7-8) in the Kingdom of Darkness. You can't fight from there! This isn't easy to say, but sometimes YOU are the horse, and the enemy might be riding you!

1) The Initial Assault

This involves direct combat with enemy forces. Before you fight, we need to ask you: have you received Christ in your life? If you haven't before, now is the time (please see chapter 14 for insight on how to do this). This is how you “win first” before going to war. Receiving Christ into your life brings you out of the kingdom of darkness, and into the kingdom of light (Colossians 1:13). If you want to win, it begins here, at the foot of the cross. John 1:12 says that “... as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name.” If you are stuck behind enemy lines, whether you are a believer or not, please know that He wants to pour out all of His love and forgiveness on you (Romans 5:8; 1 Corinthians 15:3-6; John 1:12; Ephesians 2:8,9).

The next step in this battle is to ask the Lord to search your heart and reveal any unconfessed sin in your life. The Bible says in Psalm 139:23-24 ESV: “Search me, O God, and know my heart! Try me and know my thoughts! And see if there be any grievous way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting.” Proverbs 28:13 (NIV) says: “He who conceals his sins will not prosper, but whoever confesses and renounces them will find mercy.” If you have sinned (and frankly, we all have), you need to take responsibility for it.

Here are three things you need to do to properly deal with your sin:²⁵

- Confess: I John 1:9 NKJV says: “If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.” It is more than just telling God “I’m sorry,” then walking away. To confess means to openly agree with God that you have sinned. And when you confess, you need to be specific. Ask God to dig out the roots of your sin, because only then will you be truly free. It helps if you actually write down the sins that God brings to your mind.
- Repent: Jesus Christ suffered the penalty for your sins so that you could repent. Repentance is a change of heart and mind. It literally means to “turn around and go the other way.” It’s seeing your sin from God’s perspective, honestly looking at the choices you have made and the rippling effects of those choices, and feeling the weight of that. Repentance requires true brokenness. Jesus said: “I have not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance (Luke 5:32).” When you repent it involves releasing your grip on your sin, turning away from it, and then going the opposite direction, turning to God for forgiveness, future help, and guidance. This is not hard to do when you know that you are loved by God, that you love Him, and that you want to get back into a right relationship with Him (Acts 3:19).
- Renounce: Do you remember that in Proverbs 28:13 it says to “renounce” your sins? That means that it is important to tell someone (at least one or two people) about your decision so that they will provide you with accountability and encouragement, especially involving any big sins that you may have had a hard time letting go of.

When you follow God’s strategy, He will forgive you and cleanse you from all your sins. “Come now, let us reason together,” says the Lord; “though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they are red like crimson, they shall become like wool.” (Isaiah 1:18 ESV). Doing all this moves you from the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom of light and removes all legal grounds for the enemy to hold you captive. James 4:7,8 says: “Submit therefore to God. But resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Come near to God and He will come near to you.”

How does one “resist the devil?” Simply defy what he is trying to get you to do. Note: you don’t have to beat Satan to death. Simply resist him, and he must flee. If he’s trying to get you to do

²⁵ For more on this subject, please go back to chapter 4 and re-read the section on dealing with “True Guilt” – pages 34,35.

“A,” tell him, “No. I will not do that. I resist you in the name of Jesus Christ.” You will be amazed at how quickly he stops his attempts at influencing you and quickly runs for an exit!

Prayer: I want to thank You Father for giving me the secret weapon to victory: submission to You and resisting the devil. I humbly pray that You will bless me with the strength to resist the devil and all spiritual attacks from evil enemies. Help me to come nearer to You as I turn away from my sin, the temptations in my life, and all distractions. It is my heart’s desire to live in complete submission to Your leadership. Help me to listen and obey.

Ephesians 5:8 says: “And do not get drunk with wine ... but be filled with the Spirit ... giving thanks always and for everything to God the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.” Now that you are cleansed, drink in God’s Spirit, and thank Him for your victory!²⁶

2) Finishing the Job

With God’s help and blessings, you have accomplished the task that lands you in the kingdom of light. The following measures will serve to give you time to put the finishing touches on your actions...

- When we think about repentance, we might think it’s only about “stopping” a certain behavior. But scripture is clear that repenting and bearing fruit go together. If you are sincere, your life will prove it. Examples:
 - Is there an individual that you need to forgive? The Bible says: “And do not give the devil an opportunity to lead you into sin by holding a grudge, or nurturing anger, or harboring resentment, or cultivating bitterness.” (Ephesians 4:27 AMP). “For if you forgive other people for their offenses, your heavenly Father will forgive you.” (Matthew 6:14 NASB).
 - Is there anyone to whom you need to provide restitution? Numbers 5:6-7 says: “Any man or woman who wrongs another in any way and so is unfaithful to the Lord is guilty and must confess the sin they have committed. They must make full restitution for the wrong they have done, add a fifth of the value to it and give it all to the person they have wronged.” (Luke 19:1-10).

We aren’t saying that you need to follow the specifics of the Levitical Law contained in the Old Testament. Those laws aren’t for today. But this law demonstrates that God’s heart is that if you have wronged someone, you need to make it right. What is God asking you to do? Take a moment and pray about it, then write down what God has put on your heart.

- Be prepared for an attack from your enemies; they will come to test your resolve. “Be sober and alert.” (1 Peter 5:8). As soldiers often remind each other as they go into battle: “Keep your head on a swivel!”
- At various times in the Old Testament, the Israelites set up a simple altar or memorial to mark the time and place where God did a powerful miracle. These

²⁶ For more on the subject of the Holy Spirit, please see chapter 11 “Building Your Healing Environment – Elements 1 & 2,” the section on “Element #1: The Holy Spirit: Your Divine Power Source” – pages 98-101.

“altars of remembrance” were built with “memorial stones” that served to remind them of God’s provision, protection, guidance, and faithfulness (Genesis 12:6-7; 28:10-22; Numbers 16:39,40; Joshua 4:1-24). You can build a type of “memorial altar” too. This is a good idea because in our memories of past events, the details can get fuzzy. And if our history is fuzzy, it’s hard to apply the lessons we learned then to now.

Your life is built up of individual “stones.” They may be miracles you experienced, great battles God has won in your life, a difficult time God brought you through, answered prayers, etc. If you start collecting these stones, over the years you will create an altar of remembrance, a testimony of God’s faithfulness, love, power, and trustworthiness. One way you can do this is to write these experiences down, constructing a “Journal of God’s Faithfulness.” Another way is to actually collect physical mementos from the site of the event (like the Israelites bringing rocks up from the bottom of the Jordan River where they crossed over into the Promised Land) and keep them in a safe place somewhere (A box? A special shelf?). When you are feeling defeated or uncertain about the future, bring out these “memorial stones” and recall what God has done for you in the past.

- What are other ways you can memorialize what God has done in your life?
- How has God carried you in the past?
- What is God doing for you right now? How will you mark this occasion?
- Practice telling your story about how God sustained you in the past. Your story is important because it is a GREAT way to tell others about Jesus. When someone doesn’t care about what the Bible says about suffering, you will disarm them when you ask them, “May I share with you what God taught me through my pain?” Your story has purpose – and one purpose is to comfort others. 2 Corinthians 1:8 NIV says: “Grace and peace to you from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ, who comforts us in all our troubles, so that we can comfort those in any trouble with the comfort we ourselves have received from God.”

Now that you have won the battle within, it’s time to ready yourself for the battle outside, and report to your Commander, the Lord Jesus Christ. He has a job for you to do, are you ready?

>>Reporting for Duty

As you prepare, it’s a good idea to read Jesus’ orders first. Take a moment to read Ephesians 6:10-18.

Like a soldier, this is an oath of enlistment – your “Swearing-In Ceremony” into God’s Army. We regularly do this in our morning devotionals, and we encourage you to read this before making the commitment to serve Him today.

My Declaration of Faith:

“Lord, to whom shall we go? You have words of eternal life. And we have already believed and have come to know that You are the Holy One of God.”
(John 6:68,69)

My Oath of Allegiance:

I acknowledge Your total claim on my life. Help me to be Your representative here on earth. I hereby affirm that I am making myself available to:

- Go anywhere You want me to go (even if it means to stay)
- Say anything You want me to say (or not say)
- Give anything You want me to give (or not give)
- Do anything You want me to do (or not do)

I surrender my will to Your Lordship over my life. I trust that whatever You ask of me You will create in me the desire and ability to accomplish it through Your indwelling Holy Spirit. Lord, I shall gratefully accept everything that pleases You. Let Your will be done.

[By the way, Rahnella first declared this Oath to God in May 1978!]

My Preparation for Battle:

Lord, this day I offer You my allegiance and prepare to join You in battle against the rebellious demonic forces in order to help establish Your kingdom here on earth and in heaven.

Lord Jesus, You are my glorious King, You are the Lord of Armies (1 Samuel. 1:3). You are the Lord strong and mighty in battle (Psalms. 24:8).

Help me to grow in Your power and strength, through my union with You.

I know that my main struggle is not against humans, but it is against evil rulers and powers of this world, and it is against the spiritual forces of evil behind them in the heavenly realm.

I wait for Your orders Lord, ready to act at Your command and to do my duty as a soldier in Your army.

Therefore, I take up the spiritual armor and weapons of war You have provided so that I will be able to resist the evil that surrounds me. (Ephesians 6:13-17):

- I will stand firm, having You, who is the living truth buckled around my waist.
- I will put on the breastplate of righteousness that You have provided. Thank you for declaring me as one of Your righteous ones, and thank you that I don't have to be perfect, because only You are!
- I put on my sandals of preparation and peace, standing in readiness, strengthened and assured by the good news that in the end, we win!!
- I take up the shield of faith, which you will use to extinguish the flaming darts of the enemy.
- I put on the helmet of salvation, knowing that I have eternal life and that my mind is shielded from the corrupting influences of the evil one.

- Finally, I raise high the sword of your Spirit – your Word – with which I can defend myself and also push back the kingdom of darkness for Your glory! I will follow You, who is the Living Word, into battle.

Help me to keep in constant communication with You, tuned to the frequency of the Holy Spirit. May I stay alert, praying vigilantly and persistently for all of God's people.

I now fight from a place of victory!

For You have already triumphed over our enemies. You have disarmed these evil, rebellious forces, putting them to shame (Colossians. 2:15), and You did all this through Your incarnation, crucifixion, resurrection, and ascension where You are now seated at the right hand of the Father, far above all rulers, authorities, powers and dominions (Ephesians. 1:20-21). And I am seated with You! (Ephesians 2:6).

I am at Your command. Lead on my Lord and King!

Anoint me afresh with Your Holy Spirit.

May I fight with holy boldness, for I am made more than a conqueror through Christ who loves me (Rom. 8:37).

May I finish well and bring You glory!

The Take-Away

The Bible says that we overcome Satan and his demons by “the blood of the Lamb, the word of our testimony, and that we do not love our life even when faced with death.” (Revelation 12:11).

Daily putting on your spiritual armor makes you armed and dangerous! Will you join us and our Lord and King Jesus Christ on the front lines today? Will you make a commitment to pray this daily or weekly? If so, copy this prayer, sign, and date it. May it remind you that:

- You are in the middle of a cosmic battle and God has equipped you to fight (Ephesians 6:12-18)!
- Your best position to fight from is the high ground, “in the heavenlies,” where the commander of the heavenly forces, Jesus Christ, rules and reigns (Ephesians 2:4-7).

Don't be afraid of them!

Remember that the LORD is great and awesome!

Fight for your families, your sons, your daughters, your wives, and your houses!

(Nehemiah 4:14)

Prayer

The battle rages all around me – both physically and spiritually. Sometimes I feel like it will overwhelm me. But I remember how You have sustained me in the past, and I know you will sustain me now. Teach my hands to fight, as you did King David (Psalm 144:1). Give me the insight to fight the “riders” and not just the “horses.” Help me know how to defend myself and others from the attacks of my enemy. Let me see the truth of what You have said in Your word: that I am MORE than a conqueror in Christ (Romans 8:37). May I finish strong and give You glory! In Jesus' mighty name I pray, Amen.

Additional Resources:

The Combat Trauma Healing Manual – Chapter 8: “How Do I Fight? Rebuilding Your Defenses” (English, Ukrainian, and Russian translations.)

When War Comes Home – Chapter 10: “Who is The Real Enemy? Fighting Spiritually for Myself, My Husband and My Kids” (English, Ukrainian and Russian translations.)

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 11

Building Your Healing Environment: Elements 1 & 2

By Chris Adsit

So I say to you, ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you. For everyone who asks, receives; and he who seeks, finds; and to him who knocks, it will be opened.
(Luke 11:9,10)

Every Armenian knows someone who has been wounded, injured, or killed in the war with Azerbaijan. Even you, as a woman trying to get your children to safety, or as a humanitarian worker, or as a member of the military, or someone just trying to survive – you too may have been wounded. But what many people fail to understand is that wounds that are received in the context of war are almost always more than physical. There are psychological and spiritual aspects as well. How can we reverse the effects that trauma has had on us in all three contexts?

The Essence of Healing

When the subject of healing comes up, we usually think about doctors. A doctor will do something to fix you: stitch you up, set a bone, give you some antibiotics, remove your appendix. But they're not really healing you. They are removing or mitigating destructive conditions and barriers in your body and adjusting your environment in such a way that the normal healing processes that God has built into every person can proceed unhindered.

God has set up certain principles that will optimize your physical, emotional, and spiritual healing processes. Two things are required: first you need to know the principles, and then you need to follow the principles. These principles are not things like, "Go to church three times a week, carry a Bible with you at all times, shower in holy water, and live a perfect life." The principles you'll be reading about in this chapter and the next have to do with establishing or deepening your relationship with God and giving Him optimal access to your wounded soul.

Sometimes God heals in a dramatic fashion – instantly! But usually He takes a more gradual, process-oriented approach. It's like how He would care for a young, injured tree: raining down life-giving water and energizing sunlight; bathing it with carbon dioxide for respiration; cool evenings and warm days for an invigorating rhythm; winds to strengthen its trunk. If the young tree wants to heal, it just needs to make sure it remains in the environment God has set up for it. If it decides it doesn't like getting rained on or sun baked, pulls up its roots and takes up residence in a basement, it will never heal.

In the same way, God has set up a healing environment for you. The longer you stay in that environment, the more healing you will experience.

“For I, the LORD, am your Healer.” (Exodus 15:26)

Building upon the foundation of Jesus Christ being your Lord and Savior (if you're still confused about this, see Chapter 14 which will describe how to begin a personal relationship with Christ), we want to share five vital elements that are crucial to your healing environment:

- 1. The Holy Spirit – your divine power source
- 2. The Word of God – your divine nourishment
- 3. Prayer – vital communication with your Healer
- 4. The Christian Community – your divine incubator
- 5. Talk – your trauma-processing mechanism

The effects of these elements probably won't be as sudden as we would like. But they will deepen and strengthen your connection to the Healer so He can accomplish His healing work in you.

ELEMENT #1: The Holy Spirit – Your Divine Power Source

Who is the Holy Spirit?

The Bible presents God as a “Trinity” – three-in-one. That is, God is affirmed to be the one-and-only God (Deuteronomy 6:4; Isaiah 43:10; John 17:3; 1 Corinthians 8:4), and yet there are three distinct “persons” who are referred to as God:

- God the Father – John 6:27
- God the Son – John 20:26-28
- God the Holy Spirit – 1 Corinthians 3:16

One God presented in three different manifestations, each one with a separate and distinct function. All three Persons of the Godhead have existed as a unit since before time began – never beginning, never ending. But each has a different job.

In a nutshell, the Holy Spirit's function is to live within us, empower us, comfort us, heal us, transform us, help us communicate with God, and enable us to live a righteous and satisfying life.

The “Filling” of the Holy Spirit

Don't be drunk with wine because that will ruin your life. Instead, be filled with the Holy Spirit. (Ephesians 5:18 NLT)

In this verse, God gives us two commands, one positive, and one negative:

- Do not get drunk with wine.
- Be filled with the Holy Spirit.

Every Christian is “indwelt” by the Holy Spirit from the moment of salvation (1 Corinthians 3:16; 12:13; Romans 8:9) and His Spirit will never leave you. But to “be filled” with the Holy Spirit describes a different state. Someone who is “filled” with the Holy Spirit is being controlled, empowered, and directed by Him. The point of this verse is that, just as alcohol can control us in destructive ways, the Holy Spirit can control us in positive, constructive ways – if we allow Him to do so.

Three Kinds of People

The Bible talks about three kinds of people in 1 Corinthians 2:14-15 and 3:1-3.²⁷

The Natural Man – “Captain of my own soul!”

Self, on the throne or control center of his life.

† = Christ in the form of His Holy Spirit, is outside the life.

Circles = Activities, interests, priorities, and plans in discord with God's desires.

This represents the non-Christian who doesn't have a relationship with God. As he tries to direct his own life in his finite and usually self-interested way, it often results in frustration, despair, and discord with God's perfect plans for him.

The Spiritual Man – “Walking in faith and obedience.”

Self dethroned, letting Christ be Lord of his life.

† = Christ is on the throne in the form of His Holy Spirit, guiding and empowering the Christian.

Circles = Activities, interests, priorities and plans in harmony with God's desires.

This represents a Spirit-filled Christian walking closely with God. Since God is all-powerful and all-knowing, He can ensure the Christian's life will harmonize with His plans for him, resulting in love, joy, peace patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control (Galatians 5:22,23) – among other things! No guarantee of a problem-free life, only one that is in harmony with God's plans.

The Worldly Man – “I can take it from here, thanks. Now, leave me alone.”

Self is back on the throne, trying to direct his life again.

† = Christ still in the life but dethroned and not allowed to be Lord.

Circles = Activities, interests, priorities and plans in discord with God's desires.

This represents a Worldly Christian who isn't walking with God. As he ignores or disobeys God's directions, his life falls into disarray. Comparing frustration levels, dead-ends, and despair, it's difficult to tell the difference between the Worldly Christian's life and the non-Christian's life.

²⁷ William R. Bright, Have You Made the Wonderful Discovery of the Spirit-Filled Life? (Orlando, FL: Campus Crusade for Christ, 1966,1995). Illustrations used by permission.

Two Questions to consider:

1. Which of the three circles represents your life?
2. Which circle would you like to have represent your life?

If you would say that the first circle best represents your life, read Chapter 14 and find out how to bring Christ into your life and onto your throne. If you find that the bottom circle represents your life at the moment, and you would rather have it represented by the middle circle, here is a four-step plan that will help you make that move.

1. Desire.

Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they shall be filled.
(Matthew 5:6)

Search your heart. Do you “hunger and thirst for righteousness”? Do you truly want Jesus Christ as your Lord and the Holy Spirit on the throne of your life? Are you willing to obey what God tells you to do? Don’t expect His power to flow unhindered if you are simply “putting on a show” or pretending. God looks at the heart, and He knows your heart perfectly.

2. Confess.

If we confess our sins, He is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. (1 John 1:9)

The reason the Holy Spirit may be “quenched” (1 Thessalonians 5:19) in your life is because of sin – saying “No” to God and “Yes” to your unrighteous desires. In prayer, ask God to reveal any sins that have been disconnecting you from His plan and power. As He brings them to mind, agree with Him that those choices were wrong (that’s the essence of confession). Ask Him to forgive you for each one – and He will.

3. Present (or Yield or Offer).

And do not present your members [body parts] as instruments of unrighteousness to sin, but present yourselves to God as being alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness to God . . . For just as you presented your members as slaves of uncleanness, and of lawlessness leading to more lawlessness, so now present your members as slaves of righteousness for holiness. (Romans 6:13,19 NKJV)

Most people associate slavery with demeaning oppression—and in almost every case it is. In the spiritual realm, Satan desires to enslave you to his will, which will lead to destruction. But God wants you to be “enslaved” to His will for your benefit, leading to freedom from the things that tear you down, and a strong connection to the things that will build you up and bring you satisfaction, healing, fulfillment, and joy.

4. Ask.

So I say to you, ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you. For everyone who asks, receives; and he who seeks, finds; and to him who knocks, it will be opened. Now suppose one of your fathers is asked by his son for a fish; he will not give him a snake instead of a fish, will he? Or if he is asked for an egg, he will not give him a scorpion, will he? If you then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask Him? (Luke 11:9-13)

What astounding, superhuman exploits does this passage say you need to perform in order to “persuade” God to give you what you need? That was a trick question! Answer: simply ask. Remember what was said earlier about our free will? God won’t compromise your privilege of choosing. Since each of us makes willful choices to depart from His will, we need to make a willful choice to get “reconnected.”

Asking To Be Filled

When you pray to God, He isn’t as concerned about your specific words as He is with the attitude of your heart. But sometimes it helps to express what is in your heart if someone else supplies the words for you. Here is a suggested prayer:

Dear Father, I need You. I hunger and thirst for Your righteousness, rather than for the garbage of the world. I want You to be my King and my Guide. But I confess that I have taken the throne of my life from Your control and have sinned against You. I’ve made many wrong choices. Please forgive me for this. I present myself to You in obedience, desiring to serve You rather than myself or my enemy, the devil. Please fill me with Your Holy Spirit. I step down from the throne of my life and give it back to You. I have faith that You have heard my prayer and have filled me with Your Holy Spirit. Thank you! Amen.

Element #2: The Word of God – Your Divine Nourishment

When you received Jesus Christ into your life, you became a three-dimensional being, composed of a body, a soul, and a spirit. We know that our physical bodies need to be fed. Most people are regularly reminded of it by hunger pangs. But our souls and our spirits also need nourishment. Our soul – our will, intellect, understanding, emotions, etc. – is nourished by things like truth, beauty, love, knowledge, and friendships. Our spirit – the part of us that relates to God – is fed by the words of God: the Bible. As Jesus said in Matthew 4:4, “Man shall not live on bread alone, but on every word that comes out of the mouth of God.” And as Peter wrote in 1 Peter 2:2, “As newborn babes, desire the pure milk of the word, that you may grow thereby.” (NKJV)

A Christian who doesn’t get a regular diet of God’s Word will end up with an emaciated, weak, and sickly spirit. Perhaps you’ve seen photos of people being liberated from Nazi concentration camps at the end of World War II. If we could take photos of the spirits of some Christians today, they would probably look very similar to the physical bodies of those poor men and women who had been deprived of proper nourishment for so long. Don’t let this happen to you! Be sure that you’re getting a steady diet of God’s meat and potatoes!

Benefits of Reading the Bible

The following passages describe the benefits of studying and applying God's Word to your life. In the box next to each one you can read about at least one benefit mentioned in each passage.

Bible Passage	Benefit(s)
God speaking to Joshua: Study this Book of Instruction continually. Meditate on it day and night so you will be sure to obey everything written in it. Only then will you prosper and succeed in all you do. – Joshua 1:8 (NLT)	As we study, meditate on, and obey the things God has told us in the Bible, and allow our priorities and commitments to line up with His, we will prosper and succeed in all that we do.
King David writing: The law of his God is in his heart; his feet do not slip. – Psalm 37:31	When God's Word has been stored away in our hearts (by studying, memorizing, and meditating on them), we'll always be on stable and solid footing.
King David writing: How can a young man keep his way pure? By living according to Your word... I have hidden Your word in my heart that I might not sin against You. – Psalm 119:9,11(NIV)	Hiding God's Word in our hearts (by studying, memorizing, and meditating on them) will help us to resist the devil, flee temptation, and stay pure before God.
Jesus speaking: If you remain in Me and My words remain in you, ask whatever you wish, and it will be given you. – John 15:7	As we keep God's Word in a prominent place in our minds and hearts, and keep Jesus on the throne of our lives, we will find that our prayer requests line up with God's will and are granted.
Jesus speaking: If you hold to My teaching, you are really my disciples. Then you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free. – John 8:31,32 (NIV)	Knowing and obeying the teachings of Jesus – learning from Him as His disciples – will help us know the truth about the world, God, and ourselves, and set us free from any bondage.

Your Personal Plan

You know that if a person wants to be physically healthy and strong, he or she needs to take in good food consistently – every day. In the same way, a Christian needs to take in God's food – the Bible – consistently. Make a commitment to spend some time every day taking in God's Word. Mix it up – you can listen to a recording of it, read it, study it, memorize it, and meditate on it. Even if you can only find 5 or 10 minutes for this each day, it will be a huge help. It's not so much the quantity of time that you spend in the Bible, but the consistency. Your spirit will respond very positively to this habit, and before long, you'll find that 10 minutes a day isn't enough. You'll want to spend 12 minutes. Then 15. Then 30. Etc. No one will force you into it – you will crave God's word more and more!

The Take-Away – Keep Going!

In this chapter we've covered two of the five elements of your healing environment: the filling of the Holy Spirit and studying God's Word. We'll cover the next three in the next chapter. ALL FIVE are very important elements if you are intent on experiencing all the healing God has for you! If you leave even one of them out, you will slow down your progress. So, as Winston Churchill said to his people in England during World War II, “When you’re going through hell, keep going.” Don’t quit!

Prayer

Heavenly Father, my soul has been wounded, and I need Your healing. You know me inside and out. You know when I stand up, when I sit down, when I lay down. You know every tear that I have shed and all the trouble I’ve seen. Please heal me in every way that I need to be healed. Give me the insight, wisdom, and determination to cooperate with You in the process You have in mind to bring about my healing. I strongly desire to keep You on the throne of my life, looking to You for guidance, comfort, and power. I also desire to feast on Your Word, to take in all the heavenly nourishment that You know I need. Help me to be diligent and vigilant in my pursuit to stay in the healing environment you have provided for me. In Jesus’ name, Amen.

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 12

Building Your Healing Environment: Elements 3,4 & 5

By Chris Adsit

Come to Me, all who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest.
Take My yoke upon you and learn from Me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. (Matthew 11:28,29)

In the previous chapter, we learned that doctors don't actually heal anybody. But their contribution to our healing is crucial, as they take away factors that hinder our health, and add other factors that allow our natural God-given healing powers the opportunity to function properly.

When the doctor stitches up our child's cut, bandages it, and gives us a week's worth of antibiotics for our little patient, we would be foolish to neglect keeping his bandage clean or giving him his pills. We might say, "Well, I don't mind giving him his pills – that's easy. But changing that bandage – ick! It's gross! And it's too much work. The pills will probably be good enough." Not wise. We should include as many elements of the doctor's good advice as possible!

It's the same principle when it comes to our psychological and spiritual healing from trauma. Jesus has told us that if we are weary and burdened and in need of rest, He will give us the healing and rest we need if we will only come to Him and apply what He tells us. We've covered two very important elements of a healing environment in Chapter 11 – the filling of the Holy Spirit and studying the Bible – but we can't skip over the final three: Prayer, the Christian Community, and Talk. Since our Heavenly Doctor knows what we need to restore our health, we would do well to listen to Him!

ELEMENT #3: Prayer – Vital Communication with your Healer

When two people are in a relationship, talking together strengthens their bond while silence always weakens it. In your relationship with Christ, prayer is your conversation. As Bible teacher Rosalind Rinker wrote, "Prayer is a dialog between two people who love each other."²⁸ The more time you spend in prayer with the "Lover of our soul," the closer you will grow to Him and the more you will experience His love, power and influence in your life.

Ironically, most Christians don't spend much time at all in prayer. Ask any group of Christians how many of them think they should spend more time praying, and usually every hand will go up. But that doesn't have to be true about you!

Why do you think so many people are reluctant to spend much time in prayer?

²⁸ Rosalind Rinker, Prayer: Conversing With God (Grand Rapids: Zondervan, 1959). p. 23.

One reason could be that people do not understand the purpose of prayer. Though God loves to answer the requests we make of Him in prayer, this isn't its only purpose. God is not a cosmic Father Christmas, existing only to grant us all our desires and make us happy. We must never forget that Christianity is not supposed to be merely a religion or a philosophy of life. It is a relationship with our heavenly Father. And in any relationship, there must be communication. We don't always benefit directly from the communication itself, but the communication produces a deeper relationship, which opens the door to all kinds of benefits.

What Does God Want You To Pray About?

God loves you with a love that is more permanent, intense and pure than anything humans can imagine. Proverbs 15:8 says, "The prayer of the upright is His delight." And guess what – because of what Christ did for you on the cross, you are one of the "upright," and He is absolutely delighted with you – especially when you pray! Imagine Jesus Christ, sitting by your bed when you wake up, saying, "Good morning! I love you! I can't wait to hear your delightful voice! Say something – anything – please!"

Here are a few verses in the Bible that will give you some insight concerning what God wants to hear about from you:

Verse	What is being prayed for or about?
I love You, O Lord, my strength. The Lord is my rock and my fortress and my deliverer, My God, my rock, in whom I take refuge; My shield and the horn of my salvation, my stronghold. – Psalm 18:1-3	This pray-er (King David) simply wants to tell God how much he loves and appreciates all that He does for him. It's worship or adoration . It actually does us good to express our worship to God.
In everything give thanks; for this is God's will for you in Christ Jesus. – 1 Thessalonians 5:18	We should express our thanks to God for all He has done for us. We may not feel like thanking Him for every single thing we experience, but even when we are in difficult times, we can still thank Him for walking with us through it, and for what it will produce in us.
My God, my God, why have you abandoned me? Why are you so far away when I groan for help? – Psalm 22:1,2(NLT)	We can pray when we're in trouble – even when we feel God has abandoned us. He hasn't, but He doesn't mind us expressing our alarm to Him. This was a prayer of both King David and Jesus Christ, so it must be OK!
If we confess our sins, He is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. – 1 John 1:9	When we know we have done something that is contrary to God's law, we need to agree with Him about it (confession), and He will forgive us.
Give us this day our daily bread. – Matthew 6:11	We can bring our needs to God no matter what they are – even for mundane things like lunch. He knows we need food! Ask!
Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one. – Matthew 6:13	Our enemy (Satan) wants to devour us (1 Peter 5:8). God is against that idea. Continually ask Him to protect us from all our enemies.

How God Answers Prayer

God answers every prayer we pray in one of three ways: Yes, No, or Wait. Obviously, we would like to increase the percentage of “Yes” answers we get. Psalm 37:4 gives us some great insight into how to do this:

Delight yourself in the Lord; and He will give you the desires of your heart.

When the Lord is our delight, when our attitude toward Him is one of love, acceptance, submission and a quiet confidence that He always knows what’s best for us, when we’re willing to allow His will to be done rather than what we might prefer, this gives Him unhindered access to our souls and spirits so that our desires will line up with His before we even begin to pray. Then we’ll be able to pray boldly the way Jesus prayed, even when He knew He would be crucified the next day:

Nevertheless, not as I will, but as You will. (Matthew 26:39 NKJV)

Too often we humans misuse our free will in order to act in ways that we think will be good, but are in fact self-serving and at odds with God’s desires. But when we submit our will to His will, LOOK OUT! That’s when He can really do amazing things in us and through us!

Your Personal Plan

Add a few minutes of prayer to your daily time in God’s Word. Again, even if you only spend five minutes in prayer it’s an excellent start, and you will be amazed at what begins to happen in response to your prayers!

ELEMENT #4: The Christian Community – Your Divine Incubator

You need a safe, comforting place where you can heal and grow stronger – even if you are a refugee away from your home or even in a foreign country. You need a place where wise and friendly people are looking out for you, helping you get the things you need, and keeping the storms and stresses of life away for a while. This is one of the main reasons God created the Church and has hopefully placed a few Spirit-filled friends in your life.

Most people who are in crisis or who have experienced trauma tend to self-isolate. This is the absolute worst thing you can do! It goes against the basic design objective of our Creator. Our friends were designed specifically for this kind of situation. Here’s what God says about Christian fellowship:

Two people are better off than one, for they can help each other succeed. If one person falls, the other can reach out and help. But someone who falls alone is in real trouble. Likewise, two people lying close together can keep each other warm. But how can one be warm alone? A person standing alone can be attacked and defeated, but two can stand back-to-back and conquer. Three are even better, for a triple-braided cord is not easily broken. (Ecclesiastes 4:9-12 NLT)

God invented the Church to be like an incubator, a place where His children can grow, get strong, get healed, and become stable and independent. We’re not necessarily talking about a building here, though that is often where “the Church” will be found. The Church is a living organism composed of Christians all over the world. The Bible refers to this as “The Body of Christ” as in, Christ is the head, and we are like His hands and feet, accomplishing His work on the planet.

Here are a few verses that describe what should happen when Christians form a community that is determined to make a place where God can help and heal.

Verse	What Should Happen
As iron sharpens iron, so a friend sharpens a friend. – Proverbs 27:17 (NLT)	A knife cannot become sharp all on its own. It needs another iron or stone to grind it down, knock off the burrs and dents, and bring its edge to a point. Be a sharpener!
Laugh with your happy friends when they're happy; share tears when they're down. Get along with each other; don't be stuck up. Make friends with “nobodies;” don't be the great “somebody.” – Romans 12:15,16 (MSG)	Engage your friends emotionally where they are. Humbly relate to them in a variety of ways. Whether they are grieving or rejoicing, Christians can enter into each other's emotions in ways that will build them up.
Those of us who are strong and able in the faith need to step in and lend a hand to those who falter, and not just do what is most convenient for us. Strength is for service, not status. Each one of us needs to look after the good of the people around us, asking ourselves, “How can I help?” – Romans 15:1,2 (MSG)	Christians in a community should always be looking for ways to help and serve each other. Mark 10:45 says that even Jesus, the Son of God, didn't come to earth to be served, but to serve others. It's a good example for us to follow.
But encourage one another day after day, as long as it is still called “Today,” so that none of you will be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. – Hebrews 3:13	Sin will do two things to you: it will harden you, and it will deceive you. But as we are engaged in honest, humble communication with other Christians, they can let us know when they see these conditions creeping up on us.
Let's not merely say that we love each other; let us show the truth by our actions. – 1 John 3:18 (NLT)	Talk is cheap. Christians shouldn't just say they love each other. They should demonstrate it with their actions . That will show the truth of what's in our hearts.

What Happens Underground?

In northern California on the west coast of the U.S. you can find majestic forests of giant Redwood trees. These are the tallest and most massive trees on the planet, many of them rising over 100 meters. Some have been around for over 2,000 years – since before the days Jesus walked in Israel! I know that Europe has some pretty impressive cathedrals, but as you walk among the Redwoods you'd think you're in the grandest cathedral on earth! You can't help but to be awestruck by their strength, endurance and tenacity.

But one thing you will never see is a single Redwood tree growing all by itself in the middle of a field. God has ordained that Redwood trees must always live in groves, because He is aware of their secret: shallow root systems.

Unlike many large trees that have deep taproots, Redwood root systems grow laterally, and cover a huge area to efficiently absorb the small amount of rain that falls on their rocky habitat. So, to keep from being blown over in the sometimes-wild northern California storms, Redwoods interlace their roots below the surface, forming a solid platform that stretches for hectares – even kilometers. When the storms blow down from the Sierra Nevada mountains, they remain standing because they hold each other up!

This is an excellent picture of how the Christian community is supposed to be. The world can be a stormy place from time to time – as every Armenian woman has experienced. Any Christian who tries to “go it alone” is vulnerable. It won’t be long before difficulties are encountered that are more than they were designed to handle. This is why it is crucial for Christians to get deeply involved in each other’s lives, interlace their “roots,” and hold each other up during the storms that hammer them.

Your Personal Plan

Undoubtedly, you are in great distress because of what you’ve had to endure due to the Azerbaijani invasion of your country. If you have had to leave your home, and if you have children to care for, every day must be packed with obligations, chores, inconveniences, problem solving, logistics, and effort. I’m sure that at the end of each day, you just want to lie down and sleep. And when the sun comes up, you’d rather just stay in bed – if only you could.

Probably one of the last things you want to do is put more effort into cultivating relationships with other Christians, plugging into a church, and taking your kids there on Sunday mornings. But the fact is, this would be time and effort well-spent. You need this group of fellow believers in your life for the purposes of encouragement, safety, accountability, and camaraderie. You need a herd. You need a tribe. You need a friend who will listen to you, understand your trials, and provide the emotional and spiritual support you need. Whether it is a formal church, a neighborhood Bible study, or just a group of Christian friends who get together informally once a week, you need them. And they need you!

Regardless of the hassle it may involve, find that local Christian community! Pray that God will lead you to a group of fellow believers if He hasn’t already. And then make the effort to get involved with them.

ELEMENT #5 – Talk: Your Trauma-Processing Mechanism

Earlier in this manual we talked about how God has given us amazing ways of surviving trauma physically, psychologically, and spiritually. One component of His survival system for us has to do with a sudden ability to suppress our normal emotional reactions and situational analysis while in the middle of a traumatic incident so that we can focus on the threat, take action, and get to safety.

Sometimes we click into “fight” mode. Sometimes it’s “flight.” Sometimes it could even be “freeze.” Sometimes it has to do with the ability to disregard incredibly shocking and gruesome events happening around us so that we can think clearly and get ourselves out of a dangerous situation. Sometimes it may even involve a dissociative episode where we convince ourselves that we're not really there – the trauma is happening to someone else, not me. There is an impressive cascade of hormones that trigger a constellation of physiological actions and reactions that enable us to do things we may never have even thought about before – but doing them now keeps us alive.

It's good that we don't respond to these horrible events in normal ways in the moment they're happening. To do so could delay our escape and we end up dead. So God gives us the ability to shove our normal responses down in our minds and hearts – but only temporarily. The idea is that, once the threat has passed and we're in a safe place, we need to “process” those traumatic events, bring them from the past into the present, and allow the emotions and analysis that we had previously suppressed to come to the fore and be fully experienced. They won't just dry up and blow away. They must be dealt with.

But we don't want to think about them! AT ALL! They were horrible, traumatic, terrorizing experiences! Why would I want to bring them to mind now that they're in the past?

Experts in the field of traumatology almost unanimously agree: the trauma you experienced could control your life indefinitely unless you “process” it, and the best way to process it is to remember it and talk about it. There are around a thousand approaches to dealing with Post-traumatic Stress Injury, and almost every one of them involves “talk therapy” – talking about what happened.

You may think that simply talking about what you experienced wouldn't have much effect. But decades of professional studies and practice prove the opposite. And if a person chooses not to process their trauma and tries to keep the feelings associated with them suppressed, they may feel OK for a while. In fact, some traumatized people experience no symptoms at all for months or even years after the incident. But eventually, these memories insist on being dealt with and they will push themselves to the surface of the person's life, and they begin having the symptoms expressed in Chapter 5.

The Bible advises us:

“Above all else, guard your heart, for everything you do flows from it.”
(Proverbs 4:23 NIV)

The most difficult part of being traumatized is not the actual traumatic event that happened in the past, but the long-term effect of not being fully engaged in the present. As leading trauma expert Bessel van der Kolk wrote,

“In the long term, the largest problem of being traumatized is that it's hard to feel that anything that's going on around you really matters. It is difficult to love and take care of people and get involved in pleasure and engagements because your brain has been re-organized to deal with danger.”²⁹

²⁹ Bessel van der Kolk, “Trauma, Development and Healing.” <https://www.psychotherapy.net/interview/bessel-van-der-kolk-trauma>. (Author of The Body Keeps The Score: Brain, Mind, and Body in the Healing of Trauma).

Your heart and soul have been wounded, and what flows from a wounded heart will rob you of feeling fully alive and in control of yourself. As the above verse urges, take the initiative. Be pro-active and intentional about the condition of your heart. Being passive will only make things worse.

Talk – but to whom?

Obviously, as we have recommended throughout this manual, talk to God. He is the one who can actually heal the wounds of your heart and soul. Pour out your confusion, anger, fears, frustration, and desires to Him and tell Him how it's making you feel. He hears you; He sees you; He understands you; He wants to help you. He won't be offended no matter how "real" you are with Him.

In partnership with your prayers, it would be ideal if you could spend time with a counselor or psychotherapist who is trained in addressing trauma. But in your current unstable situation with limited means, plus the scarcity of trained trauma counselors in Armenia compared with the overwhelming need, this is probably not really an option right now.

Your next best plan (and who knows – it could be your best plan!) is to talk with a friend who knows you and understands what you've been through. The listening ear and kind heart of a good friend is a key element of God's healing plan for you. Your friends are uniquely equipped to be used by God to help you!

A friend loves at all times, and a brother [or sister!] is born for adversity. (Proverbs 17:17)

Your objective in this is not necessarily to get insight and good advice from them. They probably are not trained in how to do this anyway! The objective is for you to simply be able to share your experiences – to get it out. You may want to find someone who is going through the same difficulties you are experiencing. You might even consider assembling a group of three to five women who would agree to meet together weekly and talk about your experiences. You will be amazed at how therapeutic this is for all of you!

Whether it's an individual or a small group, approach it openly and honestly with them. You could be the spark plug for healing! You could tell potential group members something like:

"I have been learning about trauma healing, and the experts say that one of the things that will help the most is to talk about what we have experienced. I'm going to put together a group that meets every week and simply talks together. Would you be interested in joining? I know I need this, and I think we could really help each other."

Then, come together consistently for a period of time. Share your hearts. Listen. Encourage. Pray for each other. Share scripture that is meaningful and comforting to you. The rhythm of these weekly meetings will have a very positive effect. Neuroscientist Catherine Kerr talks about the great therapeutic value of consistently meeting – whether it's with a therapist or a group of positive friends:

"For some reason, if you go every week to therapy, you are going to get better. But you could talk about the weather! When we perform these "rituals" with a desire to get better, we often do. We now know that a lot of the positive therapeutic benefit from psychotherapy and from various pain drugs may come from that initial context; it often has nothing to do with the specific treatment that is being offered. It is really just about the person approaching a situation with a sense of hope and being met by something or someone that seems to hold out that hope”³⁰

The Take-Away for Chapters 11 & 12

As we’ve said in several places in this manual, if you want to experience healing from your trauma, it is essential that you take action! As a wise doctor will advise you concerning changes you might need to make in your lifestyle and environment, God has done the same. Keeping Jesus Christ on the throne of your life day-by-day, moment-by-moment is a foundational element. Add to that consistent times of reading your Bible and praying, along with connecting with a local body of believers, and finding a trustworthy group of friends you can talk with about your trauma – these five elements will greatly accelerate your journey back to healing, strength, and stability.

...and you will find rest for your souls. (Matthew 11:29)

Prayer

My Father, You have made a plan to heal me. Help me to listen to Your voice and follow Your plan as best I can. Help me to become very good at talking with You, and to make this practice a part of every day. Help me find fellow believers that I can bond with, so that I might be encouraged and encouraging. And especially help me to find a person or group of women that I can truly talk with – who will listen to me, and to whom I will listen, so that we might all heal together as we help to release each other’s burdens. I pray this in Jesus’ name, Amen.

³⁰ Catherine Kerr. Ibid.

Women, War, + Trauma – Chapter 13

Parenting in Times of War

By Rahnella Adsit

There is no room in love for fear. Well-formed love banishes fear.

(1 John 4:18 MSG)

Being a mother is challenging in the best of times, but it can be extremely difficult to navigate during a time of war. Armed conflicts no longer take place on remote battlefields. They are fought where civilians are often caught up in the midst of the fighting and are routinely targeted. This has taken a brutal toll on children. As a parent, we struggle at finding balance between protecting our children's innocence and having to explain this new world to them. Though we wish it wasn't true, we can't always stop bad things from happening in our children's lives. But we can help our children learn to cope with their anxiety and develop inner strength and resilience so that they can meet the challenges they will face in their futures.

My parents modeled this to us as we were growing up. My dad's career led us to 26 moves on three continents by the time I was 21 years old. One of my earliest memories is when we were living in Germany. It was 1961 and I was 6 years old. Cold War tensions over Berlin were running high. We were the only Americans living in a German neighborhood, about 170 miles east of Berlin. On August 13th, East German soldiers strung up barbed wire sealing off the passage connecting East and West Berlin, eventually building the Berlin Wall. Those tensions bubbled over into our neighborhood. One day our neighbors surrounded our house and started shouting at us "Go home Yankees!" and other epithets. Then they began hurling plates at the outside walls of our house. My father wasn't home, and we were scared. My dear mother, to comfort my brothers and me, told us that our neighbors were just welcoming us to the neighborhood, and then she had us crawl up onto the widow seat, wave at all our neighbors and shout out "danka schön, danka schön" ("thank you kindly") in response. This may have been the first time, but it was not the last time we faced precarious situations as a family.

Who is the Most Important Person in a Child's Life?

From the start of a child's life, mothers and fathers are the most important figures of attachment. The relationship between a parent and child is a vital part of their physical, emotional, and spiritual development. In the midst of war, many children may find that their access to the care, empathy, and attention of parents who love them is regularly restricted or non-existent.

Because parents are so often focused on protecting and providing the basic necessities of their families, they are sometimes emotionally unavailable to their children, or they may have been severely traumatized by the war themselves. This may lead some children to struggle with attachment issues which could create problems in the future as they are unable to emotionally connect with others. This is one of the reasons why it is so important – despite all the needs of others around you – that your children’s physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being needs to be your top priority.

How to Recognize Signs of Distress in Your Children

Studies have shown that children and families living in or fleeing from war have an increased risk of suffering from mental health challenges – even for years after the crisis is over. Children can have a wide variety of immediate and long-term reactions to adverse events in their environment. Your children can be very different even from each other in their reactions to stress.

Some signs of distress may not be obvious, and they can vary significantly from child to child. Here are some of the negative reactions children may be exhibiting at different ages.

AGE	REACTIONS
0-3 years	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Clingy • Increasingly Irritable • Demanding • Frequent crying 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Regressing to younger behaviors • Hyperactive 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Increasingly fearful • Changes in sleeping and eating patterns
3-6 years	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Clingy • Increasingly irritable • Difficulties with concentrating • Progressively more inactive/hyperactive • Increased anxiety 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Regressing to younger behaviors • Increasingly fearful • Stops playing • Uncommunicative 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Changes in sleeping and eating patterns • Tries to take on adult responsibilities
7-12 years	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Frequent concern about others affected • Aggressive • Memory issues • Feeling guilty or blaming themselves 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Changes in sleeping and eating patterns • Restless • Unable to concentrate • Fixated on the event 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Becoming withdrawn and afraid • Increasingly anxious • Physical symptoms • Repetitive play
13-17 years	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Increasingly anxious and afraid • Self-destructive • Risk taking 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Aggressive • Deep grief • Feelings of guilt and shame 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Shows excessive concern for others • Feeling hopeless • Self-destructive

Other possible reactions:

- Physical reactions which can include: feeling tired all the time, dizziness, headaches, shortness of breath, stomachaches, and dry mouth.
- Serious reactions which may need specialized care, such as: severely anxious all the time, withdrawn or very quiet with little movement, hides from other people, doesn’t respond or speak to others, overly aggressive and starting to hurt others, feeling confused or disorientated.

Tips for Comforting and Supporting Your Children

“He who is not every day conquering some fear has not learned the secret of life.”

Ralph Waldo Emerson

During my nomadic childhood, my parents used the dangerous experiences we encountered to teach us multiple life-saving skills. We learned that it was okay to be scared, but they encouraged us to face our fears with courage and do what we needed to do to survive. They taught us to carefully assess threats and evaluate our options. They encouraged us to always be aware of our surroundings. They taught us the importance of listening to our instincts – that sometimes they were more accurate than the information we had in our heads. They taught us to embrace the hardships because they had things to teach us, and to accept those things we couldn’t change or control. Basically, they taught us to see challenges in our lives as opportunities to grow. These lessons continue to bear fruit in me as an adult, as my husband Chris and I have had numerous occasions over the years to work in various dangerous and war-torn countries around the world.

Ane Lemche, a psychologist and child counselor with Save the Children, wrote:

“What is happening in Ukraine [or in any country at war] can be frightening for both children and adults. Ignoring or avoiding the topic can lead to children feeling lost, alone, and more scared, which can affect their health and wellbeing. It is essential to have open and honest conversations with children to help them process what is happening.”³¹

The rippling effect from the outbreak of war has created a lot of fear and anxiety for all of us, but there are many things we can do to help our children face their fears and grow into adults who live their lives with courage. Here are 6 ways to help your children:

1. First, take care of yourself

This might sound selfish to you, but your children are depending on you. It’s natural as a parent to put yourself on the bottom of the care list, but it’s not the best thing for your family – especially in a critical situation. Remember what happens when you board a plane? The flight attendant goes over the safety procedures; one of them includes putting on your oxygen mask. What do they say? “Place the oxygen mask on yourself first before helping small children or others who may need your assistance.” If you don’t follow this protocol, neither you nor your children will be safe.

Be aware of your stress levels and your feelings and find ways to manage them. Your anxiety can be contagious. Get the most credible information you can regarding the war and act on it appropriately. Find other adults to support you. Do not use your children as your sounding board or confidants – save that for your husband or peers.

³¹ Ane Lemche, Article: Ukraine: Five Ways to Talk to Children About Conflict. www.savethechildren.net/news/Ukraine-5-ways-talk-children-about-conflict-0.

2. Establish a weekly family huddle

This is a time set aside to share the latest updates on the war, making sure it is age-appropriate. Keep it to the basics. Find ways to reassure without making false promises. It's a great opportunity to find out what they have seen or heard, to talk about their feelings, and review what you all need to do to reduce the risk of getting hurt.

To help allay everyone's fears I suggest you develop a Family Action Plan and review it each week, this should include:

- Physical Activities: This can promote health and decrease everyone's anxiety. Try to eat right, step outside to get a breath of fresh air, stay hydrated, and exercise by walking or jogging around the block, dance, or use an exercise video.
- Mental Activities: Keep your minds occupied. It is important to stick to a schedule, because during stressful times, your child especially needs the safety and security that comes from a regular routine. Plan family activities, play games, read books together. Schedule time for schoolwork. Limit screen time.
- Soul Activities: Incorporate art or music into your lives. This touches the creative side of your family's brains. It can bring beauty into your worlds and provide healthy ways to express your feelings.
- Relational Activities: This might mean sharing the burden by assigning them household chores. This will be beneficial to both the children and the parents (can I get an AMEN!?). It could mean staying on top of family conflicts or developing clear protocols on how to safely connect with family & friends.
- Spiritual Activities: This can bring your whole family comfort and strength. Help them work through spiritual concerns and needs. Pray together. Read the scriptures as a family. Attend church. Have a daily, age-appropriate devotional. Practice grace and forgiveness.

3. Develop a family emergency plan

This is the time to visit the land of "what if's" temporarily, but don't take up residence there ("What if this happens?" "What if that happens?"). Meditating on all the bad things that could happen can greatly increase your anxiety and sense of vulnerability. Think objectively about what emergencies you and your family need to be ready for. I would encourage you to discuss these issues with your spouse if he is available. Planning for an emergency will help your children feel safe, but it needs to be age appropriate. Here are some tips for creating your own emergency plan:

- Escape Plan: Make a "Go Bag" for each member of your family (see suggestion #4 below about how to make a "Go Bag."). Make sure that each family member knows where their Go Bag is and under what circumstances they are to grab it and go. It's not a toy – not to be played with.
- Escape Routes: Go through each room in your home (or wherever you are staying) with your children and determine what is the quickest and safest route outside. Make sure each member of your family knows the plan for each room. Practice the plan so they know how to act should they need to make a quick escape.

- Emergency Meeting Spots: Choose three spots that every family member knows of in case you need to evacuate quickly, and you aren't all together at that moment. Agree on one place near your home, another outside your neighborhood, and one out-of-town location, such as at a relative's or a friend's house. Discuss under what conditions they should go to each of the three locations.
- Emergency Contingencies: You will also need to write up a list of questions that need to be addressed, such as what happens if one or both of the parents gets injured? What happens with the kids? Do we need to write up a will? Should we write a "good-bye" letter for each of our children, just in case? The more work you put into this ahead of time, the safer everyone will feel. Sometimes the unknowns cause us the greatest fear.
- Agree on a "Secret Word." There may come a time when you and your child or children are separated, and you need to get a message to them. But when the message or messenger gets to them, how do they know it's from you? What if a stranger approaches them and says, "Your mother told me she wants me to take you to her," but he is an evil person who is planning to kidnap your child. Your son or daughter can verify the legitimacy of the message if you have all agreed ahead of time on a secret "signal" word that only your family knows. Your child would ask, "If my mother sent you, she would have given you our Secret Word. What is it?" If they don't know, instruct your child ahead of time to start screaming as loud as they can, "HELP! THIS IS A BAD MAN! HE IS TRYING TO KIDNAP ME! SOMEBODY HELP ME!!!" Make it a word that is simple and easy to remember. Review the word frequently, and tell your children NEVER to tell it to anyone else!

4. Pack a 72-hour emergency "Go Bag"

A list of what to include in an emergency bag is included in chapter 7 – "Survival Tips for Protecting Your Family" (pages 62,63). Here are a few extra things to consider as you pack for your children:

- Don't be afraid to involve your kids in packing their own emergency bag. Generally, just like you, the more involved and prepared they are, the safer they will feel.
- Keep in mind the age and size of your child, and the weight of the bag. Remember: you are packing a bag for surviving 72 hours. Very small children can have a bag big enough to carry their blanket and favorite stuffed animal or doll, but not much more.
- Emergency Go Bag suggestions:
 - For your kid's bags, pick colors that are neutral or dark. You don't want them to stand out in the crowd, especially if you are running from gunfire.
 - Do something to help your child easily spot and grab their bag, such as: attach an emergency whistle to the outside of their bags, each with a different color cord or ribbon, so once they grab their bag you can quickly take it off and place the whistle around their neck.

- Explain the purpose of everything as you pack the bag. You can say something like: “We are attaching this whistle in case you get lost. It’s only for an emergency. All you have to do is blow it, and when we hear it, we can find you! Let’s practice blowing it.”
- Be sure to pack something that will keep the kids occupied (and distracted) like a coloring/activity/sticker book with crayons or magic markers, a deck of cards, small packs of Legos, books, etc. Add these things after you pack the bag with them so that they can get little surprises later. For older kids you might pack them their own phone/tablet chargers and/or a long-life rechargeable battery.
- Keep a “must have” list of last-minute items you (or other family members) need to grab. This can include: medications, glasses, phone chargers, or their comfort items that are a must to keep them calm during an emergency situation, such as: a favorite blanket, stuffed animal, doll, small toy, pacifier, or book. If possible, buy duplicates and have them pre-packed.
- Include some hard candy or a package of gum. This is an easy way to lift the spirits of the young (and the elderly).
- Include copies of identification – yours and your child’s. If possible, keep them all in a waterproof bag. This should include:
 - Your name, address, and phone number
 - Your child’s name and address (and phone number if they have one)
 - Emergency contact numbers
 - Your child’s vaccination and allergy records or other pertinent medical information
 - A copy of their passport if they have one

5. Attempt to Spend Time with Each Child Individually Every Day

Even if it’s only for five minutes a day, this will prove to be a strong stabilizing and “grounding” habit, and help your child feel loved, heard, and attended to.

- Be honest with your child. When they have questions, try to answer them clearly at a level they can understand. Your child is aware something happened – ask your child what they know and what they want to know. Let them set the parameters of what you talk about. Don’t give more information than your child asks for. Encourage your child to ask questions at any time. Comfort them, but don’t give false assurance, this only stokes the fire of their anxiety. Don’t make promises you might not be able to keep.
- Listen to your child’s feelings and concerns. Teach them they can have strong feelings but there are positive and negative ways to express them. Teach them how to express their feelings in a constructive way. Some children may show what they’re thinking/feeling through their pictures, their play, or the little songs they sing. This can relieve stress, give you clues to their concerns, and open the door for talking about their feelings. Expect some acting out and regression, such as problems with potty training, sucking their thumb, whining, clinging, or temper tantrums. For older children you may see emotional outbursts, disrespectful behavior, slamming doors, shutting themselves in their rooms, etc. Be patient, set clear boundaries, and be consistent in your discipline.

- Include cuddle time. – Physical touch, such as a hug, causes our brains to release a hormone called oxytocin. This can help all of you to feel good, and it strengthens your bond while lowering anxiety and fear.

6. Look for the Positive and Take Action

- Look for the Helpers. Point out that there are heroes and helpers who are diligently and selflessly working to make the situation in Armenia better. Encourage your family to share stories about how they saw people helping one another, then talk about ways you all can help others.
- Reframe perceptions. As humans, we have a negativity bias which can make us dwell on dark thoughts. This can affect our relationships, how we perceive people, and our view of our world. Negative words can hurt your children's mental and emotional health. Their own thoughts and how they perceive things can cause stress and anxiety. When it is appropriate, help them to reframe their negative or challenging situations in a more positive way, such as:
 - A scary experience or situation can be an occasion to have “another adventure.”
 - Problems can become “opportunities to grow,” “a chance to learn,” or “a way to open doors to help others.”
- Help them to learn to “count their blessings.” The lyrics of the old song, “Count Your Blessings” by Guy Penrod, seem appropriate to include in this chapter, the chorus says:

*Count your many blessings
Name them one by one
And it will surprise you
What the Lord has done
Count your blessings
Name them one by one
Count your blessings
See what God has done*

Remember, in the midst of this crisis the greatest gift you can give your child is this: your love. Your love is the antidote to their fear. “Well-formed love banishes fear!” (1 John 4:18 MSG)

Prayer

Heavenly Father, I pray for my children as we live in the shadow of war and terror. Be our shelter and strength, our haven and hope. Please calm and comfort them. To be honest, I'm scared too, and I need discernment about what steps to take as I try to protect them. Change the hearts of those who cause suffering and bring an end to all violence. Thank you for your faithfulness!

In Jesus' name I pray, amen.

Women, War, & Trauma - Chapter 14

If I Should Die Tonight...

By Chris Adsit

[Jesus speaking:] Truly, truly I say to you, the one who hears My word, and believes Him who sent Me, has eternal life, and does not come into judgment, but has passed out of death into life. (John 5:24)

I wonder how often that thought – “If I should die tonight...” – has crossed your mind since the start of the first war with Azerbaijan in 1988? Or even in just the past few months? One doesn’t have to be in the middle of a war to think about death and what happens afterwards. But to those whose country has been attacked by a neighbor, and who have personally known many who have died in the conflict and realize that tens of thousands of their country’s men, women, and children have lost their lives because of it, the thought must occur much more deeply and intensely.

Graveyard Insights

Simply going to a funeral or a graveyard in peacetime is enough to get one thinking about eternity. I recall an experience I had as a young man working in the oil fields far from home one summer. I had the day off but was homeless, so I strolled over to the town graveyard, looking for a place to relax for a few hours. As I sat in the shade of a small tree, I began looking at the headstone in front of me. It belonged to a person who had died decades earlier. As I did some mental math on the year he was born, the year he had died, and the current year, it occurred to me that this person had now been dead longer than he had been alive.

It really set my mind spinning! I thought, “Of all the things this person ever did in his life, being born, growing up, playing with his friends, going to school, doing chores, falling in love, getting married, pursuing a career, having kids, building a home, traveling, retiring, living out his golden years... he had now spent more time rotting in this ground in front of me than all of those other activities combined.” And he would continue to do so for a long, long time. For the first time in my nineteen years, I was struck with the brevity of life and the enormous finality of death. My next thought was, “Someday that will be true of me, too.”

A hailstorm of thoughts and questions began pelting me. “What is it all for?? Wait! This man isn’t really here in this grave – it’s just his corpse. The real person is... where? Heaven? Hell? What has he been doing all these years since he died? Did he know where he was going? Forty-two years on this side of death, and now forty-five on the other... with thousands – no millions – of years ahead of him! This side was nothing in comparison! A tick of the clock. An eyeblink. What did he do to get ready? What can I do? What can anybody do?”

As a first-year college student, I had asked Jesus Christ to come into my life and be my Lord and Savior only a few months earlier. And the Spirit of God brought back to my mind the words I had recently heard one of our leaders say: “Other than hell, there are only three things that are eternal: God, the Word of God, and the souls of people. To the extent that you are involved with these three things, you are involved with eternity.” I pondered: “Eternity, reaching through death to this side of the grave in only three forms...”

From that time on, the focus of my life profoundly shifted. It’s not that I became a monk or a religious fanatic of some sort. I simply decided that day to set my life priorities and perspectives around those three eternal things. And it made a world of difference.

I finally realized that Christianity was not just a religion, but a relationship – with Jesus Christ. And this relationship grew far beyond the “nodding acquaintance” I had experienced up until then, and transformed into a dynamic, life-long love affair. I began to understand what Jesus said in His prayer to His Father the night before He was crucified:

This is eternal life: that they may know You, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom You have sent. (John 17:3)

The most important thing God wants for us is that we would know Him. And not to just know about Him, but to truly know Him. To the extent that we know Him, to that extent we are plugged into eternity, and our lives will reflect that harmony with our Creator – in both this life and beyond the grave. There are plenty of things we can pursue in this life, and I’m not saying they are sinful. But centering our lives around our relationship with God will bring us the most satisfaction and purpose possible, and put every other area of our life into proper perspective. As God has said:

Let not the wise man boast in his wisdom, let not the mighty man boast in his might, let not the rich man boast in his riches, but let him who boasts boast in this, that he understands and knows Me, that I am the Lord who practices steadfast love, justice, and righteousness in the earth. For in these things I delight. (Jeremiah 9:23,24 ESV)

Would You Like to Know God Personally?

As presumptuous as that may sound, yes – you can know God personally. He is so eager to establish a personal, loving relationship with you that He has already made all the arrangements. He is patiently waiting for you to respond to His invitation. You can receive forgiveness for your sins and assurance of eternal life through faith in His only Son, Jesus Christ.

The following four Biblical principles will help you discover how to know God and experience the abundant life He promised...³²

PRINCIPLE 1: God LOVES you and created you to know Him personally.

- God’s Love: For God so loved the world, that He gave His only Son, so that everyone who believes in Him will not perish, but have eternal life. (John 3:16)

³² This is a version of The Four Spiritual Laws, written by Bill Bright, founder of Campus Crusade for Christ. Copyright 1965, 1988, Campus Crusade for Christ, Inc. Used by permission.

- God's Plan: The Lord appeared to me from ages past, saying, "I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore with lovingkindness I have drawn you and continued My faithfulness to you." (Jeremiah 31:3 Amplified Version)

What prevents us from knowing God personally?

PRINCIPLE 2: Man is sinful and separated from God, so we cannot know Him personally and experience His love.

Man was created to have fellowship with God; but because of his own stubborn self-will, he chose to go his own independent way and fellowship with God was broken. This self-will, characterized by an attitude of active rebellion or passive indifference, is evidence of what the Bible calls sin.

- Man is Sinful: All have sinned and fall short of the glory of God. (Romans 3:23)

The word "sin" was originally a Greek archery term which referred to how far an arrow landed from the center of the target – the "sin" of the arrow. Though we may have been trying to hit God's target of righteousness, every one of us has missed the mark.

- Man is Separated: But your wrongdoings have caused a separation between you and your God, and your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear. (Isaiah 59:2)

The wages of sin is death. [spiritual separation from God] (Romans 6:23a)

The following diagram illustrates how a great gulf separates God and man. The arrows illustrate that man is continually trying to reach God and establish a personal relationship with Him through his own efforts. These efforts take many forms, such as being a good person, having a positive philosophy, taking care of the environment, or being religious – but he inevitably fails. The gulf is just too great. It would be like trying to swim from London to New York City. The greatest swimmer of all time might go farther than anyone else, but he or she would still fall hundreds of miles short. The problem isn't with the lack of effort – it's the width of the ocean. No one can swim it regardless of how great their swimming ability is. It's the same with the gulf that separates us from God. None of us can ever be "righteous" enough to reach God, because His righteousness is perfect.

The third principle explains the only way to bridge this gulf...

PRINCIPLE 3: Jesus Christ is God's only provision for man's sin.

Through Him alone we can know God personally and experience His love.

- He Died In Our Place: God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us. (Romans 5:8)
- He Rose From the Dead: Christ died for our sins... He was buried... He was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures... He appeared to Peter, then to the twelve. After that He appeared to more than five hundred... (1 Corinthians 15:3-6)
- He Is the Only Way to God: Jesus said to him, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life: no one comes to the Father except through Me. (John 14:6)

The above diagram illustrates that God has taken the initiative and bridged the gulf that separates us from Him by sending His Son, Jesus Christ, to die on the cross in our place to pay the penalty for our sins. Because of Jesus' willing sacrifice of Himself, we can now experience a relationship with God.

It is not enough just to know these three principles...

Principle 4: We must individually RECEIVE Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord; then we can know God personally and experience His love.

- We Must Receive Christ: As many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, to those who believe in His name. (John 1:12)
- We Receive Christ Through Faith: By grace you have been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God; not as a result of works, that no one should boast. (Ephesians 2:8,9)

- When We Receive Christ, We Experience A New Birth: Read John 3:1-8 in your Bible to see how Jesus talks about being “born again.”
- We Receive Christ by Personal Invitation: [Christ speaking:] Look! I have been standing at the door, and I am constantly knocking. If anyone hears Me calling him and opens the door, I will come in and fellowship with him and He with Me. (Revelation 3:20 TLB)

Receiving Christ involves turning to God from self (repentance) and trusting Christ to come into our lives to forgive us for our sins and to make us what He wants us to be. Just to agree intellectually that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and that He died on the cross for our sins is not enough – nor is it enough to have an emotional experience. We receive Jesus Christ by faith, as an act of our will.

You have seen these two circles before in Chapter 11. They represent two kinds of lives:

The Worldly, Self-Directed Life

Self is on the throne.

Interests, activities, priorities, and plans are directed by self, resulting in discord and frustration.

Jesus Christ is outside the life.

The Christ-Directed Life

Jesus Christ is on the throne.

Self is dethroned and yielding to Jesus Christ.

Interests, activities, priorities, and plans are directed by Christ, resulting in harmony with God’s plan.

- Which circle best represents your life?
- Which circle would you like to have represent your life?

If you would rather have the second circle be representative of your life, you can receive Jesus Christ into your life right now by faith through prayer. God knows your heart and is not so concerned with your words as He is with the attitude of your heart. The following is a suggested prayer:

“Lord Jesus, I want to know You personally. Thank you for dying on the cross for my sins. I open the door of my life and receive You as my Savior and Lord. Thank You for forgiving me of my sins and giving me eternal life. Take control of the throne of my life. Make me the kind of person You want me to be.”

Does this prayer express the desire of your heart? If it does, pray this prayer right now, and Christ will come into your life, as He promised.

How to know that Christ is in your life

Did you ask Christ into your life? According to His promise in Revelation 3:20, where is Christ right now in relation to you? Christ said that He would come into your life and have a relationship with you so that you can know Him personally. Would He mislead you? On what authority do you know that God has answered your prayer? (The trustworthiness of God Himself and His Word.)

And the testimony is this, that God has given us eternal life, and this life is in His Son.

The one who has the Son has the life; the one who does not have the Son of God does not have the life. These things I have written to you who believe in the name of the Son of God, so that you may know that you have eternal life. (1 John 5:11-13)

Imagine for a moment that I wanted to give you a 500 Euro bill. I take the bill and insert it in a book, close the book, and then hand the book to you. Would you complain and say, “Wait a minute. You said you’d give me 500 Euro, but instead you gave me this book!”? I did. But he who has the book has the bill – because the bill is in the book. In a similar way, he who has the Son has eternal life – because the life is in the Son. When you received Jesus Christ into your life, you also received His eternal life!

Thank God often that Christ is in your life and that He will never leave you.

He [God] Himself has said, I will not in any way fail you nor give you up nor leave you without support. [I will] not, [I will] not, [I will] not in any degree leave you helpless nor forsake nor let [you] down (relax My hold on you)! [Assuredly not!]
(Hebrews 13:5 Amplified – Classic Version)

God thought it was so important that you know that He would never leave you or forsake you, He had the writer of the above verse use a Greek phrase that is so strong, to translate it requires a triple negative to convey the certainty of His commitment to you! You can know that Christ lives in you and that you have eternal life from the very moment you invite Him into your life – because He promised it! He will never deceive you, leave you, or forsake you.

An important reminder: don’t depend on feelings

The promises of God’s Word, the Bible – not our feelings – is our authority. The Christian lives by faith in the trustworthiness of God Himself and His Word. The Illustration below shows the relationship between fact (God and His Word), faith (our trust in God and His Word), and feelings (the result of our faith and obedience).

The classic train pictured above was powered by coal, which was stored in the second car. As coal was shoveled forward to the engine’s firebox and burned, it produced steam which powered the train. Shoveling coal from the second car to the last car will not move the train at all. In fact, the train will run with or without the last car. However, it cannot run without the engine – the last car has no power to do that job. In the same way, we as Christians do not depend on feelings or emotions, but we place our faith (trust) in the facts – the trustworthiness of God and the promises of His Word.

What happened?

The moment you received Christ by faith, as an act of your will, many things happened...

1. Christ came into your life (Revelation 3:20; Colossians 1:27)
2. Your sins – past, present, and future – were forgiven (Psalm 103:12; Colossians 1:14)
3. You became a child of God (John 1:12)
4. You received eternal life (John 5:24)
5. You began the great adventure for which God created you (John 10:10; 2 Corinthians 5:17; 1 Thessalonians 5:18)

Maintaining momentum

Inviting Jesus Christ into your life is just the beginning! There was a time when you were a newborn baby, mystified and unfamiliar with your surroundings. It's a good thing your parents didn't say, "Congratulations! You are born! We hope you have a good life! We'll see you around!" No, they made sure that you got proper nutrition, sleep, clothes, love, training, and many other things. And as you cooperated with them in this process, you grew up strong and resourceful!

Now you are a baby a second time – a spiritual baby, who has just been born again (see John 3:1-8). Now is not the time to go passive, and just let things happen. God has a process of spiritual growth for you, and if you are interested in growing strong and resourceful as a Christian woman, be sure to cooperate with God in the process He has set up for you.

Chapters 11 and 12 in this book give you five important elements of God's process of healing and growth. Be sure to review those chapters and apply what you learned there!

The Take-Away

As an Armenian woman, it's likely your life has become filled with uncertainty during the past months or years. But there is one thing you don't have to be uncertain about, and that is what will happen to you after you die. And this isn't an issue that only pertains to death – it's also about your life in the midst of your present difficulties. God wants to walk with you through the "valley of the shadow of death" you are currently in. He is interested in a personal relationship with you because He made you, and He loves you. No one knows the day and hour of their death, but we can have peace about that subject as we stay close to God and have faith that He will see us through every difficulty we encounter – even if we come to our "final" difficulty: the end of our physical life. If you have established that relationship with Jesus Christ, and keep Him on the throne of your life, cooperating with Him in His process of healing and strengthening, you will be able to echo the prayer of the Psalmist:

*The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom should I fear?
The Lord is the defense of my life; whom should I dread?
When evildoers came upon me to devour my flesh,
My adversaries and my enemies, they stumbled and fell.
If an army encamps against me, my heart will not fear;
If war arises against me, in spite of this I am confident. (Psalm 27:1-3)*

Prayer

My Father in heaven – and also right here with me – I need to feel Your closeness, Your encouragement, Your strength, Your control. There are too many things that are uncontrollable in my life right now. But You are the God of the universe. I want to deepen my relationship with You. I want to know you – that you are the One who practices steadfast love, justice, and righteousness in the earth. I want to be sure that I have opened the door of my heart, and let you in. I don't want to hold any doubt about that, so once and for all, I ask you to come into my life, and sit on my throne. I want to be ready for eternity, but I also want to be ready for whatever is going to happen tomorrow. Thank you! I pray these things in the name of my Lord Jesus Christ, amen.

“How can I go on?”

Trauma is nothing new to an Armenian woman. Since the very beginning of the last century, several countries have done their best to subdue, displace, enslave, or annihilate the people of Armenia. From the Metz Yeghern of 1915-23, when 1.5 million were massacred or deported and left to die in the Syrian desert by the Turks, to the first and second wars for Nagorno-Karabakh in the past few years, when tens of thousands of Armenians were killed or wounded or driven from their homes in battles against Azerbaijan.

Through all this, the women of Armenia have had to provide strength, stability, and courage for their families. When their husbands, fathers, and sons had to go off to fight – many of them never to return – the women had to step up to protect and provide for their families. Many of them still do.

You are in the middle of yet another war. And there is no telling what might be coming within the next few weeks and months from foreign invaders.

You are being hit physically, psychologically, and spiritually. We non-Armenians observe the incredible bravery, strength, and perseverance of your people. But we know—as we look back over the traumas we have suffered—that some days you wonder how you can go on.

We have written this manual for that very purpose—to help you go on. It is filled with practical tips, inspirational insights, and encouraging truths that will make a difference for you in your current situation. Have you ever thought about...

- How war trauma has impacted you physically, psychologically, and spiritually?
- How you can reconcile the idea of a good God that would allow so much suffering?
- How faith can drive away fear?
- How you can deal with guilt feelings you may have?
- How peace and light can be found in the darkness of grief?
- How you can help your family survive in the midst of such chaos and uncertainty?
- How war has negatively changed your self-image?
- How your soul wounds can heal?

All of these questions—and more—are addressed in this manual.

We know that many things have broken your heart and crushed your spirit in the past several months and years. But know that you are not alone. God sees you, and is there with you.

The LORD is near to the brokenhearted and saves those who are crushed in spirit. — Psalm 34:18

REBOOT RECOVERY
OVERCOMING TRAUMA TOGETHER

Reboot Recovery USA: RebootRecovery.com
Online resources in Armenian: <https://rebootrecovery.com/reboot-international-resources>